The Policeman's Romance.

"It is four years ago since I was doing duty down on Regent-street. The wind howled round the corners that night, catching up the snow that had fallen during the day and whirling it in drifts in the doorways.

"There are lots of big shops down there, and the street is always crowded of evenings, but this evening it was a sight to me. There were hundreds—yes, thousands—of pretty girls out doing their last shopping before Christmas.

"It was getting towards nine o'clock, when my attention was attracted to a pretty little girl who was tripping across the street.

"Just as she reached the kerb she slipped upon a patch of ice and fell heavily.

"It took me about half a second to reach the little woman and pick her up. She was shaken by the fall, though not injured, and I had to support her for a moment.

"Then she recovered herself all of a sudden, straightened up primly, and saying, 'Thank you, Mr. Officer,' tripped away, giving me a pretty look that went clear through me.

"I had tramped up and down my beat three or four times, when a bare-headed cash-boy ran out of one of the big shops and yelled at me:

"'Come quick! the manager has caught a shop-lifter!'

"I was met at the door by a shop-walker, who piloted me to the book-keeper's office at the back of the shop.

"Two men were in there, and a woman was standing in the corner, with her face covered with her handkerchief, weeping as if her heart would break.

"'Ah! officer,' said the manager, who was a mere business machine, 'I am glad you have come. One of our clerks at the lace counter discovered that a valuable piece of lace had been stolen, and gave the alarm. This woman hurried away from the counter. She was detained and brought here and searched. The lace was found in an outside pocket of her sacque. This is the piece on the desk here.'

"'Have you asked the woman for an explanation?' I asked, hoping that some explanation would fix the matter up.

"'What can she say?' cried the business machine. 'She was caught red-handed in the act. She is the thief. That settles it.'

'There was a sudden movement on the part of the woman. She snatched her handkerchief from her face, extended her right arm and finger, which shook with rage, and turning her blazing eyes upon the business machine, she fairly screamed:

"'Tis false! I am no thief!' Then she fell in a heap upon the floor.

"As she turned her pallid face upon the manager I started as if some one had struck me. It was the black-eyed little girl that I had picked up scarcely half-an-hour before.

"I lifted the girl up gently and placed her in a chair, and called for water, with which I bathed her temples.

"Pretty soon she came out of the swoon. As her eyes met mine they lit up with a glad light, and she cried:

"'Oh! I'm so glad. This officer will tell you that I am not a thief, won't you!'

"Here was a pretty predicament. There was nothing for me to do but my duty, so I told her I was sorry for her, and asked her if she would walk ahead of me quietly.

She made a brave effort to calm herself that touched me hard. I couldn't believe the girl a thief, but the evidence was too strong for me to doubt that she had given way to temptation.

"The poor girl walked ahead of me a few paces and gave me no trouble. I found myself wishing that she would melt away or in some fashion or other vanish, when she stopped under a lamp in a side street, and waited until I came up.

"As I came up, she turned her pale face up in the light, and clutched my coat sleeve tight with her hands, as she said:

"'Mr. Officer, you don't really think me a thief, do you?'

"Well, I couldn't say 'Yes,' and I couldn't conscientiously say 'No,' so I said neither. I only said that I was sorry for her and wished that I could help her.

"'Are you really sorry for me?' she said, and her black eyes filled with tears. 'Oh! I am glad to have one friend, for in all this big city I don't think I have another.'

"Then she told me her little story. She was an orphan, and had been brought up by an old aunt in York. About six months before this her aunt had died, and she came on to the city, and turned her hand to lacemaking, and had been able to support herself decently since then. She said she had stepped into the stop to make some small purchases, 'was arrested when walking away. She protested that she did not know how the lace came to be found in her pocket.

"I told her again that I was sorry, and in a minute more we were at the station.

"I explained the case to the sergeant, and got his permission for her to sit in a chair in the office instead of occupying a cell all night.

"I was terribly worried about that girl. Somehow I couldn't get the sorrowful look of those black eyes out of my mind, and I could't sleep; and when daylight came time hung on a peg until court time came. I walked around thinking over the case, trying to arrive at some solution favorable to the girl.

"Of course, when we got to court, Minnie—that was her name—was convicted in one-two-three order. She made no statement—just stood dazed like—and the judge held her for trial in the court above.

"As they led the girl away she was the picture of death. I gave her a nod of encouragement, but she returned it with a look that said just as plainly as words could have said, 'My heart is broken.'

"I jammed my helmet down over my eyes and plunged out into the street. I had a big job on hand.

"I had questioned her closely as to the appearance of the people who had stood near her at the lace counter. She could remember none save one flashily-dressed woman, who had attracted her attention because of a remarkable mutilation of one of her ears—as if a piece had been cut out in a triangular form.

"I persuaded the superintendent to grant me a leave of absence for a couple of days, and went to work. I overhauled the pictures at the office, and gazed hard and earnestly at the features of every female 'crook' in the 'Rogues' Gallery,' but I could not find the one I was after.

