Prospectus

For Publishing a Weekly Newspaper in Woodstock Carleton County, N. B. to be entitled

THE TIMES,

Messrs. GILBERT & SLADER, Proprietors.

IN publishing the prospectus of this periodical, it is deemed unnecessary at this period of universal activity in the diffusion of knowledge, to advert to the benefits which would result from such an undertaking, both to Woodstock and the community at large. The publishers are impressed with the idea that Woodstock presents a favorable—indeed a very eligible field for the operations of the Press; as its peculiarly commanding situation, the extensive range of fertile settlements by which it is surrounded, and which are doubtless increasing in population and advancing in enterprise, are considerations of themselves sufficient to justify the opinion that such an institution would, like the country itself, daily rise in value: and they cannot for a moment imagine that the populous county of Carleton, will stand still in the march of mind, while the world at large is making such rapid, such gigantic advances. The proprietors therefore trust, that among the many extensive improvements now in progress in this section of New-Brunswick, the establishing a Newspaper will not be deemed the least essential

THE TIMES will be conducted upon liberal principles, ever advocating, with consistent firmness, each sacred claim connected with our freedom as British subjects; opposing misrule and exposing abuses, giving a fearless but temperate, and strictly impartial review of men and measures, and strenuously supporting the rights and interests of the people. But, as the strength of the press consists only in its purity, THE TIMES will never countenance attacks on private character, nor shall any article or discussion be found in its pages, calculated wantonly to wound the feelings of any man.

THE TIMES will furnish the leading features of the current news and politics of the day—European and American; together with a notice of whatever may transpire in any way connected with the interests of the community. As the importance of every people in a great measure depends upon their standing in the scale of intellectual improvement, it will be the assiduous and pleasing duty of the publishers to suggest, and forward to the utmost of their abilities, whatever may conduce to the promotion of useful Education among all classes of Society. Advancing in importance as New-Brunswick now is, in consequence of its many sources of internal wealth, the publishers will avail themselves of every means to enrich their columns with such articles as may have reference to the various branches of scientific information. Shipping Intelligence will be regularly noticed, and the all-important interests of Agriculture, (in which so many of its readers will in all probability be engaged) will meet with due attention. In closing this prospectus, the publishers deem it proper to state, that THE TIMES will increase in size and advance in merit, in proportion as it may find the means of support; and as no efforts will be omitted on their part to render their periodical useful and interesting, they would fain hope that a watchful attention to the principles upon which it will be established, will ensure it an extensive circulation—which alone can warrant its success—The paper will be issued with as little delay as possible, on a royal sheet, and good type.

TERMS:—Fifteen shillings per annum, (exclusive of postage) one half in advance.

Agents will be appointed throughout the country for facilitating its circulation.

Woodstock, May 15th, 1837.

[Publishers of Newspapers in the Province will confer a favor by giving the above a few insertions in their respective Journals.]

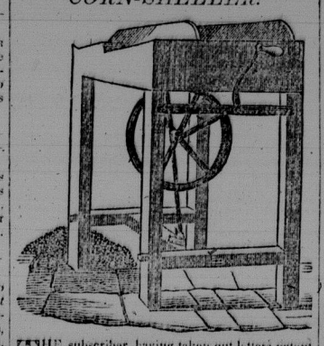
Maxwell's Patent Self-Feeding
CORN-SHELLER.



THE subscriber having taken out letters patent from the government of the United States, for the purpose of securing his rights as inventor of this valuable machine for the agriculturist, is now ready to dispose of state county and town rights, on liberal terms, and of single machines, adapted to horse or other power, or to the hand, as may best suit the interest or convenience of persons needing the article.

Two sizes are manufactured: a large one, calculated for power; and a smaller, designed for the hand. They are entirely different from any Corn Sheller heretofore known, and being contracted with great simplicity and durability, are not liable to get out of repair—an important consideration.

The large machine, driven with power, is capable of shelling, in a superior manner, 500 bushels in a day, acting on twelve ears at once. It is only necessary to keep the hopper supplied, but of no consequence how promiscuously the ears are thrown in, as it feeds itself with regularity and precision. Thus one man may easily attend several machines; and in case the corn is deposited in an upper loft, and the sheller on a lower floor, with a feeding trough of proper dimensions, it might run for hours without any attention. The machine is compact, occupies but small space, and requires but little power.

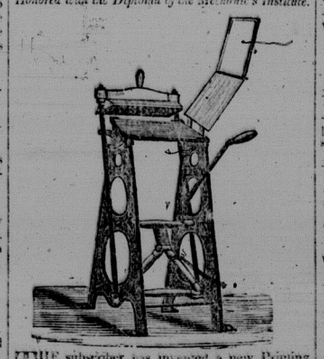
The small machine, intended to be worked with the hand, shells three ears at once, feeding itself, &c. in the same manner as the large one. A more minute description of both is deemed unnecessary, as purchasers are invited to, and no doubt will, examine for themselves.

The prices are fixed at the lowest rate, $30 for the large, and $20 for the small sheller, the inventor relying on extensive sales for a fair remuneration.

Letters desiring information may be addressed, (post paid) to J. MAXWELL, Machinist and Draftsman, 250 Bowery, New York.

☞ J. M. refers to the separate handbill of each, for description of the following: Improved Threshing Machine, Maxwell's Patent Washing machine, improved Straw and Leghorn Press, and several other machines. New-York, May 1, 1837.

Maxwell's Patent Job Printing
PRESS.
Honored with the Diploma of the Mechanic's Institute.



THE subscriber has invented a new Printing Press, which is considered a valuable economical addition to a Job Office, combining simplicity of construction and durability with speed and excellence in its performance.

He manufactures 3 sizes of the Job Press No. 1, intended for cards, at $50; No. 2, to print a surface of 14 inches by 9, at $50; No. 3, to print a foolscap sheet, at $75. Printers are invited to examine the invention for themselves.

J. M. continues to make, on the most approved principles and construction, all kinds of Machinery connected with Agriculture, the Arts, &c. He invites the attention of the public to the following Machines, which may be seen at his establishment, 250 Bowery, the limits of an advertisment forbidding a detailed description:

Maxwell's Patent Self-Feeding Corn Sheller, of several sizes, calculated for power or the hand—probably the most superior article of the kind known, excellent as many of its competitors are.

Improved Thrashing Machine, which delivers at least one sixth more grain from the straw than the best machines now in general use.

Improved straw and Leghorn Presses, of various descriptions and prices. Milliners will find a variety of improvements in these Presses, that render them much more advantageous than the old ones.

Sugar Breakers, for the use of Grocers. This article is of an improved construction, with two cast iron cylinders, a fly wheel, &c. The price is now reduced to thirty-five dollars.

Maxwell's Patent Washing Machines, combining a number of advantages not heretofore attempted in similar machines.

Lithographic Presses, &c. &c. made to order.

The undersigned will dispose of Rights, in his various Patents, for towns or Counties, on liberal terms. For further information, inquire of—if by letter, post paid—
J. MAXWELL, 250 Bowery.
