The Queen's Hotel Will Be Greatly Enlarged and Improved—Plans Have Been Accepted.

An extensive scheme of improvements has been inaugurated in the Queen's Hotel. While the Queen's has always had a high reputation for comfort among the travelers and tourists the world over, and is extremely popular with American tourists as being one of the very few hotels in America that are thoroughly English in their characteristics, the increase of business, and the improvement in times have led the proprietors to draw up plans for another storey to be added to both the east and west wings, giving an additional accommodation for seventy-five rooms. Already in the plan of improvements the entrance halls and drawing rooms have been redecorated in a most artistic manner, the plumbing system has undergone a thorough renewal and a large number of additional baths have been added. When the additional wings are completed, with a capacity of 300 rooms, there will be close on 100 possessing bathrooms. The plans have been drawn by Mr. D. B. Dick, the well-known architect. Before the improvements are completed Messrs. McGaw & Winnett will have spent the sum of $100,000.

Modern Extraction.

Modern Extraction of teeth is very different from the old-time manner of torture. By applying a perfectly harmless anesthetic to the gums at the tooth roots, the nerves are temporarily deadened and the operation is made painless and easy. In experimenting with this new method many dentists have used drugs which cause swelling or sloughing of the gums and the after effects of which are more painful than the operation. This positively cannot occur with the medicament we employ.

HAMILTON NEWS

MILK BYLAW CONSIDERED.

Board of Health Heard the Report of Mayor Teetzel and the Association.

DOUBTFUL OF CITY INSPECTORS

The Milkmen Want a Well-Posted Farmer to Be on Hand When Inspection is Made—General News.

Hamilton, May 15.—(Special.)—A special meeting of the Board of Health was held this evening to consider the opposition to the milk bylaw. Mayor Teetzel made a report of the conference he had with officials of the Milk Dealers' Association, and said that the milkmen's greatest fears were that their licenses might be cut off by inexperienced inspectors. He moved that the township inspectors be invited to go with the city inspectors, when these officers are on a tour of inspection. They are to be given "reasonable notice" of such visits. The motion carried, although Dr. Ryall, the medical health officer, and Mr. Kirkpatrick spoke against it.

Liquor Dealers Fined.

This afternoon Hazell & Son, Hamilton grocers and licensed liquor dealers, were fined $20 by two justices of the peace in Burlington on a charge of selling liquor in Halton County without a license. J. V. Teetzel, their solicitor, gave notice of appeal. The defendants' representatives take orders for liquor in this suburb, and the Justices of the Peace held this to be illegal without a license in the county in which the sale was made. Mr. Teetzel said if that was law, wholesale dealers would not be able to sell goods outside of their own county.

Red Lion Mills Again Fined.

The fight between William Mills of the Red Lion Hotel, Dundas, and the chief of police still continues. This afternoon Mills was before the magistrate for the third time within a few weeks, charged with violating the liquor act by allowing gambling on his premises. The trial lasted several hours, and Mills was found guilty and fined $20.

Hamilton is Prospering.

Everywhere are to be found evidences of the city's prosperity. Mr. Hall, Assessment Commissioner, has in his office a return of real estate transfers made during the last few weeks, and they show two things very clearly. The first is that real estate is brisk, in comparison with what it has been, and the second is that prices are higher. For many years the real estate market has been very flat, but it can hardly be said to be so now, for there are between 60 and 70 transfers recorded, and details given on the Commissioner's return. The purchase prices run from $22,000, which the Hamilton Brass Company paid for its factory premises, down.

W. H. Irwin Stricken.

W. H. Irwin, directory man, had an apoplectic fit on the Central Market this evening. He was taken home in an unconscious condition in the ambulance. His home is in Herkimer-street, and he is quite aged. At a late hour he was resting easy.

Minor Matters.

This morning Judge Monck, gave judgment for $2.80 in a case brought by A. B. Petrie, against the city corporation for $60 rebate on taxes.