'At last I fell to reading the remarks under the picture of a bold, handsome, face and was knocked all into a cocked hat by the words: 'Has a triangular piece cut out of the left ear.' 'Maybe this is my woman,' said I. I had a long talk with a detective friend of mine, and after a while he was able to place the woman, and told me where she most frequented.

"All that day, and nearly all the next, I was on the look-out for that woman, and was despairing, when a handsome, large woman swept past, actually brushing against me with her sealskin cloak.

"I glanced up and fairly started, for one of her ears was mutilated just as the girl and the note in the office had described.

"The woman swept on, and I followed. She entered the very shop where I had arrested Minnie, and went up to the very counter where the lace was stolen, and began examining the stock. And then selecting a trifle, paid for it, and turned to go.

"I was in a quandary. But I was determined to make an effort and run the risk of making a serious mistake.

"Stepping up to her, I touched her shoulder and whispered, 'Come with me. I want you a moment'—at the same time looking straight into her eyes.

"Every drop of blood left the woman's face. She fairly trembled for an instant, and then she looked back defiantly and went with me. We had moved but a step or two in the direction of the book-keeper's den, where the girl had been searched three days before, when something struck my foot. I stooped and picked up a bundle of lace. The woman had dropped it. I was right. I had found my thief.

"Seeing that she was caught the shop-lifter owned up that she had stolen the piece of lace. The business machine was furious. He said the firm was being ruined by thieves.

"But I had not yet found out about the theft of the other day. So I again looked sternly at the woman, and hazarded: 'This is not what I was looking for you for; it was the theft of the other day, when you thrust the piece of lace into a young woman's pocket on the alarm being raised?'

"For a moment the woman looked boldly at me, and then she broke down completely and sobbed. The confession was complete, and the mystery was cleared up.

"I need hardly say that Minnie was triumphantly acquitted.

"My! but wasn't that a grateful little woman! She just ran and placed her arms around my neck and kissed me "I was kind of taken aback; for although I rather enjoy kissing, I don't like too many witnesses; so I got her away as soon as I could, and took her to a restaurant where we could talk quietly for a few minutes. I married her two weeks afterwards, and the business machine gave her a fifty pound outfit, and was glad to get out of an awkward fix at that price."

The Bad and Worthless

are never imitated or counterfeited. This is especially true of a family medicine, and it is positive proof that the remedy imitated is of the highest value. As soon as it had been tested and provided by the whole World that Hop Bitters was the purest, best and most valuable family medicine on earth, many imitations sprang up and began to steal the notices in which the press and the people of the country had expressed the merits of H.B., and in every way trying to induce suffering invalids to use their stuff instead, expecting to make money on the credit and good name of H. B. Many others started nostrums put up in similar style to H. B., with various devised names in which the word "Hop" or "Hops" were used in a way to induce people to believe they were the same as Hop Bitters. All such pretended remedies or cures, no matter what their style or name is, and especially those with the word "Hop" or "Hops" in their name or in any way connected with them or their name, are imitations or counterfeits. Beware of them. Touch none of them. Use nothing but genuine Hop Bitters, with a bunch or cluster of green Hops on the white label. Trust nothing else. Druggists and dealers are warned against dealing in imitations or counterfeits.

"Have you any foreign cigars?" asked a traveller of a cigar dealer in Havana.

"No, sir," the dealer replied in some surprise.

"We keep nothing but the domestic. There is no call for foreign-made cigars in Havana."

"Aw, so sorry; but I neva' smoke anything but the imported article, y' know'

Every Spring

HOW AN AFFLICTING ANNUAL VISITOR WAS DRIVEN FROM A WEARY WOMAN.

Plain and simple mechanics are not liable to get out of order. Complicated watches, intended not only to keep the time of day, but to make the movements of the moon and stars, are certain to need frequent repairs. Husbands and fathers often fail to see that their wives and daughters are more delicately organized than themselves, requiring corresponding care when they are well and assistance when they are ill. Yet much better for woman's fine system is a trustworthy medicine, ready at all times for use, than a deal of tinkering by semi-educated local practitioners.

"Every spring," said the wife of a well known employee of the Grand Trunk Railway, Montreal, "I have been for some years past troubled with nervous debility and weakness. It was the burden which so many women are called upon to bear, although none the lighter for that.

"Advice and dosing, to be sure, I had in plenty; still, on each returning spring my sickness came as regularly as the buds and blossoms."

"You seem better now.'

"Oh yes; I consider myself almost or quite well, and it came about in thisway. A lady living on St. Catherine street this city, commended to my attention Sulphur and Iron Bitters. It gave me strength and life. My sister, living in Brockville, whose disease was nearly the same as mine, was equally benefitted by the same thing."

Sulphur and Iron Bitters prepared by Climax Chemical Co. Montreal, is for sale by all druggists. Price 50 cents.

