Virgie's Inheritance.

"You have seen my little daughter," Virgie resumed, after a moment, with a tender, even pathetic inflection; "she is also your brother's child, and the heiress of Heathdale—"

"Does that offend you?" she asked, as Lady Linton shrank again, as if from a blow, at these words. "It is to be regretted, but it is a fact that nothing can change, and she will one day claim her own, even though her mother is no longer the wife of her father, and I trust that she will then do honor to the name and position which she will assume. You may rest assurred that I will attend most faithfully to her education, for it has been and shall be, my chief object in life to make her worthy in every way to be received as a representative of the 'ancient and honored house of Heath.' Pardon me if I seem ironical," Virgie interposed, a slight smile flitting over her lips as she quoted this sentence, which had been burned into her brain so long ago; "but I cannot forget the cruel things which you wrote to your friend Mrs. Farnum, ten years ago. Do you blame me for refusing to clasp, in pretended friendship, the hand that penned them? or for shrinking from the kisses of one who so scorned and mocked me; who offered me money, as if my honor was a thing to be bought, my wretchedness and despair something to be alleviated with gold? You wrote of me as 'that person'—'that girl,' as if I belonged to a lower order of humanity; but, madam, my grandmother was an English gentle-woman like yourself, and perchance—though I assume nothing of the kind—there is as good blood in my veins as in your own. "But," with a weary sigh, "perhaps I am wrong to recriminate thus. I am afraid I have been inconsiderate of your weakness, but my words have come unbidden. I wish you no ill. I think that I have proved that during the past week. I wish your brother no ill, if he is happy in his present relation; far be it from me to wish him to suffer as I have suffered, although he has done me the greatest wrong it is possible for a man to do a woman. It is a strange freak of fate, Lady Linton, this meeting between you and me, and yet I believe I do not regret that we have seen and known each other; it has served to show you what the woman, whom your brother wooed and won, is like; that although she may not have belonged to the titled aristocracy of a kingdom, she was at least a true-hearted daughter of a grand republic, and in no way his inferior in character or intellect. We may never meet again, and we may; I cannot tell, but some day the wrong that has been done me will be righted through the justice which must and shall be rendered to my daughter."

As she ceased Virgie bowed gravely and then turned and quietly left the room, leaving Lady Linton more astonished and browbeaten—though it had been done in the most courteous and dignified way imaginable—than she had ever been before. For several minutes she sat staring, in a dazed way, at the door which had been so softly shut upon the graceful, retreating form, and almost feeling as if the whole interview must have been some hallucination of the brain.

That lovely woman—proud, beautiful, cultivated—with that magnificent form and carriage, the "low-born girl" whom she supposed her brother had married! It seemed impossible! She was so entirely different from what she had conceived her to be.

Why, this brilliant creature was fitted to grace a throne—to shine a star in the highest circles of even her own country, of which she was so arrogantly proud, and she, by her cunning plotting, her falsehood and calumny, had debarred her from her home, from all the rights which legally belonged to her; she had brought shame and dishonor upon her heart, and, in so doing, had made her own brother's home desolate, his life almost a barren waste.

That beautiful child too—that dainty, graceful, golden-haired fairy, with her mother's delicate features and her father's eyes; yes, they were strikingly like Sir William's own—she had tried to cheat her out of her heritage, and thus the grand old house at Heathdale was childless and was likely to remain so until this brave, determined woman came to demand justice, and to claim for her daughter the respect and honor that had been denied her as a wife.

She knew that she would do it if she lived; those quiet, resolute tones still sang in her ears, and she fell back upon her pillows weak and faint, heart-sick and terrified and for the moment, filled with remorse for the sin of the past.

She fully realized at last the enormity of her treachery and wickedness—the hardness of her heart, the selfishness of her nature.