Willie Colebrook, Stuart-street, was arrested this afternoon, on a charge of stealing from Semmen & Evel's coffin factory.

A permit has been granted for an addition to the Woodbine Hotel, recently purchased by ex-Constable Joe Cable.

Fred Vickburn, a scorcher, was fined $5 this morning.

Sergt. Finch caught a thief in Tunis' bicycle store this morning. His name is William Moore, a lad.

John Place was caught in the shafting in Miller & Pratt's basket factory, in Stoney Creek, this morning, and was nearly killed.

John Adams has been elected president of the Y.M.C.A. Tennis Club.

A number of men in the Ontario Tack Factory went on strike for higher wages this morning.

Fred Bradt, Park street, had a fit on the street this evening, and was taken home in the ambulance.

There was a small fire at the foot of Inchbury-street to-night.

Daniel Allan, a North Side boy, was arrested for theft to-night.

CITIZENS, READ WHAT THE JUDGE REPORTS

make a favorable showing for the economizer. Things were done in such a clumsy and stupid way as to almost force one to the conclusion that the man was either mentally or morally unbalanced, or both. I find also that there were mysterious turnings of the valves by Mr. Pink, the effect of which was to allow steam to escape and waste and thereby increase the coal consumption during the period of the test without the economizer."

Hot Shot for Assistant Hughes.

Touching upon Mr. Hughes, Mr. Pink's assistant, His Honor resumes: "His attitude of ignoring all irregularities committed during a formal test, until he got positive orders to deal with them, although similar irregularities occurring during ordinary running would be corrected at once without orders, stamps Mr. Hughes, in my judgment, as an untrustworthy and unreliable engineer, and a pliant tool in the hands of any chief engineer who might desire to sacrifice the interests of the city in favor of contractors or others. I am glad to say that Mr. Hughes is the only member of the staff at the water works (except, of course, Mr. Pink), whose conduct, as disclosed in evidence, calls for any unfavorable comment at my hands.

Peculiar Methods Employed.

"The result of the five days' test, conducted as it was with such palpable unfairness, showed an apparent saving of 9.45 per cent. in favor of the economizer, but this showing is, in my judgment, utterly unreliable and erroneous and is but the legitimate result of the peculiar methods adopted by Mr. Pink and tolerated by Engineer Hughes. The low temperature of the feed water during Mr. Hughes' watch of eight hours for the period of three days, out of five days of the test, the voluntary wasting of steam and the jockeying with the furnaces would entirely disturb all data from which a comparison could be fairly made. I therefore report that the third test was utterly worthless and unreliable."

Hereupon follows an accurate comparison of the actual results of the first and second tests, and those of the three months' without the economizer.

The Sum-Up.

Summing up and concluding, Judge McDougall says:

"I find, therefore, upon comparing the two 30 days' tests (one with the economizer, November, 1897, and June and July, 1898), with the pumpage per 100 pounds of coal for the three months' of August, September and October, 1896, without an economizer, the first test shows there was a loss of 3.47 per cent. suffered by using the economizer. And the second 30 days' test the comparison shows that the economizer effected a saving of 4.66 per cent. The economizer, therefore, since its installation and under the conditions of the written contract with the city has not shown as the result of any 30 days' test a saving of fuel exceeding 4.66 per cent.

"I find that the strictures contained in Mr. Fellowes' report of Feb. 16, 1899, to Mr. Rust, relating to the economizer tests and to Mr. Pink's reports thereon, are amply sustained by the evidence. The utterly untrustworthy and misleading nature of Mr. Pink's reports, pointed out by Mr. Fellowes, have been fully established before me by independent testimony, and Mr. Fellowes' report satisfactory verified.

