Giants Get Hal Chase.

e Giants will have Hal Chase playirst this season ,a deal having been through by vice-president and Man- McGraw and Manager Moran of Cincinnati club. Walter Holke and Rairden go to Cincinnati in exge for Chase.

Says Mathewson Failed.

ere has been much comment in tern papers about the alleged failure hristy Mathewson as a manager in innati. Judging the case on the re- which the former Giant pitcher acolished, his reign in Redland was much of a success. When he went e club two years ago in mid-season, innati was in last place. Under ewson's guidance they finished two ago in fourth place. Last year climbed out of fourth place and ed third. From the cellar to fourth from fourth to third in two seasons from being the accomplishment of successful manager.

thewson had his troubles out there the players just like every other ger ever had, but his differences not as evident as those of Charley og, Hank O'Day, Joe Tinker, or e Griffith. Mathewson, as a matter ct, showed pretty fine judgment in g his pitchers. In fact, he got a ore out of them than any of his cessors.

Mathewson had any fault as a man- it was that he was too gentle in g with his players. He was an going leader, placing his players much on their own initiative. The n Legree type of baseball leader is more successful.

Diamond Sparkles.

nager McGraw of the Giants was by The Boston Herald where he play Babe Ruth if he played with York, and McGraw promptly rethat he would play him in the outvery day, instead of alternating n pitching and playing in the out-n inclined to the belief," said MancGraw, "that if I had Babe Ruth d play him every day in the out- I believe that he is more valuable ved that way than he can be if hes one day and is used as an out- in the other games. In time such se is sure to impair his effective- s a pitcher and during the same is development as an outfielder will tarded. Such hitters as Ruth are and should be played every day. fore I should give him the opportunity to develop to the fullest extent in a position which permits him to play every day.

Dick Hoblitzell of the Red Sox may go to the Boston Braves if the American League Clubs give waivers of the player. Manager Stallings is going to let Konetchy out and wants a new first baseman. He is also considering Walter Holke of the Giants. Hoblitzell hasn't had a chance to be a regular with the Red Sox since Jack McInnis was bought.

The Giants are angling for Frank Snyder, the St. Louis catcher, and when McGraw was in St. Louis a couple of weeks ago he talked the matter over with Manager Branch Rickey. Rickey wanted one of McGraw's best pitchers in return, so nothing has resulted in the trade. Manager Mitchell of the Cubs is also after Outfielder Jack Smith of the Cardinals, but in return Rickey has made a demand for one of Mitchell's best twirlers. so the proposition has fallen through.

Washington After Davey Robertson

Griffith Negotiating With Giants for Outfielder, Who Refuses to Play There

New York, Feb. 18—Davey Robertson, the Giants' former hard-hitting right fielder, who has refused to consider an offer to play here again, may be seen in a Washington uniform next summer, if the plans of Clarke Griffith materialize. Robertson, it seems, does not object to playing baseball as much as he objects to living in New York, which is so far from his home in Virginia. He has informed some of his friends that if he could play with Washington, which is within easy reach of his home, he might consider a proposition to get back into the game.

As soon as Manager Griffith of the Washington club heard this bit of gossip, he immediately got into communication with Manager McGraw of the Giants. Robertson would be a valuable addition to any ball club, for he is a hitter and base runner of unusual ability. According to Manager McGraw, there is only one fault with his game, he refuses to take baseball seriously.

Robertson made a home run at the Polo Grounds a few seasons ago which traveled down one of the exit chutes in the right field bleachers, which is as long a drive as has been made in Harlem during the present baseball generation. Robertson also hung up the greatest batting record ever made by a player in a world's series, in the series against the White Sox two seasons ago.

The signing of Robertson would be a ten strike for Washington, but just how Griff expects to waive him out of the National League is a puzzle. There isn't a club in the National League but would give a good deal to grab Robbie. Griffith is the most persistent manager in the world, and if he can engineer Robertson's exit from the National League it is certain that he could interest the player in a proposition to return to the game.

