There is rather a falling off than an increase in business, and the people are leaving the country in carloads. It certainly does look as if there will have to be a change in the fiscal policy of the country pretty soon. One thing is sure, in order to maintain any kind of an equilibrium between revenue and expenditure, the tariff has got to go up another notch, or it must come down. In view of past experience, which shall

The idea which seems to meet with the most general approval is to have the village incorporated, and then issue debentures and buy a fire engine. The main objection to this plan is that it means to saddle upon a comparitively small number of the people a large debt at the outset, besides all the incidental expenses necessary to maintaining the dignity of a town or city. To amalgamate with Fredericton on the other hand, while it would bring at once to the village of St. Marys everything it could desire in this world, would be a luxury for which the people would have to pay the highest price in the markets of the known world. The streets of Fredericton are beautiful, its sidewalks splendid, its water system perfect, its sewerage all that can be desired, its fire department unsurpassed, and its tax bills immense. We would like "to take in" St. Marys first rate. Of course the question of the Indian village complicates matters some. MICHAEL DAVITT, one of the ablest men in the Irish party, has lost his seat in the British house of commons, because of "clerical intimidation" said to have been exerted in his behalf during the election. Should Mr. Davitt permanently retire from political life on account of the finding of the courts against him, the Irish national party will lose an able lieutenelection contest was affected by the undue influence, said to have been exerted by the clergy to secure Mr. Davitt's return, we do not know. If the spiritual advisors of the people of the cuntry intimidated the electors into voting for any candidate against their will, it is only right that the law should provide a remedy for the injured candidate. According to the rev. Dr. Douglas, if such a law exists in Canada, the opponents of Sir John Thompson failed to take advantage of it.

THE danger to the French republic seems to be averted at this moment, and an effort is apparently being made to ferret out the wrong doers in connection with the Panama canal scheme, and to bring them to justice. A Paris despatch hints the Panama scandal are likely to be followed by disclosures of rottenness and colossal corruption in the French republic's department of public works, as "that department has long been controlled by men lacking in character and technical knowledge for the benefit of influential contractors who give a commission on their profits to the deputies." This state of affairs seems to pretty accurately discribe the public works department of Canada, as recently controlled at any rate and yet we do not hear any sound of a adjuncts to life in this city, held its annual revolution in the land.