"I have thought it unnecessary, in view of the results of my enquiry into the character and reliability of the various tests reported upon by Mr. Pink, to put the city to the trouble or expense of making a further test, as suggested by your resolution of March 6 last. To my mind it is quite manifest that whatever may be the merits of the Green Economizer, the results stipulated for in the agreement of the Green Economizer Co. with the city as a condition precedent to a purchase of the economizer, cannot be obtained at the Main Pumping Station under present conditions or without extensive structural alterations."

Gone Into Camp.

Kingston, Ont., May 15.—This morning the members of "A" field battery, R.C.A., went into camp on the front road, Pittsburgh, below Barriefield. There are six guns, wagons, etc., and 138 men. The battery will remain under canvas for a month at least. The camp is under the command of Major Fages.

HOME CURE FOR DRINK

"SUNLIGHT SOAP" ON TOP AT THE CITY COUNCIL

There Was a Red-Hot Scrap and Ald. Hallam Led Opposition to Their Defeat.

AGREEMENT WILL NOW BE MADE

Siddall Beats Out Symons—Is There Really Bad Blood Between Sheppard and Shaw?

The deadly lobbiest and a rumor circulated by Ald. Bowman that the Lever Bros. would buy their bricks from a Yankee firm, did their worst when the Sunlight Soap Company skeleton agreement with the Board of Control came up at City Council yesterday. There was a stiff fight and a trio of amendments against it, both initiated by Ald. Hallam. But the common sense of most held the fretful pessimists in awe, and the aldermen, permeated by a desire to clinch a reputable big industry, rose above all cavilling and passed the agreement bons bons.

To start with, the aldermen had a definite estimate from Mr. Rust that the concessions asked by the company would cost the city $50,000.

Hallam's Onslaught.

The reading of the recommendation conduced to some ebullitions from Ald. Hallam. The alderman was for existing interests first and foremost. With his usual penchant for drastic measures, he moved to strike the whole report out. In other words, he moved to tell Lever Bros. to go elsewhere. He was opposed to this bonusing business. Why didn't the Sunlight Soap Company come in and compete on equal terms, and with no fears nor favors, with firms established in the soap business here for years?

"Why should we build roads and sidewalks for them?" said he. "Why don't they help build them themselves, like I and every other honest man who pays his taxes does?"

But the unkindest cut of all came when a third degree Lancashireman like Ald. Hallam called the Lever Bros. a "foreign firm."

To Ald. Crane the recommendation in hand was the most extraordinary ever seen. It was one-sided. It bound the city to everything and the company to nothing. He moved to bind the company to employ at least 250 hands.

A Few Ideas.

Ald. R. H. Graham sided in, too. "The company seems to be playing Toronto off against Montreal," said he.

Ald. Lamb, usually the Pythias to Ald. Hallam's Damon, took a broad view of the matter. "If they go to Montreal," said he, "and it is definitely ascertained that they intend to locate in Canada, they will compete every bit as much with soap men here as if they were in Toronto."

Mr. Lash Interrogated.

Hereupon Mr. Z. A. Lash, counsel for the company, was heard. He was saying little new, when Ald. Hanlan fired at him the query as to whether the company would expect the city to dredge the Don channel of its ever-accumulating silt in perpetuity.

Mr. Lash could not say.

"What is your capital, so far as the Canadian business is concerned?" asked Ald. Spence.

There would be at least $100,000 spent in buildings, and Mr. Lash recollected also that the aldermen had been assured that the paid-up capital would be $500,000. He could not say definitely, for the company's incorporation was depending upon the action of Council.

Ald. Saunders wanted the report referred back, the Solicitor consulted on certain points, and a special meeting called.

Can Speak Freely Now.

Then Ald. Frankland, whose acceptance of a Government position has determined him not to run again, and who began yesterday, therefore, to express unshackled opinions, roasted the lobbyists. "I am surprised," he said, "at the men who, though they wouldn't come down to the low level of lobbyists, were doing the dirty work of lobbyists." Here was a company proposing to invest $500,000, and yet they were being treated like thieves.

