Thos. Jefferson.

This is the 87th anniversary of the death of Thomas Jefferson, third President of the United States and composer of the popular hymn in tune entitled the declaration of Independence. Mr. Jefferson composed this tune at the request of a large number of people who had grown tired of paying taxes without holding any of the offices, and every fourth of July some of its best words are pronounced by patriotic free-men.

Mr. Jefferson was born on a small Virginia farm of 1900 acres, which grew tobacco and slaves in great abundance. At the age of twenty-four he entered the law and proceeded to all of the offices that could be found in Virginia. In 1772 he married a charming young widow who paid taxes on 40,000 acres of land and 135 slaves, thus enabling Mr. Jefferson to devote all his time to composition. One of the best things he composed at this time was the Jeffersonian democracy, which later decomposed, but is now in good health. He was also the first man to put the classic phrase, "E Pluribus Unum," (which being translated means "One for All and a Nail for Each") on the silver dollar.

After serving five years as minister to France, which needed ministers as badly as anybody could, Jefferson was invited to President Washington's cabinet as secretary of state. Jefferson was quite highstrung in spots and on one occasion he referred to Washington as a boss and a standpatter, after which he hurriedly retired from the cabinet. He then ran for the presidency, but lost by an eyelash to John Adams, who was glad to let go at the end of one term. Jefferson was then elected, and rounded out forty-four years of genteel office-holding with two terms in the White House.

Jefferson's greatest act while president was the purchase of about half of the American continent from Spain for $15,000,000. Nobody but Jefferson would have given 15 cents for the Louisiana territory at that time, as it was inhabited mainly by the tenacious chigger and the swamp mosquito, but now Spain would be glad to trade back and throw in her army and navy to boot.

Arrested a Disorderly

Yesterday evening, a burly city worker who had too much liquor taken, assaulted a man on the street and when arrested by Constable Churchill, vigorously resisted the officer. Which the party whom he had assaulted found him in the toils he paid off the score he owed him, and but that the officer was so busily engaged trying to handcuff the other he too would have been arrested. A member of the C.C.C. reserves who was called, helped to adjust the bracelets and get the man to the station. The other party will be summoned.

The Servant Problem.

In view of the ever-increasing difficulty of obtaining and retaining satisfactory domestic servants, it is highly important to adopt every means which will reduce the work of the house.

It has been proved by the experience of many that the use of gas for cooking, heating and hot water supply, makes it possible to do with fewer servants, easier to keep, who you have, and a less serious matter to have none.—June 10, 11

The Tragedy at Roseville.

ANOTHER DEATH—VICTIMS NUMBER SIX.

As far as can be learned the explosion at Roseville, Alexander Bay, occurred at a few minutes before 9 o'clock Wednesday, and the mill was demolished, pieces of it being thrown hundreds of yards away while the boiler and machinery about were shattered into fragments. Detailed information as to the cause of the accident and details could not be had yesterday.

Hon. S. D. Blanford had the following message in the early afternoon:—

"Mr. A. Rose's mill blown up yesterday. Mr. Rose, his son Jas. and two other men killed instantly. Another man, badly injured, died last night. A girl seriously scalded, died at 8 o'clock last night."

Another message received last night by private parties reads:—

"James Whealan, the remaining victim of Wednesday's accident, died at 8 o'clock last night. The two Roses and two Wheelans were buried to-day. Mrs. Rose is prostrated and very ill."

As a result of this awful accident six deaths have been recorded, and there is mourning all around the section where the awful affair happened. Mrs. Strong, a sister of Mr. Rose, who resides in St. John's, left for the express last evening for the scene of the occurrence. Before she left she had a wire from Mrs. Rose stating that the bodies of the victims were blown into fragments and that it would be difficult to get them together for coffin.

The Babstock girl was not one of the regular employees of the mill but lived near, and when the explosion occurred was hit by the flying fragments and terribly injured. She, as well as her father, belongs to Happy Adventure, T. B., and both bodies will be brought home to-day for burial.

Mrs. Rose, wife of the deceased Alexander Rose, received such a terrible shock as the outcome of the awful affair that she is since ill.

Robert Breen, the 17-year-old son of Mr. Patrick Breen, of Bannbrick St., has been in Roseville for several months past doing the work of a clerk for the proprietor of the mill. It will be remembered that a few weeks ago Mr. Rose saved this lad's life when he and a companion were drowning by the overturning of their boat. Mrs. Rose is a cousin of Mrs. Breen, and when the latter heard the news Wednesday evening she concluded her boy had been killed and as a result was in a terrible way until she received the following message yesterday:—

ALEXANDER BAY, July 2nd, 1913.
Mrs. P. Breen.
"Mr. Rose's mill blown up, five men killed, all O.K." (Sgd.) Bob."

This relieved the minds of the lad's parents and they expect him home in due course. It is thought that the Breen lad was some distance away from the mill surveyor's lumber when the explosion occurred and thus escaped injury.

Mr. Rose's parents have been dead some years but besides Mrs. Strong another sister resides at Halifax and two brothers, James and Thomas, also reside there.

The Best of the Berry

You remove all the skin and core of an apple, when you want the most delicious sauce.

We remove all the skin and fibre of the wheat berry so that you may have the finest flour.

Wheat has five skins. It has fibre which corresponds to the core of the apple. It has an embryo germ, where sprouting begins. It has a small crease in which a tiny quantity of dirt hides.

Every one of these things is removed from Rainbow Flour. Then we refine and refine until only the most vital elements of the wheat berry remain.

We carry this process so far that Rainbow Flour positively has no equal in quality. One baking will prove this to you.
