
An Advertisement to the Reader, concerning the ensuing TABLES.

SHort Tables may not seem proportionable to so long a Work, especially in an Age wherein there are so many that pretend to learning, who study more the Index than they do the Book. But to this Work short Tables will be long enough, considering that the Running Titles on the top of each leaf, direct the Reader to a view of those Countreys which he is to travel; and consequently to as much knowledge of those things which concern those Countreys as this work can give him. Howsoever, that I may not be wanting in any point to the Readers ease, I have drawn those Title into Method by the course of the Alphabet; and added all the rest of the Provinces both great and small, which are herein mentioned and described: with the names of those Estates and Nations, whether old or new, the sum of whose affairs is here drawn together. This being done in the first of these Tables, I have reduced into a second, the names of those particular Nations, with their several Tribes (the principal of them at the least) which anciently inhabited those Kingdoms, Provinces, and Islands, the Chorography and History whereof is my chief endeavor: that being marshalled by themselves, they be no hinderance to the Reader in the search of those places, which he hath more desire to visit. And finally whereas there are many things in this work looking towards Philology, and some particulars not easily reducible to the other Tables, I have digested the chief of them into a third; leaving the rest unto the consideration of the studious Reader, who possibly might take it ill if nothing should be left to his care and memory.

A Table of the principal Countreys, Provinces, Mountains, Seas, and Islands, contained and described in this Book.