Hallam Says They're "Rotten."

"Who're the lobbyists?" shouted Ald. Hallam, taking up this gauntlet gratuitously, and adding: "Any industry which cannot stand without special privileges is a rotten one. Let them pay for the walks and roads, like I have to. I am surprised at their modesty. They might have asked us to put up their buildings."

There was no cyclonic sensation. Everybody knew Ald. Hallam. Controller Burns took some little pains to call him down—that was all.

The lobby, according to Ald. Crane, was all on the other side. He saw nothing novel in it. There never was a question before Council that had not been lobbied. But, taking up Ald. Hanlan's clue, he predicted that clearing the Don channel would cost $5000 or $6000 a year to the city.

The Final Division.

Ald. Sheppard wanted to wait and pass upon the agreement as finally drafted. Then the third and last amendment seriously considered, for there were others by Ald. Saunders and Davies, was by Ald. R. H. Graham: Its effect was to insert a provision that the city should not dredge the Don until the G.T.R. had consented to replace their bridge at Eastern-avenue with a swing bridge. Ald. Burns pointed out the absurdity of asking the G.T.R. to put up a bridge to facilitate the shipping of soap by water, and then the votes were put.

Ald. Hallam went down with only one backer—Ald. Bowman. The Crane amendment suffered a little better fate, and so did the last by Ald. R. H. Graham.

The Vote in Council.

But in Council the latter forced the issue to yea and nay, and the reported agreement with the Sunlight Soap Company carried on the reverse of the following division:

Yea—Ald. Bowman, J. J. Graham, Sheppard, Crane, R. H. Graham and Lamb—6.

Nay—Ald. Burns, Lynd, Saunders, Frankland, Hubbard, Hanlan, Spence, Steiner, Stewart, Russell, Frame, Score and the Mayor—13.

Symons Beaten Out.

Ald. Lamb precipitated the next important debate by moving to have tenders called for upon Mr. Symons' plans, and specifications for market improvement as well as upon those recommended as a basis of tendering by the Board of Control, Mr. Siddall's. Mr. Symons' case, as made out, consisted chiefly in the fact that he had given the matter so much time and attention, and undergone so much expense in preparing the original plans. He had gone with the Market Improvement Association deputation without remuneration.

Ald. Lamb further accused Architect Lennox of acting from motives of personal prejudice against Ald. Denison and Mr. Symons.

Various ideas followed pro and con, Ald. R. H. Graham and Spence advising their colleagues to manfully face the alleged fact that the market could not be improved on approved lines for $150,000.

Finally Controller Lynd set to work to puncture Ald. Lamb's argument. Mr. Symons, he said, had no standing, any more than any other competitor, for he had come into the thing in the first place by his own request, and because, further, both he and Ald. Denison had denied the authorship of the idea which had formed the framework of competition. Mr. Lennox and Mr. McCallum, he went on to say, were more capable of judging than Mr. Rust, who was not an architect.

"And more prejudiced," broke in Ald. Lamb.

Ald. Lynd: Oh, we all know of Ald. Lamb's prejudices. We know his reasons.

"What are they?" hotly reiterated Ald. Lamb. Ald. Lynd refused to say, and after awhile the report carried without amendment, other than a provision that the Siddall specifications should be approved by both Engineer and Council.

The Lamb amendment to include Mr. Symons was beaten to this tune:

Yeas—Ald. Davies, Spence, Score, R. H. Graham, Lamb and Hallam—6.

Nays—Ald. Burns, Lynd, Dunn, Frankland, Hanlan, Steiner, Stewart, Russell, Frame, Bowman, J. J. Graham and Sheppard—12.

Telephone Girl Goes.

The Board of Control was for once favored by the fates. Everything they recommended floated, though Ald. Woods had no hand in it. Ald. Sheppard raised the point of order that the telephone girl recommendation was ultra vires, because no head of a department had recommended it.

