CANADIAN FIRMS SUPPLY FOOD TO TRENCHES. MONTREAL FIRM SHIPPING REGULARLY TO FRANCE.

While many Canadian firms are busy manufacturing shells and army equipments for the Allies, it is interesting to note also that Canadian firms are shipping food products to the front. One Montreal firm is regularly shipping huge quantities of its product to France, the bulk of which is being consumed in the trenches. Recently over half a million tins of Paris Pate have been supplied to France and steady orders continue to pour in. The firm is receiving letters from Canadian soldiers saying how much they enjoy it.

Paris Pate is evidently a favorite in the trenches because it is nutritive, can easily be carried and is cooked, ready to eat.

Pleasing Program Delights Large Audience in St. Andrew's Hall.

Among the many June pupils' recitals, a notably artistic event was the program given last night before a large audience in St. Andrew's Hall by two advanced pupils of Miss Nora Little, Miss Edith Fetherston, soprano, and William A. Rossiter, baritone, assisted by Miss Mary Lyon of Detroit, reader, and Elmer Fetherston, flautist. While the flute obligato is something of a novelty in London recitals, it proved a charming acquisition to Miss Edith Fetherston's numbers, cleverly played as it was by her brother, Elmer Fetherston. A decided acquisition it also was to the duets sung by Miss Fetherston and Mr. Rossiter, and to the last "In a Garden of Roses" (Sanderson), especially.

Skillful training has given to Miss Fetherston's rather light but very clear, pure and sweet soprano voice, an admirable flexibility. Her enunciation is gratifyingly distinct and her idea of interpretation well developed. Her winsome personality, combined with her real ability, established her a favorite with her audience, and encores were demanded after each number.

Mr. Rossiter also had a most gratifying reception, his rendering of the aria from Elijah, "It Is Enough," and also his other difficult numbers reflecting greatest credit both on himself and Miss Little. His voice is a pleasing, resonant baritone. One of his most appreciated efforts was the Faust number (Gounod) "Avant de Quitter ces Lieux."

Miss Mary Lyon of Detroit, who is widely and favorably known throughout Canada as a reader, quite captivated with her charming personality, her musical voice and her entire sincerity.

Her reading of a heart-stirring act from Bayard Veiller's celebrated play, "Within the Law," evoked the highest imaginable tribute from the audience—silence for a full minute after the close before the storm of applause broke.

Very happy was the introduction of three or four selections with musical setting, the accompaniment, by the way, played with inimitable skill by Miss Lyon herself. These included a stirring patriotic poem, "Union Jack," a bit of negro philosophy, "Don't Be What You Ain't," and "De Bell of St. Michel" (Drummond), to the accompaniment of chimes and the Mendelssohn spring song.

Among the galaxy of celebrated composers represented on the program it was interesting to note the name of Gena Branscombe, a Canadian who has won for herself laurels as a song writer.

Beautiful bouquets were showered upon Miss Fetherston and Miss Lyon, and also upon the artist teacher and accompanist, Miss Little, who received many congratulations upon the success of the evening.

FLORISTS WILL CONVENE IN LONDON IN AUGUST

Ontario Growers Coming For Annual Gathering—Many Features Planned.

Ontario flower growers, lovers and exhibitors will gather in London for the annual gathering of florists, which, at a meeting of growers held in the board rooms last night, was scheduled for this city on August 3, 4 and 5.

Plans for the convention are still in embryo form, but it has been decided that one of the largest public halls in the city will be secured and leading speakers on horticultural subjects will be invited to give up-to-the-minute lectures along lines of interest.

In addition, a half day, or probably more, will be set aside for a picnic at Port Stanley, when the entire delegation will be taken for a trip to London's lake resort.

E. B. Hamilton is chairman of the local committee and W. Gammage is secretary. Frank Cheeseman will look after the exhibits which, it is expected, will be the feature of the convention.

LONDONER'S SUCCESS

Miss Lorna MacGillivray Scores at Commencement of Southern College.

