JOHN PARIS, ACCUSED OF MURDER, TESTIFIED IN HIS OWN DEFENCE; GREAT INTEREST IN THE TRIAL

Crown Concluded Their Case Yesterday After Hearing Six Witnesses—Paris Told of Being in Truro on Date of Murder in St. John—Knew Riverview Park Was Off Douglas Avenue—Started for Park One Day But Did Not Go There.

The Crown concluded their case against John Paris yesterday afternoon, and the prisoner himself took the stand in his own defense in an endeavor to clear his name of the charge of murdering Sadie McAuley in Riverview Park on Aug. 2 last.

As in the two previous trials, the defense will rely on an alibi to establish the innocence of the accused. G. H. Vernon, K. C., of Truro, consumed something less than an hour in his examination of the prisoner and examined Paris much less minutely than at the previous trials. Attorney-General Byrne had begun his cross-examination of the accused when the court adjourned for the day.

Robert Elliot.

The cross-examination of Robert Elliot was resumed on the opening of the case in the morning. Elliot said he first saw Sadie McAuley and Hattie Lavigne coming from the direction of Main street at about noon. They disappeared and at 12.30 the Lavigne girl came back alone. During that time he heard no outcry, and at no time saw the accused.

Robert Douglas, city fireman, swore that there was a fire at Cushing's mill on Aug. 2.

William Lavigne, 30 Clarence street, deposed that his daughter Hattie and Sadie McAuley brought him his dinner on noon of that day, and that they then went to pick berries. He did not see the accused or any one follow them.

Hattie Lavigne.

Hattie Lavigne gave evidence similar to that given at previous trials. She said she and Sadie McAuley were picking berries and met a man who said he would show them where there were larger berries. The witness refused to go, but Sadie went. She called to Sadie three times, but she did not come back. The witness then went back to the park and told a man named Bob what Sadie had done. Asked whether the man she saw at the park looked like the prisoner, she replied that the man was about the same size as the prisoner, but that the latter's mustache made him look different, and that he had not the red face as when she saw him picking berries. When she saw the prisoner in the police station she did not notice whether he had a mustache or not. The witness then described again the clothes which the man wore when he went with Sadie. Cross-examined by Mr. Vernon, she said that she thought that the khaki pants worn by the man were laced at the knee and that he wore a peaked grey cap and not a soft hat. She was shown a photograph of the accused, and said that it looked like the same coat, but that the face did not look like the man in the park. She said the only team she saw on the road on Aug. 2 was a bakery wagon.

Sergeant-Detective Power was then called, and told of the finding of the body and of the arrest of Paris, who, he said, was wearing a slight mustache.

His evidence was interrupted by the noon recess, and on the opening of the court in the afternoon he stated he was not prepared to say, after considering the matter, whether Paris was wearing a mustache or not at the time of his arrest.

The sergeant said that he, with five officers, and several other people had searched the park both on the morning and afternoon of the third. He did not see Paris there, but thought he would have had the accused been in the section he was searching, and that the others would have seen him had he been in the park.

There was a reward of 500 offered, and the papers had said $1,000. It was offered before Humphrey and McDonald gave their information. He did not know why Frank Craft, the husband of a previous witness who had given evidence at the preliminary hearing, was not called at either of the previous trials.

The witness said he did not think he could tell the color of a man's mustache at 150 feet. Mr. Day might have been able to, but he could not.

Hattie Lavigne was taken to see Paris on Aug. 19, when he was arrested, and again after he had been brought back from Truro.

The sergeant said that Walter Humphrey had told him the reason he had not come to him before was because he had been told by a policeman there was enough evidence at the police station to send him up the line, and he was afraid to. The witness said he had suspected Humphrey of thieving, but was not positive before Humphrey had admitted the thefts to him.

To Mr. Byrne he said he did not believe the wounds on the face had been made by a razor as Humphrey had said, but that they were made by some sharp instrument. He did not know whether the man named Lavigne had been arrested after McDonald had spoken to him or not.

Witness said there was a mile to a mile and a half of uncleared ground between Marble Cove and the bridge which a man might roam over.