"But it's a new department," was the Mayor's answer.

Ald. Hubbard, in the chair, however, sustained Ald. Sheppard's point. Ald. Burns appealed to the Mayor, who said there could be no head of her department, as it was entirely a new one. Ald. Sheppared appealed against the Mayor. The divisionon the question "shall the ruling of the chair be sustained?" was as follows:

Yeas—Ald. Burns, Lynd, Frankland, Davies, Hanlan, Spence, Stewart, Russell, Frame, Bowman, Score, Hallam and the Mayor—13.

Nays—Ald. Saunders, Hubbard, Steiner, Sheppard, Crane, R.H. Graham and Lamb—7.

Miss Redican is telephone operator at the new City Hall, and by the Mayor's ruling she has no chief. She is responsible to Council direct.

Bad Blood Comes Out.

Ald. Sheppard accused His Worship of repudiating a promise at the Property Committee that the successful young lady should first pass examination at the Bell Company's hands.

"I would never take your word again in the Property Committee," yelled the heated alderman to the Mayor.

"I never took your word anywhere," came an over-shoulder shot back.

"Well, I took yours once, and I've always regretted it." The incident closed with this little reminder of the inaugural meeting.

No Sunday Sprinklers.

Ald. Bowman again moved for Sunday sprinklers, and produced medical men, with spokesman Dr. Smuck, to show the evil effects from a sanitary aspect, of dust from the streets. But Ald. Hubbard sidetracked it into a legal question, as to whether the act of the Legislature permitting Sunday cars permitted Sunday sprinklers.

Ald. Bowman came back with a verbal report from the Solicitor that when it was a question of mercy or in the public interest it was legal. A straight vote was generally demanded, and Sunday sprinklers died again, by the following vote:

Yeas—Ald. Burns, Lynd, Davies, Hanlan, Steiner, Russell, Bowman and Sheppard—8.

Nays—Ald. Saunders, Dunn, Frankland, Hubbard, Spence, Stewart, Frame, Score, Crane, R. H. Graham, Lamb, Hallam and the Mayor—13.

Ald. Bowman will bring it up again.

$200 for an Air Line.

On motion of Ald. Lynd and Burns, there was added to the Board of Control report a grant of $200 to the Toronto-Georgian Bay air line committee to secure the facts and figures required.

Stood by the L. O. L.

Ald. Spence moved to reduce the grant of $500 to the L.O.L. Grand Lodge to $250, but only Ald. Hallam and Frankland supported him.

Dabbling in Local Improvement Again.

By securing the suspension of three rules, Ald. Spence had passed a motion, seconded by Ald. Russell, That Ald. Russell, Sheppard, Hubbard, Denison, Bowman and the mover, be a special committee to consider and report upon the question of the most desirable method of meeting the cost of constructing and repairing street pavements and sidewalks, giving particular attention to the local improvement system, and any modification of that plan or any substitute therefor, which they may consider would be in the public interest.

Dunn Vindicated.

For the sake of his own and the reputation of the cattle raisers and drovers of Ontario, Ald. Dunn has had the three cattle accused of being saturated with lumpjaw by the Montreal health authorities, destroyed. The result, Ald. Dunn claims, was a complete vindication. The test, even the eyes of Medical Health Officer Dr. Laberge's agent, sufficed to prove that none of the three animals were infected in any degree. The meat was pure, but the experiment cost Ald. Dunn $150.

In the course of the controversy Ald. Dunn took occasion to resent insinuations thrown out about Ontario cattle.

"Why," replied a Frenchman, with a shrug, "your own people say your cattle is diseased."

To understand this Ald. Dunn refers you back to his late row with Ald. Denison.

ON AND OFF THE STAGE

At the Toronto.