The Memphis (Tennessee) Times of June 18 records the following of a young Londoner, who has just returned from college in the south:

There was a very large attendance at the sixty-fourth annual commencement exercises of St. Agnes' Academy held in the auditorium of the school on Thursday. The program was artistically rendered, and each number was received with enthusiastic appreciation by the large audience. The harp solo, "La Priere" (A. Hasselmans), by Miss Lorna MacGillivray of London, Canada, was specially pleasing, as was also her rendering of a reading entitled "The Buying of a Railway Ticket" (monologue), (Arnold). After each selection she was presented with baskets of beautiful roses.

Miss MacGillivray is a harp pupil of Angelo Cortese, also of London, who ranks among the famous musicians of the south.

INTERESTING NOTE FROM MISSING WATFORD MAN

Was Simply Injured in Head By Bursting Shell While Walking.

Watford, June 22.—The following letters from Capt. T. Swift, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Swift, Watford, received word Saturday he was missing, were written just before he went into the trenches for the last time:

CAPT. SWIFT.

Farmhouse,
June 4.

Dear People,—We are still in the same spot as we landed in on the 1st of June, but we're expecting to move again into the trenches tonight or tomorrow. I had a close call yesterday while in the city of ——, which is only about two miles from here. I went in with Capt. Wilkinson, my company commander, and lost track of him in the crowd, meeting Capt. Hahn shortly after. We were walking down the street when we heard two shells whistling, and they burst down the street in front of us a few hundred yards. We stopped a minute to figure out what was gonig on, and one hit the top corner of the building immediately across the street in front of us with a terrific roar. The bricks and glass came tumbling around us. The force of the explosion knocked us over against the wall and a small splinter of shell went through my cap, dazing me for a minute. We went into the house, and in a few minutes felt all O. K. again, and beat it back to camp. I didn't delay in the city any longer than I had to on my way back, I assure you. It seemed so ridiculous to be hit so far back, nearly five miles from the firing line, when I have been right up there and never been touched for several weeks.

June 6.—Went to church parade at 10:50, which was held in an orchard at Battalion Building. The doctor took the bandage off my head. It is quite alright with just a plaster on it. The church service was taken by Capt. Gordon. He took for his text that passage dealing with the prophet Elisha, who, on being surrounded by the Assyrians prayed that his enemies should become blind to his identity, after which he led the whole force of the enemy into the midst of the Israelites. He ended up very forcefully by saying that the man of prayer was the man of courage, and that just as much could be accomplished by prayer in the present day as in the days of Elisha. We expected to go into the trenches last night, but evidently they purpose giving us a little longer rest than usual on account of the long time we were in last time, when the work was so hard. The men were wonderful the last time in, as the shell fire was so hot all day that no one could sleep, and all night was spent in building up our trench and digging the new line in front of us.

As I look around me, I can see the old cook sitting in front of his cooker, which is a stove on wheels for field work. He's smoking his old pipe with the air of a general figuring out his plan for the morrow, while his assistant is busy gathering chips and wood for the next day's fire. One group of fellows is engaged in sewing on buttons and another in watching a little fire with a canteen on it very intently, to see that the new eggs in it do not burn. Needless to say, the farmer who wants to gather any eggs in this neighborhood must get up before breakfast, as the boys do not miss an opportunity of having an egg for breakfast. The old farmer has just come through the gap with his poor old mule hitched to the wagon. After a day in the fields the poor old mule looks as though night had not come too soon. I must stop now; the mail is leaving. Affectionately,

TOM.

WE ARE QUITE WILLING TO ADMIT that there never was a shoe like the ASTORIA for men or women. It is made in London by men who know how, and of the very best leathers obtainable. Why, the makers would not think of putting inferior leather or service into an Astoria for fear of jeopardizing the reputation they have built up by years of conscientious shoemaking. We are the sole agents in London, and will be only too glad to show you an ASTORIA at any time. They range in price for men at $5, $5.50 and $6, or we will make them to order at $6, $6.50 and $7, according to the leather, and for women at $4, $5, $5.50 and $6.