She had been utterly heartless when she had attempted to crush the lovely girl whom her brother had won, and now the basely wronged woman had turned and heaped coals of fire upon her head. She had nobly put aside all sense of injury, and, knowing full well that she was serving an enemy, had saved her life and then given her the kindest attention and tenderest care during her illness.

Lady Linton knew that she should carry a burdened heart to her grave on account of it.

Fired with some sudden impulse, she started up and sharply rang her bell.

The woman of the house came to her almost immediately.

"Where is she?" demanded the invalid, wildly.

"Who?" asked her attendant, surprised by her excessive agitation.

"The lady who has been so kind to me. Call her back! Call her at once!"

"She has gone. The carriage has just driven away from the cottage where she stopped."

Lady Linton sank back again, with a groan.

She was too late. She had meant to do a good deed. Under the impulse of the moment, and with a feeling of gratitude animating her, overcome with admiration for a rarely beautiful woman, and a sense of superiority; with a vision of that lovely, dark-eyed child still before her, she had resolved to make a full confession of all her wrong-doing, try to effect a reconciliation between those two who, she knew, still devotedly loved each other, and thus atone, as far as was possible, for the sin she had committed.

But the opportunity was gone, and when she came to think of it more calmly afterward, she began to upbraid herself for her momentary weakness, and to be glad that she had not committed herself.

Her good angel fled, her better nature was overcome, and she grew harder, more bitter than before.

"There will be some way out of it," she muttered, as she recalled Virgie's threat to claim her child's heritage. "I will fight it out to the bitter end, I am glad I did not make a fool of myself."

CHAPTER XXXIII.

AFTER EIGHT YEARS.

Eight years have passed since Lady Linton, with her son and daughter, her cousin William Heath, and his family, visited America; since she so nearly fell a victim to that railway disaster, and was rescued by the woman whom she had hated, whom she now hated a hundred-fold.

It is a beautiful winter morning, and in the sunny, elegantly appointed dining-room at Heathdale an interesting group of five persons is gathered around the bountifully spread breakfast table.

At one end sits Sir William Heath, a handsome, dignified gentleman a little above 40, yet hardly looking that, for the fleeting years have touched him but lightly, in spite of the great sorrow which had lain so heavily upon his heart and robbed his life and home of its chief joys—the love and presence of a fond, true wife, the patter of little feet, and the happy laughter and merry chatter of childish voices.

Opposite him, and serving coffee, is his sister, Lady Linton, who has changed greatly during the last eight years. She has grown old and wrinkled, and her face has hardened, if that could be possible. There is a cynical expression about her thin mouth, and her eyes are cold and critical in their expression, excepting when they rest upon her children, who now sit beside her, one at her right, the other at her left hand.

Percy Linton had done credit to the promise of his youth, and is a fine young man of 21, honest, noble, and thoughtful beyond his years. He is lately home from Oxford where he achieved great honors, and is now planning to return to the neglected and impoverished estate which his father's predigality nearly ruined, with the intention of reclaiming it and restoring it to something of the thrift and prosperity for which it was noted under the care of his grandfather, for whom he is named, and whose mantle seems to have fallen upon him:

His mother is not at all in sympathy with these plans. She wishes her son to adopt a public career. She still has strong hopes that he will fall heir to her brother's title and property, in which case there would be no need of his spending the best years of his life in striving to redeem a heavily mortgaged estate.

Sir William, however, heartily approves of his noble resolve, and promises to assist him in every possible way, and, with this encouragement, he has decided to devote himself to Linton Grange.

(To be Continued.)

Rev. Sylvanus Lane.

Of the Cincinnati M. E. Conference, makes a good point when he says: "We have for years used Hood's Sarsaparilla in our family of five, and find it fully equal to all that is claimed for it. Some people are greatly prejudiced against patent medicines, but how the patent can hurt a medicine and not a machine is a mystery to me." g

The suggestions as to costume that come in articles on Hawaii indicate that annexation would be something of an offset to the crinoline invasion that is imminent.

