n in our power to say anything good of [illegible] German, [illegible] to m[illegible] weather [illegible] rains [illegible] not [illegible] and't [illegible] days [illegible] are no[illegible] conners [illegible] opening [illegible] expected [illegible] are proverbial[illegible] clear and colder.—Kingston Herald.

[redacted]

REAL, MONDAY, MARCH 20, 1837.

[redacted] our notice of the arrival of the ship [illegible] in our last, and the news brought by [illegible] ligence has been received of the [illegible] at New York of the ships Toronto, 1st [illegible] ry from London, and Poland, 6th from [illegible] The latter brings London dates to [illegible] h, and Paris to the 7th February. [illegible] s no news of particular moment; and [illegible] ture is [illegible] a fo[illegible] t be [illegible] made [illegible] g. Pre[illegible] o the [illegible] again [illegible] y it sim[illegible] —that end being the permanency [illegible] democratic institutions: we must award [illegible] he praise of being both able and pa[illegible]

The General is a thorough demo[illegible] nd he acts consistently when he enun[illegible] the most levelling principles, when he [illegible] a decided hostility to every thing in the [illegible] of monopoly, and when he attempts to [illegible] way every intervening impediment be[illegible] the "sovereign people" and the legis[illegible] and executive bodies, that are intended [illegible] ect the wishes of the people and by de[illegible] n to wield their power. Whether it [illegible] sible to carry out such views to their [illegible] extent [illegible] quite [illegible] ANDREW [illegible] are [illegible] at the [illegible] tution [illegible] in this [illegible] we ha[illegible] of a s[illegible] d his [illegible] ly effac[illegible]

[redacted]

often wonder if those who adopt, [illegible] ale, ANDREW JACKSON's democratic [illegible] nes, and insist upon their perfect appli[illegible] y to this colony, (although they have [illegible] to be only partially practicable even [illegible] United States) ever ask themselves [illegible] estion, if the inhabitants of the two [illegible] ries are precisely similar in point of im[illegible] nce, virtue, &c. It is obvious that the [illegible] ter of a people is the first thing which [illegible] to be considered in chalking out for [illegible] a constitution of government. Our [illegible] tical democrats seem entirely to over[illegible] his necessary and intimate connection [illegible] on the [illegible] ure is [illegible] a fo[illegible] t be [illegible] made [illegible] g. Pre[illegible] o the [illegible] again [illegible] y it sim[illegible]

[redacted]

[illegible] d he acts consistently when he enun[illegible] the most levelling principles, when he [illegible] a decided hostility to every thing in the [illegible] of monopoly, and when he attempts to [illegible] way every intervening impediment be[illegible] the "sovereign people" and the legis[illegible] and executive bodies, that are intended [illegible] ect the wishes of the people and by de[illegible] n to wield their power. Whether it [illegible] sible to carry out such views to their [illegible] extent [illegible] quite [illegible] ANDREW [illegible] are [illegible] at the [illegible] tution [illegible] in this [illegible] we ha[illegible] of a s[illegible] d his [illegible] ly effac[illegible]

[redacted]

[illegible] ale, ANDREW JACKSON's democratic [illegible] nes, and insist upon their perfect appli[illegible] y to this colony, (although they have [illegible] to be only partially practicable even [illegible] United States) ever ask themselves [illegible] estion, if the inhabitants of the two [illegible] ries are precisely similar in point of im[illegible] nce, virtue, &c. It is obvious that the [illegible] ter of a people is the first thing which [illegible] to be considered in chalking out for [illegible] a constitution of government. Our [illegible] tical democrats seem entirely to over[illegible] his necessary and intimate connection [illegible]

[redacted]

[illegible] d his [illegible] ly effac[illegible] often wonder if those who adopt, [