Detective Biddescombe.

Patrick Biddescombe, city detective, said that Paris was arrested at Martinon, on the St. John River, in consequence of a wire received from the Truro police. That the arrest was made on Aug. 19, and that between that date and the time Paris was brought back from Truro, five or six communications passed between the two police departments.

The detective said that when Paris was taken into custody he told the officers to tell him what he was arrested for and that he was not afraid.

A pair of khaki military pants cut below the knee; a grey felt hat, and a pair of puttees were submitted in evidence, and identified by the witness as having been found by him in a house on Main street to which Paris' housekeeper moved after the latter's arrest.

To Mr. Vernon, he said that clothing was found in one of the rooms, and no effort had been made to conceal it. He did not see Paris in the park on Aug. 4. Paris, he said, showed no signs of fear when arrested.

The detective was of the opinion that he could see a man's mustache and discern its color at 150 feet. He knew that Detective Scott had been in Sydney and Truro in connection with the murder. Mr. Vernon asked him if it was not a fact that Detective Scott had said that he did not think Paris was the man, but the question was ruled out. This closed the case for the Crown.

The Defence

Mr. Vernon in opening the case for the defence, said he would outline to the jury the salient points of his defence. He intended with the aid of witnesses to show Paris could not have committed the crime because he was not in the city when it was committed, but that he was in Truro from July 27 till August 4.

He intended to prove this by eminently respectable citizens of Truro who did not live in questionable localities such as Water street, St. John, and witnesses of different walks of life, who were thoroughly disinterested and who came to give evidence because they believed it their duty to do so to save the life of an innocent man.

Their evidence would not be of memory alone but would be supported by documentary evidence. He would show that Paris was charged with theft on the 2nd of August in Truro. A doctor would say he saw John Paris in Truro on the 2nd. Other witnesses would swear to having seen Paris in Truro on the 3rd and that they saw him take the night train for St. John, and others would swear to Paris arriving in St. John on the morning of the 4th.

Mr. Vernon asked if the court and Crown would allow him to examine Paris till the arrival of witnesses from Truro and then allow him to stand aside, so that the Truro witnesses might not be detained any longer than possible. The step was necessary he said because of the limited funds at the prisoner's disposal for witness fees.

Judge Barry said the court would have no objection if the Crown had none, but Mr. Byrne for the Crown said he could not as a matter of duty consent to such a step.

John Paris

Mr. Vernon then directed Paris to take the witness box, and the accused walked over and stood before it. Judge Barry told him he might sit down, and he replied "I'd rather stand for a little while, just for a little exercise." After a few minutes of standing Paris sat down, crossed his knees, clasped his hands across his chest, and in a slow and deliberate manner answered the questions put to him by his counsel.

Paris said he was brought up in Truro and lived there most of his life. That he went to Truro on the night of July 23rd and was there till August 3rd leaving that night for St. John. Walter Humphrey, he said saw him off and that they came to the station in a taxi. He was in Truro continually from the 23rd of July to the night of the 3rd of August.

On the 1st, Paris said he remembered there was a social in the Oddfellows' Hall attended by the colored people of Truro, and that he spent the night at the Wm. Byard home.

On August 2nd he said he collected a bill at the Eastern Cap Co.'s office for some money owing him by the manager, Mr. Ogilvie. He said there was a young man and two girls in the office and that he submitted a bill for three hours work at 45 cents an hour, and was told Mr. Ogilvie would not pay the bill and was given 90 cents which he accepted.

On the same day he said he sold a can "which was supposed to have contained 5 gallons of gas" to Stanley Nichols, a garageman. The gas was sold by him at the request of Louis Byard, with whom he had been driving in a horse and buggie. Two dollars was received for the gas from Nichols. The prisoner said he had tried to sell the gas to others but failed.

Paris said he saw Nichols mark something in a book when he sold him the gas.

He knew Dr. McCurdy, and had known him since he was a young lad. Paris said he saw the doctor in Oscar Clyke's house on the 2nd of August, during a sick call. James Clyke, the patient, the doctor and witness were present.