Amans' wife should always be the same especially to her husband; but if she is weak and nervous, and uses Carter's Iron Pills, she cannot be, for they will make her "feel like a different person," at least so they all say, and their husbands say so too.

"When it comes to revenue cutters," said old Bullion, snipping off another coupon, "there's nothing like a good pair of shears."

Nothing impure or injurious contaminates the popular antidote to pain, throat and lung remedy and general corrective, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. It may be used without the slightest apprehension of any other than salutary consequences. Coughs, rheumatism, earache, bruises, cuts and sores succumb to its action.

Florida has had to take her orange money to buy herself an overcoat this year.

Every dog has his day, but the nights belong to the cats and the clubmen.

It Has No Equal.

DEAR SIR,—I have used your Hagyard's Yellow Oil for many years, and have found it unequaled for burns, cuts, etc. MARY A. COLLETT, Erin, Ont.

The greater part of a self-willed man's estate usually goes to the lawyers.

Men are most liable to shoot off their mouths in a war of words.

Indorsed by the Leaders.

When a remedy is indorsed by ministers, editors, merchants, farmers and leading men of all classes, it is strong evidence that that remedy has great merit and does what is claimed for it. Such a remedy is Burdock Blood Bitters, its wonderful success as a cure for dyspepsia, bad blood, etc., is well known to old and young.

A young man was seen lately with two heads on his shoulders. It was not a curiosity, as one belonged to his sweetheart.

When in Despair.

When in despair of being cured of lung troubles, there is still a hope, and a strong hope of perfect cure in Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. This medicine cures even after all others have failed, and no one suffering from coughs, colds, asthma, bronchitis hoarseness, etc., need despair of cure while Norway Pine Syrup is obtainable.

"No," said good old Mrs. Jenkins, "I haven't any faith in these new-fangled speifics. I've buried eight children in my time, and the good old-fashioned yarbs is plenty good enough for me."

Among the pains and aches cured with marvelous rapidity with Dr. Thomas Eclectric Oil, is ear ache. The young are especially subject to it, and the desirability of this Oil as a family remedy is enhanced by the fact that it is admirably adapted not only to the above ailment, but also to the hurts, disorders of the bowels, and affections of the throat, in which the young are specially subject.

Hicks—Is that your dog? I suppose you consider him A1? Wicks—Oh, no; he is K9.

Every unmarried woman says she wouldn't stand it, and every married woman does stand it.

A Wonderful Cure.—Mr. David Smith, Coe Hill, Ont., writes: "For the benefit of others I wish to say a few words about Northrop & Lyman's VEGETABLE DISCOVERY. About a year ago I took a very severe cough, had a virulent sore on my lips, was bad with dyspepsia, constipation and general debility. I tried almost every conceivable remedy, outwardly and inwardly, to cure the sore but all to no purpose. I had often thought of trying Northrop & Lyman's VEGETABLE DISCOVERY, so I got a bottle and when I had used about one half the sore showed evident signs of healing. By the time that bottle was done it had about disappeared and my general health was improving fast. I was always of a very bilious habit and had used quinine and lemon juice with very little affect. But since using three bottles of the VEGETABLE DISCOVERY the biliousness is entirely gone and my general health is excellent. I am 60 years old. Parties using it should continue it for some time after they think they are cured. It is by far the best health restorer I know." 3

FRESH FROZEN SEA FISH.

SALMON,
MACKEREL,
BASS.

FITZGERALD, SCANDRETT & CO.,
169 DUNDAS STREET.

THE ONTARIO

Loan and Debenture Company.

The 22nd annual meeting of the shareholders of the Ontario Loan and Debenture Company was held at the company's office in this city on the 8th inst.

The following shareholders were present, viz.: Messrs. Joseph Jeffery, John McClary, William Bowman, William McDonough, W. R. Hobbs, J. M. McWhinney, secretary-treasurer of the Synod of Huron; Thomas Partridge, representing Forest City Lodge, I. O. O. F.; Rev. Wm. Birks, Rev. James Gordon, A. M. Smart, A. S. Emery, John G. Richter, A. O. Jeffery.