Bring Noted Men Of Letters Together

Lowell Centenary in New York Promises to be an Important Step Towards Cementing Anglo-Unity

Elihu Root, it is announced from Columbia University, has accepted an invitation to preside at the public banquet in honor of the American Academy of Arts and Letters and its guests to be given at the Ritz Carlton Hotel on February 20, in connection with the four-day international celebration of the 100th anniversary of the birth of James Russell Lowell.

John Galsworthy, English novelist, will make the first extended speech of his trip through America at this dinner. Maurice Hutton, Professor of Greek, and principal of University College, Toronto, and member of the Royal Society of Canada, also will make an address. James M. Barrie, member of the British Academy, will send a letter to be read before the curtain at a performance of "Dear Brutus," which will be played by a company headed by William Gillette at the Empire Theatre at 8.15 u. m. on Friday, February 21. A curtain speech will be made by Mr. Gillette, who is a member of the American Academy. Professor William Milligan Sloane of Princeton, New Jersey, it is announced, will preside at the literary exercises to be held at the Ritz at 11 a. m. on Saturday, February 22. Professor Barrett Wendell of Harvard has notified the committee on arrangements that he will speak at this meeting, which will be open to the public. Other speakers will be Edgar Lee Masters and Professor Brander Matthews of Columbia University. Alfred Noyles will read an original poem.

Many Distinguished Visitors.

Acceptances of invitations to attend the celebration, which will emphasize the unity and power of the literature of the English speaking peoples are coming in from both sides of the Atlantic. Many of the most distinguished men of Great Britain have been invited. Among the Britishers who have definitely sent word that they will be present are John Galsworthy, Sir Henry Babington Smith, Alfred Noyes, Robert Nichol, Brigadier General L. R. Kenyon of the British War Missions, and Sir Richard and Lady Crawford.

Canadians who have sent acceptances include Dr. James Cappon, Dean of the Arts Faculty, Queen's University, Kingston, Canada; Professor Polham Edgar, professor of English Literature in Victoria Callege, University of Toronto; Sir Robert Alexander Falconer, president of the University of Toronto; Thomas D. Neelands, president Canadian Club; Maurice Hutton, principal of University College, Toronto; Duncan Campbell Scott of Ottawa, deputy superintendent general of the Canadian Department of Indian Affairs, secretary of the Royal Society of Canada, and author of several volumes of poetry. The list of acceptances from England and Canada is expected to be largely increased.

Reception at President's House.

The celebration which will open with a reception by President and Mrs. Nicholas Murray Butler at the President's House, 60 Morningside Drive, in honor of the Academy and of the visiting British and Canadian men of letters is planned to be the most notable event of its kind ever held on either side of the Atlantic. Arrangements for the celebration are in charge of a special committee of the Academy of Arts and Letters consisting of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, Augustus Thomas and Hamlin Garland, together with Professor William Milligan Sloane, chancellor of the Academy, and Robert Underwood Johnson, its permanent secretary, ex officio.

The celebration will bring together many of the most noted men of American men of art and letters.

For Anglo-American Unity.

The New York celebration of the Lowell Centenary is one of the several which will be held in this country. Leaders of thought both here and abroad have planned to make it an important step toward cementing Anglo-American unity brought on by the war.

British men of letters have given their hearty encouragement to the celebration and it is possible that several leaders in British public life may attend. Among those to whom invitations have been extended are Herbert Asquith, Viscount Grey, Lord Bryce, Robert Bridges, poet laureate; Rudyard Kipling, Augustus Birrell, Sir Conan Doyle, Gilbert Chesterton, Gilbert Murray, Sir Walter Raleigh, Sir Arthur Quiller Couch, and Edmund Gosse, the master of Balliol College, Oxford.

It is now certain that the contingent from Canada will be the most important gathering of literary men that the Dominion has ever sent to the United States.