The Most Successful Remedy ever discovered, as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. READ PROOF BELOW.

Saved Him 1,800 Dollars!

ADAMS, N. Y., Jan. 30, 1882.

DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents: Having used a good deal of your Kendall's Spavin Cure with great success, I thought I would let you know what it has done for me. Two years ago I had as speedy a colt as was ever raised in Jefferson County. When I was breaking him, he kicked over the cross bar and got fast and tore one of his hind legs all to pieces. I employed the best farriers, but they all said he was spoiled. He had a very large thorough-pin, and I used two bottles of your Kendall's Spavin Cure, and it took the bunch entirely of, and he sold afterwards for $1800 (dollars.) I have used it for bone spavins and wind galls, and it has always cured completely and left the leg smooth.

It is a splendid medicine for rheumatism. I have recommended it to a good many, and they all say it does the work. I was in Witherington & Kneeland's drug store, in Adams, the other day and saw a very fine picture you sent them. I tried to buy it, but could not; they said if I would write to you that you would send me one. I wish you would, and I will do you all the good I can.

Very respectfully, E. S. LYMAN.

From the Akron Commercial, Ohio, of Nov. 25th, 1882.

Readers of the Commercial can not well forge that a large space has for years been taken up by Kendall's advertisements—especially of a certain Spavin Cure. We have had dealings with Dr. Kendall for many years, and we know of some large business houses in cities near by who have also dealt with him for many years, and the truth is fully and faithfully proven, not only that he is a good honest man, and that his celebrated Spavin Cure is not only all that it is recommended to be, but that the English Language is not capable of recommending it too highly.

Kendall's Spavin Cure will cure spavins. There are hundreds of cases in which that has been proven to our certain knowledge, but, after all, if any person confines the usefulness of this celebrated medicine to curing spavins alone, they make a big mistake. It is the best medicine known as an outward application for rheumatism in the human family. It is good for pains and aches, swellings, lameness, and is just as safely applied to men, women and children as it is to horses. We know that there are other good liniments, but we do believe this spavin cure to be far better than any ever invented.

Kendall' Spavin Cure.

Hutchinson's Ranch, 12 miles north of Denver, Col. Mar. 5th, 1883.

DR. B. J. KENDALL, & Co., Gents:—For the past three years I have used Kendall's Spavin Cure. In every case of spavin, of which I have treated five, it has killed them all, and entirely removed three. In case of splint I find it has no equal, one case I had was of three years standing and the Spavin Cure removed it entirely. I had a cow get spavined and it entirely cured her. One year ago a two hundred pound block of ice fell out of a wagon striking my foot on instep and toes, it would be impossible to mash a foot worse without breaking any bones. I was taken home and carried into the house. I do not think amputation of the leg would cause any more pain. I sent for Kendall's Spavin Cure, it was all I used, and in six days I could walk around. About three weeks ago my team ran away and threw me out of the wagon, the hind wheel struck my knee. After applying several highly recommended liniments without obtaining any relief, I went for Kendall's Spavin Cure. My leg was drawn up and my knee swollen badly. In three days I was able to walk to the barn. I could go into details more fully and make this a very long letter, but will not weary you.

I am very respectfully yours,
OSCAR F. HUTCHINSON.

P. O. Lock Box, 2362, Denver City, Col.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

Santa Rosa, Cal., Feb. 9th, 1883.

B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—I feel it a duty to others suffering with the piles and falling of the rectum to write you. I have had the piles and prolapsus of the rectum for five years, for the past three years I have suffered the most agonizing pain. Tried everything without relief, but after ten days use of Kendall's Spavin Cure I have not seen nor heard of the piles since. One who has not suffered as I have cannot comprehend the great joy that I feel at being cured of a disease almost worse than death. I had a valuable young horse that had a large bunch gather on his breast bone. I tried all kinds of liniments and had it cut open without any benefit. Saw your advertisement and bought a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure and ordered my teamster to use as directed. In less than one week the lump had disappeared.—Thinking that a liniment that would do what Kendall's Spavin Cure has done for my horse might benefit more. I tried it as a last resort.

With gratitude and best wishes for your success,

I am faithfully yours, J. H. GLENN.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

ON HUMAN FLESH

Vevay, Ind., Aug. 12th, 1881.

DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co.—Gentlemen—Sample of circulars received to-day. Please send me some with imprint, printed on one side only. The Kendall's Spavin Cure is in excellent demand with us, and not only for animals, but for human ailments also. Mr. Jos. Voris, one of the leading farmers in our county, sprained an ankle badly, and knowing the value of the remedy for horses, tried it on himself, and it did far better than he had expected. Cured the sprain in very short order.

Yours respectfully, C. O. THIERAND.

Price $1 per bottle, or 6 bottles for $5. All druggists have it or can get it for you, or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors, DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Enosburgh Falls, Vt. Send for Illustrated Circular.