The president, Mr. Joseph Jeffery, occupied the chair; the manager, Mr. William F. Bullen, acting as secretary.

The annual report, as follows, was taken as read:

Twenty-Second Annual Report of the Ontario Loan and Debenture Company.

(Incorporated and Established A. D. 1870.)

LONDON, Jan. 23, 1893.

The directors have much pleasure in submitting the annual report and balance sheet of the company for the year ending Dec. 31, 1892, which completes the 22nd year of a successful business career.

Rates of interest on the most desirable class of real estate securities have been very low all through the year; the net earnings of the company show a slight decline, which is due primarily to the expense of replacing maturing, and placing a large amount of new sterling debentures; the expenses connected therewith amount to over $9,000, which is about $4,300 in excess of the previous year, and has all been paid out of, and charged against, the earnings of the year.

The net profits of the year, after paying or providing for all interest, charges, income tax, expenses of placing new debentures and all expenses of management, etc., amount to	$98,835 39
To which add balance brought forward from previous year	266 32
Making a total of	$99,101 71
Which has been appropriated as follows—
Two half-yearly dividends at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum	$84,000 00
Added to reserve fund	15,000 00
Balance carried forward	101 71
Total	$99,101 71

The reserve fund now amounts to $415,000.

The sum of $702,284 has been loaned, and $652,180 principal and interest has been repaid during the year.

The company have properties unsold on their hands on which their claims amount to $29,728; these have been taken into account at the end of the year at such figures as we are satisfied they will realize.

The general agents of the company in Edinburgh, Messrs. Mylne and Cook, C. A., have been very active in placing the debentures of the company during the year; the increase has been £101,736.

The usual monthly audit of the books of the company has been made, and the duly audited balance sheet for the year is herewith submitted.

JOSEPH JEFFERY,
President.

Twenty-Second Annual Report for the Year Ending Dec. 31, 1892.

REVENUE ACCOUNT.

Expenditures—
Interest on sterling debentures	$64,496 00
Interest on currency	5,465 68
Savings bank interest	19,867 53
Expenses connected with sterling debentures	9,040 66
Commission and expenses in connection with loans	3,860 35
Expenses of management	15,827 83
Income tax paid	1,680 00
Dividend No. 57, paid July 2, 1892	42,000 00
Dividend No. 58, due Jan. 2, 1893	42,000 00
Carried to reserve fund	15,000 00
Balance carried forward	101 71
Total	$219,339 76
Receipts—
Balance from last year	$ 266 32
Interest earned on mortgages, etc.	219,073 44
Total	$219,339 76

Financial Statement.

ASSETS.

Mortgages on real estate	$3,523,079 34
Loans on debentures	105,427 00
Loans on this company's stock (in no case exceeding par value)	36,060 46
Office premises (freehold)	72,000 00
Cash with Bank of Scotland	44,555 49
Cash with the Molsons Bank	369,256 78
Cash with the Traders' Bank of Canada	4,602 05
		$4,154,982 02

LIABILITIES.

Liabilities to the public—
Sterling debentures	$1,860,004 32
Accrued interest on same	17,880 00
Currency debentures	140,348 00
Accrued interest on same	2,140 18
Savings bank deposits	477,507 81
		$2,497,880 31
Surplus		$1,657,101 71
Liabilities to the shareholders—
Capital stock paid up	$1,200,000 00
Dividend No. 58 (since paid)	42,000 00
Reserve fund $400,000
Carried to do. 15,000	415,000 00
Balance at credit of revenue account	101 71
		$1,657,101 71

To the Shareholders of the Ontario Loan and Debenture Company:

We hereby certify that we have audited the books and accounts of the Ontario Loan and Debenture Company for the year 1892, comprising a monthly cash audit and the verification of the postings and balances in all the company's books, and we find the whole correct and in accordance with the above statements. We have also examined the securities and find them in order.

