THE TURKS PLAN NEW MASSACRES

Spring Will Bring Bloody Times in the Balkans.

MACEDONIANS WOULD BE FREE

Bulgaria Aids Insurrections and Entire Peninsula May Be Involved in War.

Washington, Feb. 21. — As soon as the snow melts in the Balkan Mountains there is certain to be war and destruction. The restraining hand of Russia, which has prevented hostilities between Bulgaria and Turkey, is no longer forceful, and the attempts which have been made by the Austrian and Russian ambassadors at Constantinople to induce the Sultan to behave properly have accomplished nothing. The revolutionary element in Macedonia has obtained funds in some manner, and is said to be well supplied with arms and ammunition, while the Bulgarian Government has been preparing for war all winter, and is likely to provoke an invasion by the Turks, which has been prevented by Russian influence for the last three years. Being no longer in a position to intervene with arms, Russia will not have so much influence.

To understand the situation it is necessary to go back three years to the time when Miss Stone, the American missionary, was a prisoner of the so-called bandits—really of a band of conspirators representing the Macedonian committee, which exists for the purpose of emancipating Macedonia from Turkish rule, has its headquarters at Sophia, Bulgaria, and spent her ransom for guns and powder. This committee is very much like the junta that encouraged and directed the revolution in Cuba from 1896 to 1898. It collects funds, buys arms and ammunition, and equips insurrectionary parties which invade Macedonia to take revenge upon the Turkish officials for their cruelties to the people. The Bulgarian Government sympathizes with the committee; almost every man, woman and child in the kingdom belongs to it, and contributes money for revolutionary purposes as a sacred duty. Up to this time Turkey has not attacked Bulgaria because of fear of Russia, although the Sultan has had great provocation in the encouragement and assistance which the Bulgarians have given to the revolutionists across the border.

The people of Macedonia are Christians—principally members of the Orthodox Greek church, with a few Roman Catholics. The officials, the police and the military forces which are necessary to sustain the authority of the Sultan are all Moslems, and the taxes extorted from the poverty-stricken farmers and herdsmen are not expended for the benefit of the country, but are sent to Constantinople. The cruelty of the Turkish officials, and the bashi-bazouks who execute their orders, is beyond belief; the atrocities which have been committed in almost every village would shock the world if the truth were ever told. The Turks are merciless. One of the proverbs of that country says that wherever their shadow falls desolation will follow.

Nearly half the population of Macedonia has been exterminated or driven from that province. The remainder have retaliated on their Turkish oppressors to the best of their ability, but they are comparatively feeble and impotent, and are unable to defend themselves. About three years ago the European powers, which are very jealous, for fear one may get a little more influence in the Balkan Peninsula than another, exacted from the Sultan a promise of reform. But, as everybody knows, his promises are never fulfilled. They have kept after him ever since, and from time to time have obtained nominal concessions, some of which have been partially carried out, but the most of them have been entirely ignored. Finally, by the common consent of the nations of Europe, the ambassadors of Austria and Russia at Constantinople were authorized to make the best arrangements possible for the relief and future protection of the persecuted Christians. The Sultan, as usual, has played fast and loose with them, with no more conscience than he has shown in other matters. For example, when they compelled him to recall the governors and other magistrates who were accused of cruelty and unlimited murder, he sent even worse men to take their places. When they exacted from him by persistent pressure a concession that the police should be placed under the control of foreign officers, it was suddenly discovered that the police force in Macedonia was a myth. It seemed to dissolve and vanish immediately after that agreement, and when the foreign officers who had been selected reached their posts of duty they could find no men to command and nothing to do.

The most recent fiasco involved the collection of the revenues, which, in order to prevent blackmail and extortion, the Sultan agreed should be intrusted to the Imperial Ottoman Bank, which stands for Turkey as the Bank of England stands for Great Britain. It was agreed that the funds collected should be expended for local purposes after paying for the maintenance of the Turkish army that is kept in Macedonia, theoretically to preserve the peace, but when the representatives of th Ottoman Bank reached their posts they found there was nothing to collect. The people had been stripped of everything they had by the Turkish civil officers and the soldiers, and had scarcely enough of their harvests left to keep them alive. A new arrangement has been entered into with the Ottoman Bank which is said to be satisfactory to the ambassadors, but no matter what they demand or what the Sultan agrees to, he has not and will not change his atrocious policy as long as there is a Christian left in Macedonia.

During the last few months the Sultan has been sending additional troops into Macedonia and is placing them along the border of Bulgaria. It is no secret that, as soon as the snow is out of the mountains and weather will permit, the Turks intend to renew the carnival of massacre and persecution that has been going on for years, and will punish resistance by extermination.

With the exception of Naples, Milan and Rome, New York is reckoned to be the chief Italian city in the world. An estimate of 300,000 to 400,000 as the actual Italian population of New York and the immediately contiguous territory is probably moderate. In comparison with this Naples has a population of 565,000, Milan 500,000 and Rome 425,000.

Thirty or forty years ago what one may call the public supply of toothpicks was unknown. Every gentleman carried one in his pocket, of gold or silver if he could afford it, one made of a goose quill if he could not afford the other, but it was not the practice to use it until after one had left the table.
