Charged with Housebreaking.

George Donnelly and James Cameron were charged before the police magistrate Saturday by Mrs. Mathewson with unlawfully breaking into and entering her residance, 197 Mill street. It appeared from the evidence that the prisoners went to the complainant's house between 12 and 1 o'clock this morning and demanded admittance, but were refused. They immediately set to work and burst open the storm door. Mrs. Mathewson opened the inner door and ordered the men away. They replied by saying that they intended to run the house, to which course Mrs. Mathewson objected. She went for the police and had the men arrested. Donnelly swore that he went there at 10 o'clock Friday night together with two or three members of "D" School of Infantry and they were admitted. He said they were served with several bottles of ale and stayed there about a couple of hours. They were told they had been there long enough and it appears they went away. Donnelly and James Cameron went back again between 12 and 1 o'clock, but Mrs. Mathewson refused to let them in—hence the disturbance. The prisoners were remanded to Jan. 16. Mr. Mathewson will be subpœnaed to give evidence.

Osgoode Hall Decisions.

Connolly vs. Murrell—Judgment. Motion for re-examination of the defendant at his own expense enlarged before the trial judge at London.

Baby vs. O'Donohue—Counsel for the defendants, John O'Donohue and R. Cochrane, appealed from an order of one of the local judges at London refusing the motion of the appellants to set aside the concurrent of summons, statements of claim, and service thereof upon the appellants in Manitoba, and allowing the service upon them as good service. The other defendants reside within the jurisdiction, but the objection is that at the time the concurrent writ issued the defendants in the jurisdiction had not been served, which it is contended is necessary under rule 271 (g.) Reserved.

Garrett vs. Garrett—Counsel for the defendant appealed from an order of one of the local judges at St. Thomas refusing a motion made by the defendant to strike out certain paragraphs of the statement of claim in an action of ejectment as embarrassing because the plaintiff claims in the character both of executrix and devisee, although the action was not begun by the plaintiff in a representative capacity, and because the statement of claim asks mesne profits, which are not claimed in the writ, and because there are no allegations to show the title under which the plaintiff claims. Judgment reserved.