GEO. F. JEWELL, F.C.A., } Auditors.
A. S. EMERY,

London, Ontario, Jan. 19, 1893.

The president, in moving the adoption of the report, said: It is with pleasure that I move the adoption of the 22nd annual report, which no doubt has been carefully looked into by all present and needs no lengthened explanation. The company has made steady and sure progress, and our loans have, as heretofore, been confined to high-class securities.

In consequence of the low rates obtainable on first-class investments, and the fact that the expenses connected with placing sterling debentures, in consequence of the large amount sold during the year, amounts to over $9,000, together with the fact that we were unable to keep all our funds invested, have somewhat diminished our earnings, and we are not able to place as much to reserve as usual, but I am confident that the shareholders must feel gratified, that we have, notwithstanding the above, been able to carry, after paying our dividends and all expenses, $15,000 to our reserve fund, which now amounts to the handsome sum of $415,000.

I am sure that the shareholders will feel better satisfied to know that our investments are first-class, even though we have not been able to make large earnings, than they would be to see larger earnings made by taking less desirable securities. We have lately invested a limited amount in Manitoba, but our business there has been confined to a few choice loans in the city of Winnipeg, which we were enabled to secure by lending at lower rates than rule there.

I am pleased to be able to inform you that the company's credit stands very high in Great Britain, and that we are able to borrow at as low rates as any company in the Dominion.

In consequence of the large amount of debentures placed during the year, we have been obliged to advise our correspondents not to place any more until they are instructed to do so.

It is satisfactory to be able to state that interest and repayments on loans have, with few exceptions, been promptly met, which is evidenced by the fact that the sum of $652,180, principal and interest, has been repaid during the year, being an amount equal to over one-sixth of our total investments.

I have great pleasure in assuring the shareholders that our securities are in good shape. Our investments, with the exception before mentioned, being in the best parts of Western Ontario, and secured by ample margin.

Your directors realize that the present is a time in which it is particularly desirable to exercise great caution in making investments, and they prefer to make sure, steady and safe progress rather than to seek to largely extend business.

On account of depression in values we find it necessary to have all valuations made by local agents checked by our inspectors before the money is advanced. This entails large expense but insures safety.

If any shareholder desires further information I shall be happy to furnish it.

The adoption of the report was seconded by the vice-president, Mr. John McClary, in a few well-chosen remarks, and the motion was carried unanimously.

The retiring directors, Messrs. Joseph Jeffery, John McClary, William Bowman, William McDonough and W. R. Hobbs were re-elected for the ensuing year.

Messrs. George F. Jewell, F.C.A., and A. S. Emery were reappointed auditors for the ensuing year.

At a subsequent meeting of the board Mr. Joseph Jeffery was re-elected president and Mr. John McClary vice-president.

WILLIAM F. BULLEN,
Manager.

THE OPEN FORUM.

A Good Suggestion.

To the Editor of the ADVERTISER:

Some years ago, before the division and sale of Tecumseh Park into building lots, the matter of retaining it for an athletic ground was discussed. At that time those who were interested in the park probably did not feel like putting more capital into it and fitting it for an athletic ground on account of the loss sustained through the baseball team, and as no other gentlemen came forward to take their places the matter was let drop.

Now, what the young men of this city need is an athletic park, with space for baseball, cricket, lacrosse, etc., and a good bicycle track. Nearly all the towns and cities around us—Sarnia, Seaforth, Woodstock, Hamilton, etc., have made provision of this kind. Why are we behind our neighbors in this respect? If we had good attractions in the way of bicycle races, baseball, etc., the crowds would not be rushing out of the city on holidays, as at present, and carrying money to other towns that might easily be kept at home. Will not the Athletic Club or some of our business men take this matter up? Now is the time to start in order that we may have the grounds for next summer. Trusting you will give this matter space in your columns, I am, yours truly, ATHLETE.

