MR. BLAKE ON THE TRAMP

[Mail.]

We presume Mr. Blake is now engaged in preparing the variations to his Montreal and Toronto speeches which are necessary to adapt them to the Maritime Provinces. The variations will probably be little more than the introduction of such appeals to unpatriotic sectionalism as he may imagine will be acceptable in certain localities. In Nova Scotia he will denounce the duty on breadstuffs, and say little about that on coal, just as in Ontario he denounces the duty on coal, but says little about that on breadstuffs, which is the farmer's share of the National Policy. While he aspires to rule the Dominion, he will descend to preach sectionalism, which means disunion, wherever he may think that his doing so will influence a vote in favour of his party. His Marine orations are easily foreshadowed. He will most probably begin with a wearisome rehash of his anti-syndicate speeches. Upon that subject he could not excite the smallest interest in an Ontario audience, for the people of this province are satisfied that the contract for building the Canada Pacific railway is a judicious contract, and that the cost of the work to the country will be many millions of dollars less than the Government of which Mr. Blake was a member advertised its willingness to pay for its construction.

He will next extol that base manœuvre known as "the second syndicate." To illustrate to the people of the Maritime Provinces, who may not be as familiar with it as our western people, we will suppose that the agent of a act: John or Halifax merchant had closed a contract with a respectable contractor for building a house, and that after the price had been become publicly known an individual of shady reputation had approached the agent, and offered to build the house for ten per cent. less than he had contracted for—would not the agent, if a man of honour, have replied that he had closed the contract, and that though his principal had not affixed his seal to it, yet that unless he did so he would resign his agency, as "his usefulness would be gone?" If the merchant had confidence in his agent, he would, of course, ratify the contract. The agent, the contractor, the individual of shady reputation, and the merchant represent, respectively, the Government, the syndicate, the second syndicate, and Parliament. It is thus made obvious that had Parliament resolved to entertain the proposition of the second syndicate, the result must have been the retirement of the present Government: the return to power of Messrs. Blake, Mackenzie, Cartwright and others, who had proved themselves incapable administrators; the reversal of the National Policy, involving the prostration of all Dominion industries; the abandonment of important sections of the Canada Pacific railway; the probable postponement of the whole undertaking; a repetition of the extravagant mal-administration of the Mackenzie regime, and a return of the widespread depression that prevailed during that, the darkest period in Canadian history since confederation. High-minded men would not have formed or joined the "second syndicate," nor received a proposition from it, but Messrs. Blake and Anglin welcomed it with delight.—They may have suggested it. They appeared to think that it would be the making of their political fortunes. A judge sitting on the bench of one of the Superior Courts of Ontario, reviewing evidence given by a prominent member of the second syndicate, said that his evidence was as incredible as if he had said that he had been immersed in the lake and had come out dry. Seven of the twenty one members were defeated, unseated, or disqualified Grits. These facts will serve to enable parties at a distance to estimate the character of the "second syndicate."

Mr. Blake will be verbose upon finance, trade, commerce, manufactures, and the National Policy, but he is not at home on these subjects, and when discoursing upon them he cannot conceal that he is ill at ease. On these and cognate questions he is more likely to be speculative than practical. He may enunciate again some of the ideas of "Empirius" upon the Federation of the Empire, but if Mr Blake was not an unpractical man he would know that commercial federation must precede political federation of the empire.—We doubt his exposing himself again to ridicule by dilating upon the wrongs of the unrepresented minorities throughout the world, but he cannot be expected to suppress altogether his doctrinairism.

* * * *

In New Brunswick he will find charges of bribery and corruption hanging over the heads of his friends for their conduct in Carleton, and he will reach Nova Scotia in time almost to hear the echo of the cheers that ascended to celebrate the splendid Waterloo day victories which were won for the Government in that province—victories which we may say he did nothing to avert.

* * * *

In Prince Edward Island Mr. Pope's illness may prevent his attending political meetings, but he has friends who will represent and defend him against Mr Blake's attacks.

Mr Blake proposes to invade the Maritime Provinces for the purpose, ostentatiously avowed of endeavouring to subvert the influence of the present leaders, and we take it for granted that what he may have to say against them individually, or against the policy of the Administration of which they are leading members, he will desire to speak in their presence, when they will have an opportunity of answering him and of defending themselves. To decline to encounter them in the discussion of public affairs, and simply to recite orations which he is unwilling to have answered on the spot, would be repeating the spectacle of political and oratorical poltroonery of last winter, when he convened and addressed public meetings upon the subject of the Canadian Pacific railway contract, but refused to allow Sir Charles Tupper to take part in the discussion and correct the misrepresentations in which Mr Blake's system of tactics is daily and disreputably indulged. Whatever may be Mr. Blake's intention, we doubt that the fair minded men "down by the sea" will allow their faithful representatives, their long trusted leaders, to be impeached in their absence, in their enforced exclusion from meetings in the provinces which they represent.