"The Highwayman," that much-eulogized and successful romantic comic opera, by De Koven and Smith, scored a brilliant success at the Toronto Opera House last night. The bright and catchy music and the opera, as presented by the clever company playing here, is well worth listening to, and deserves the high praise it has met with both in New York and elsewhere. The plot is interesting and admirably portrayed by this company, which is both strong, numerically, and excellently trained. Altogether "The Highwayman" is a play that is par excellence, and the management of the Toronto Opera House have been fortunate in securing such an attraction for their patrons. "The Highwayman" will be given at popular prices for the balance of the week, with the usual matinees.

At the Princess.

The Cummings Stock Co. opened their thirty-seventh week at the Princess Theatre last night with a creditable production of the interesting drama, "Monte Cristo." Mertimer Snow makes a thorough success of the leading character, and Miss Helen Byron has a most appreciable role as Mercedes. Tom Grady was as usual a favorite in a difficult character, and the rest of the members of the company appeared to good advantage. There was a fair-sized audience and the play will no doubt draw good houses for the rest of the week.

At the Empire.

The most popular vaudeville music house in the city is still being crowded at each performance. Babe Riel, clever as ever, in her dancing feature, still catches the boys. The third week of Miss Fanny Granger, introducing the most popular songs of the season, keeps the patrons in laughter. This is Miss Sadie Hart's second week of producing her own little clever novelty dancing, songs and acrobatic work in up-to-date style. The Zarrows, in their one-act comedy, "Realms of Fancy," are entertaining. Miss Jessie and Ed. Foley put in their first appearance this week in their specialty singing and dancing. A. Khern keeps up his reputation, producing his one-act comedy with burlesque company, "The Green Lobster," is very enjoyable. Anyone wishing a nice comfortable smoke or to see a nice vaudeville show should not miss the Empire this week.

The Nethersole Program.

Olga Nethersole has a big task before her during her Toronto engagement, when she will appear in four different plays, of three nights and one matinee, at the Grand Opera House. "The Profligate" is by that master playwright, Arthur W. Pinero. It is a most interesting play, showing "The Profligate" and his subsequent change of character when married to a pure and innocent girl. His past follies are shown to his wife, which cause a separation. Brokenhearted at defeat of a non-reconciliation, he poisons himself, his wife discovering him directly after the deed has been committed. The original program has been altered by wire by Mr. Marcus Meyer. It is now as follows: Thursday, "Camille," in costume of 1846; Friday, "Carmen"; Saturday matinee, "The Profligate"; Saturday night, "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray."

Spiering Quartet Concert.

In order to a thorough enjoyment of the concert by the Spiering Quartet this evening it is desirable that there be as little interruption as possible. To this end the ladies of the Chamber Music Association request that the audience be present at 8 o'clock. The doors will be closed, according to custom at these concerts, during the performance of each number, and, as the Beethoven Quartet opens the program, it is the wish of those interested that no one should miss hearing this beautiful composition of the great master.

At Home Once More.

Mr. Harold Crane, the popular vocalist, has returned to the city after a successful engagement on the road with W. H. Power's "Ivy Leaf" company, in which he played the part of Gerald Daly and also held the position of stage manager.

Col. Aylmer Going to School.

Ottawa, May 15.—Col. Aylmer, Adjutant-General of Canada, leaves on Saturday next for London, England, where he will be on the staff of Sir Redvers Buller, in command at Aldershot, and where he will take a short course in tactical fitness for command. Col. Aylmer will be absent for four months.

Irving Has Influenza.

London, May 15.—It became known today that the indisposition of Sir Henry Irving, who has been playing the title role of Sardou's drama, "Robespierre," at the Lyceum Theatre here, was caused by influenza.

Ald. Lynd presented a petition yards long and signed by Hon. N. Clarke Wallace, Mr. E. F. Clarke and Ald. Bowman among others, asking that Harry Woods be given a position as elevator man at new City Hall.

By motion of Ald. Crane the bicycle bylaw will be advertised and posted up throughout the city.