London, Feb. 11.

25 DOSES 25¢ THE GREAT TAKE THE BEST COUGH CURE 25¢ 50¢ & $1.00 SHILOH'S CURE.

Cures Consumption, Coughs, Croup, Sore Throat. Sold by all Druggists on a Guarantee. For a Lame Side, Back or Chest Shiloh's Porous Plaster will give great satisfaction.—25 cents.

SHILOH'S VITALIZER.
Mrs. T. S. Hawkins, Chattanooga, Tenn., says: "Shiloh's Vitalizer "SAVED MY LIFE." I consider it the best remedy for a debilitated system I ever used." For Dyspepsia, Liver or Kidney trouble it excels. Price 75 cts.

SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY.
Have you Catarrh? Try this Remedy. It will relieve and Cure you. Price 50 cts. This Injector for its successful treatment is furnished free. Shiloh's Remedies are sold by us on a guarantee to give satisfaction.
Sold by W. J. Strong London, Ontario.

THE Very Best

THE CENTRAL BUSINESS COLLEGE, Toronto, and the Central Business College, Stratford, are the leading business training schools of Canada. Our Toronto college compares favorably with the large American colleges located in Chicago, Cleveland, New York, Boston, Pittsburg and Philadelphia. It is undoubtedly the largest and finest equipped business school in the Dominion. The Stratford college occupies the foremost position among the best schools outside of Toronto.

OUR BUSINESS PRACTICE—Having two schools under our control we are able to offer to our patrons every advantage in obtaining the latest and freshest ideas of conducting business. Students in one college transact business with the pupils in the other school. This is a new system and far surpasses the old methods. There is nothing like it between any other Canadian schools.

SATISFACTION GUARANTEED or tuition fees refunded. As far as we are able to learn, we were the first to make this offer. We offer our students everything that is strictly first-class, therefore we are not afraid to make that statement. Our course of study is very practical and very thorough. Our teachers are the best to be found in this country.

SPECIAL INDUCEMENTS—Some institutions offer to pay your fare, some offer cheap tuition and some guarantee situations to all graduates. We are proud to state that we secure pupils without resorting to such methods. Thorough work is the great magnet which draws students to our schools. Our popularity is increasing day by day. Our schools are highly recommended by our large number of successful graduates and by the representative business, professional and agricultural men throughout Canada.

BUSINESS MEN applied to us so frequently during January for office help that we had to refuse them, as all of our graduates who desire lucrative employment, were now in good paying positions. Students admitted at any time. Write for catalogues.

SHAW & ELLIOTT, Principals. zt

WYATT, SON & CHAMBERS
Stoves, Ranges, etc.
ART COUNTESS BASEBURNER
Every one a double heater.
Furnace work a specialty.
All kinds of galvanized and tin work.

LEADING HOTELS.

THE TECUMSEH HOUSE
LONDON, ONT.
Largest and Best Hotel in Western Ontario.
Large sample rooms free; no charge for baggage; elevator day and night. Rates, $2 50 and $2 per day. Special rates for boarders and excursion parties. C. W. DAVIS, Proprietor.

IN A DAY.

LAWRNCE, KANS., U.S.A., Aug. 9, 1888.
George Patterson fell from a second-story window, striking a fence. I found him using
ST. JACOBS OIL.
He used it freely all over his bruises. I saw him next morning at work. All the blue spots rapidly disappeared, leaving neither pain, scar nor swelling. C. K. NEUMANN, M. D.
"ALL RIGHT! ST. JACOBS OIL DID IT."

TAKE NOTICE.

Separate "N—O—T—I—C—E" and use the letters to spell as many words as you can by using each of the letters as many times as you wish, either backwards or forwards, but you must not use the same letter more than once in any one word. It is said THIRTY-FIVE small English words can be spelled correctly from the six letters contained in "Notice." EXAMPLE: Ice, nice, etc. How many can you make?