The same afternoon Paris said he saw Chief Frazer, and Officer Boss on the "island" searching for a can of cream. He said the chief asked him if he had the cream in a kettle which he had in his hands.

The prisoner said he bought two cans of sardines on credit that day. He bought them from Leslie Jordon's store, and saw him mark the purchase down. Paris said he ate one can of the sardines in John Byard's house and got a can opener there.

He said he was on the Goose Creek Bridge on the morning of the 3rd picking mushrooms in that vicinity and that a man drove him up to Truro from there that day. When asked who it was, Paris after some concentrated thinking, said it was Isaac Allan.

The accused said he sold the mushrooms to the wife of Moxon the druggist. He was paid for them at the shop by Mr. Moxon on the night of the 3rd between 8 and 10 o'clock. There was a man in the store in front of the counter at the time.

The prisoner remembered speaking to George Hill, a farmer, while he was picking mushrooms on the 3rd of August. Hill's hired man was also present. There was a transaction regarding the sale of a suit of clothes.

House Was Totally Destroyed By Fire

Blaze Early Yesterday Morning Turned Family Out of Doors—Barn Was Saved.

John Phillips and family were forced to flee from their home, a story and a half wooden cottage, situated at the junction of the Boar's Head and Millidgeville roads, early yesterday morning. The family were awakened about 3 o'clock by smoke and lost the greater part of their household furniture and personal effects. The north end chemical engine went to the scene of the fire, but by the time they arrived about the only thing left was the frame work of the building.

The house was situated on what is known as the Foster farm and Mr. Phillips, a tenant, was making arrangements to move on May 1st. He is a teamster with the Canadian Oil Company.

The Pan-American Congress of Women

Mrs. E. Atherton Smith Made An Impression With Her Able Address in Baltimore.

Mrs. E. Atherton Smith, representative of the St. John Local Council of Women evidently made a hit at the Pan-American Congress of Women, held in Baltimore, and they, as well as her Canadian friends paid tribute to her ability.

The Baltimore Sun of Monday, April 24, in discussing one of the meetings says this: "But Mrs. E. Atherton Smith, of Canada, delivered the real address of the evening in telling of her countrywomen."

In her address Mrs. Smith spoke of the early pioneer women of Canada, and the United Loyalist women. She referred to Jean Mance, founder of Hotel Dieu, Montreal; Madeline Vercheres and Lady La Tour, and closed with a fine tribute to the Canadian nurses who played so heroic a part in the great war, and to Mrs. W. E. Sanford, president of the National Council of Women of Canada.

The Baltimore American pays tribute to her in the following words: "Mrs. E. Atherton Smith, of Canada, would make an excellent reporter. Mrs. Smith went down in the elevator from the twelfth floor to the lobby of the Belvedere with a reporter who was endeavoring to secure a story from her. Whether she wanted to tell the story is not known, but before the lobby was reached Mrs. Smith knew all about that reporter and could have written his 'obit,' without the slightest digiculty."

An Investigation At The City Hall

J. A. Likely Co. Ltd. Communicates That Piling for Ferry Dock Is Not Up to Specifications.

A communication from J. A. Likely Co., Ltd., to the effect that piling being driven at the East Side ferry dock were not up to specification and the city in consequence was out between $3,000 and $4,000, was discussed yesterday by the members of the City Council and it was decided to hold an investigation this afternoon at City Hall.

Mayor Schofield said the serious part of the matter was that there is a city inspector on the job, and that these conditions were not made known until a complaint was received from a taxpayer.

Inspector Newlands said that some had been driven in the cluster and inside it when night work was started by the contractors, the Stephen Construction Company, without his knowledge, but all others had been driven while he was present. He assured the Council that none had been put in that had not been up to specifications. He said some were driven seven feet into the bottom and others eleven. The difference was due to the conditions of the bottom. He said the cost of the piling would amount to $6,000.

Commissioner Bullock moved that the communication of Messrs. Likely be received and the complaint filed, that the contractors be notified to suspend work and not continue until the piles were up to the specifications, and that the complainant be asked to attend a meeting and explain his statement.