VOLUME III. CHATHAM, N. B., JULY 2, 1881. NO. 99.

AN ELECTRIC RAILWAY.

From Harper's Weekly.

The electric railway which Dr Werner Siemens has constructed in Berlin, between the suburb of Lichtenfeld and the Radettenhaus, is now regularly open for passengers, and is giving great satisfaction. The rails are of the ordinary railway pattern, but the guage is only three feet three inches A single car is propelled by the current at an average speed of nine miles an hour, though this rate can be doubled if necessary. The original model for this line, is now at work at the Crystal Palace, Sydenham, as an attraction for visitors; but it is probable that electric railways before many years are past, may supersede steam as a motive power.

The electric railway at Berlin is about a mile and a half long No difficulty has been experienced in using one rail as the positive and the other as the negative conductor. The car is constructed to hold twenty persons, the dynamo machine being placed underneath the car, and transmitting its movement to the wheels by spiral steel springs.

Over any other system worked by steam or compressed air, the electrical has the advantage that no heavy machinery has to be carried about to set the train in motion. Several carriages, each with a dynamo machine, can be joined to one train, and by this distribution of motive power much steeper inclines can be overcome than when the same train is drawn by a single locomotive. In addition to the ordinary brakes, means can be provided to short circuit the machines on the carriages, and to cause them to act as very powerful brakes. The use of large stationary engines reduces the amount of fuel necessary to develop a certain power on the travelling carriage, and if water falls can be utilized, the cost of working these railways can be further diminished.

THE HALIFAX FISHERY AWARD.

It is learned at the State Department, Washington, that the report which is being made, relative to frauds in the Halifax award, by ex-Representative Newberry, Professor Youle Hind, and an officer of the State Department, will be completed next week, and there is reason to think that its conclusions will furnish a satisfactory basis for the Secretary of State to open negotiations with regard to the matter.

CARRIAGE BUILDER,
Light Driving waggons, Concord, Piano Boxes, Express Carts etc. Trimming and repairing a speciality. Best stock kept always on hand. Come and inspect.
I have also the sole right to use
Young's New Axle Cutter
Patented in the United States and Dominion of Canada. We would call the attention of all owners of carriages or waggons to this Machine and the benefits derived from its use. All waggon axles after being two or more years in use become worn till they become loose, requiring the use of leather washers to take up the lateral play; the washers soon filling with sand, cause the axles to wear much faster, unt the axle is soon ruined, or nearly so.
THE REMEDY.
By the aid of this very simple machine, the shoulder for the axle nut is cut back and the thread extended, allowing the nut to be screwed farther on, causing the wheel to turn as evenly as when new. Give us a call before purchasing elsewhere. A Paint shop is in connection with the Factory.
☞ Orders respectfully solicited and satisfaction guaranteed.

The Great American Remedy for COUGHS, COLDS, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, LOSS OF VOICE, HOARSENESS AND THROAT AFFECTIONS.
Prepared from the finest Red Spruce Gum. (Delicious Flavor.) Balsamic, Soothing, Expectorant and Tonic. Superior to any medicine offered for all the above complaints. A scientific combination of the Gum which exudes from the Red Spruce tree—without doubt the most valuable native Gum for Medicinal purposes.
Every one has heard of the wonderful effects of the Spruces and the Pines in cases of Lung Disease.
In France the physicians regularly send their consumptive patients to the pine woods and order them to drink a tea made from the Spruce tops.
GRAY'S SYRUP OF RED SPRUCE GUM.
In this preparation the Gum never separates, and all its anti-spasmodic, expectorant, tonic, and balsamic properties are preserved.
This Syrup, carefully prepared at a low temperature, contains a large quantity of the finest picked Gum in complete solution.
Its remarkable power in relieving certain forms of Bronchitis, and its almost specific effect in curing obstinate hacking Coughs, is now well known to the public at large.
Sold by all respectable chemists. Price, 25 and 50 cts. a bottle.
The words "Syrup of Red Spruce Gum" constitute our Registered Trade Mark, and our wrapper and bottle are also registered.