$200.00 IN CASH PRIZES. To the first person sending us ten words made from letters contained in "Notice," we will give $10 in cash; to the first person sending us eleven words as above, we will give $11 in cash; to the first person sending us twelve words we will give $12 in cash; to the first person sending us thirteen words we will give $13 in cash; to the first person sending us fourteen words we will give $14 in cash; to the first person sending us fifteen words we will give $15 in cash; to the first person sending us twenty or more words we will give $20 in cash; to the first person sending us twenty-five or more words we will give $25 in cash; to the first person sending us thirty or more words we will give $30 in cash; to the first person sending us the THIRTY-FIVE words spelled correctly and made from the letters contained in "Notice," will be given a grand cash prize of $50; only one cash prize, will be awarded to the same person. This is a genuine contest requiring brains and perseverance. Lists of words must be sent by mail, postpaid.

FREE. No charge is made for contesting for these cash prizes. Simply cut out the Coupon printed below, filling in the name of the dealer from whom you have ordered a copy of THE TORONTO TIMES for next five Saturdays. Write your name and address on both coupon and on paper containing words (numbered) which you have been able to make from "Notice," and if your list is entitled to one of the cash prizes you will receive it without extra expense or charge. The object of giving these cash prizes is to attract your attention to THE TIMES as a Home Newspaper, and get you to purchase it through your newsdealer. If your newsdealer does not handle it, enclose 25 cents and it will be supplied direct from office. Its publisher has already given away several thousand dollars in prizes, and can supply the names and address of five different persons in Canada (one in Nova Scotia, one in Quebec, one in Hamilton and two in Toronto), who have received prizes aggregating over one thousand dollars. We have no unfulfilled promises to explain, having never broken faith with the public.

All you have to do is to order a copy of THE TORONTO TIMES for next five Saturdays, from your newsdealer. Enclose the "Newsdealer Coupon," properly filled out with your list of words (numbered) and you will receive fair treatment at our hands. The prizes will be paid in cash or by cheque immediately after close of contest (Feb'y. 28-'93) and the names and address of winners, together with largest correct list of words supplied will be announced in THE TIMES.

Order "The Times" from any Newsdealer you wish. Cut Coupon around the border.

THE TIMES "NEWSDEALERS' COUPON."
The undersigned has ordered a copy of THE TORONTO TIMES from.....
Newsdealer at.....
for next five (5) Saturdays.
Name.....
Post Office Address.....

THE TIMES removed to the new $60,000 Newspaper Palace erected specially for its use, on February 1st. Our friends are invited to visit our new establishment. THE TORONTO TIMES, 29, 31, 33 Melinda Street, Toronto, Canada.

16u 87n eod

OAK HALL

YOUR OPPORTUNITY:

About 75 Overcoats, Worsteds, Hopsacks and Fancy Meltons (odd lines), must be cleared out. A regular slash in prices. It will pay you to see these.

OAK HALL
150 Dundas St., London.
ALF. TAYLOR, Manager.

MARSHALL BROS.
Wholesale Importers of
TEAS and COFFEES
67 Dundas Street, London, Ont.

ONE-THIRD CUT OFF!

75c Cardigans	50c	62 1-2c Underwear	50c
$1 Cardigans	75c	75c Top Shirts	50c

Remnants of Tweeds less than half price.
PETHICK & McDONALD,
393 Richmond Street, London, Ont

HEADACHE CURED IN 20 MINUTES BY Alpha Wafers
OR MONEY REFUNDED. Purely Vegetable, Perfectly Harmless and Pleasant to take. For Sale by all Druggists. PRICE 25 Cts.

WM. MALLOCH & CO., MACHINISTS
—MANUFACTURERS OF—
ELEVATORS,
PULLEYS, SHAFTING, HANGERS and SPECIAL MACHINERY
Repairing a Specialty.
154 Fullerton Street, London

ADVERTISE IN THE ADVERTISER