THE LOBSTER FISHERY.

It is apparent from figures quoted in the Board of Trade Report for the year ending December 31, 1921, that the once valuable and prolific lobster fishery of Newfoundland is a rapidly reducing industry. The 1920 demand abroad was so small that some 2800 cases of that year's pack were left on hand, and the outlook for the opening of the '21 season was so discouraging that many dealers came to a decision not to give out supplies. However, to fall back on the old saying, "the darkest hour is before the dawn" this same might be applied to the lobster market, for commencing in June of the past year the demand abroad greatly increased, and to such an extent that local holders have made sales of all the 1920 and '21 pack at prices, which the report declares were considered satisfactory, and it is good to know that the same report advances the opinion that the outlook for 1922 is more promising than ever. Two things favor this, the first that the present more favorable rate of exchange on London is likely to advance the local price, and secondly, that a reduction in the cost of cases and cans will improve the profit-making aspect of the packers. The report roundly condemns the Government for permitting—despite protests of exporters and fishermen alike—the packing of lobsters during the fall months, which it alleges proved most unprofitable to the packers who engaged in it, and detrimental to the fishery itself. The quality of the pack was in most cases poor and many complaints were made by foreign purchasers. Morally the practice of setting aside regulations which have been for so many years strictly enforced by all Governments, has reflected itself in the actions of many of the fall packers, who entirely disregarded the rules and regulations, by putting up immature lobsters, and under-weight containers. If this industry is to be cultivated and protected it will be necessary for the Fisheries Department to be active and strict in enforcing such measures the coming season as will prevent a continuance of the flouting of regulations, which has been all too prevalent of late. The lobster industry is too valuable to be abandoned or to be permitted carried on by slovenly and slipshod methods of packing. No person should be given a licence whose plant has not been previously inspected by a Fishery Warden of experience, and then only on his recommendation. The indiscriminate practice of issuing licences to all and sundry who made application in former years had a detrimental effect on both catch and pack. This should not be, and it is the prime business of the Fisheries Department to conserve the Lobster Fishery and all other subsidiary fisheries in every branch and detail.

Candlemas.

To-day, February 2, is the Feast of the Purification of the Blessed Virgin Mary, more popularly known perhaps as Candlemas Day, because the candles for use in Roman Catholic Church Services during the coming year are consecrated. In the Armenian Church, the Sacred new fire is kindled on Candlemas Eve, not at Easter, as is the usage elsewhere. In some parts of Germany and in the Hebrides Island it was once the custom to observe certain rites on Candlemas Day to ensure good crops of flax and oats in the ensuing year. Candlemas is chiefly known in Scotland, in secular matters, as the first of the quarterly terms; and the state of the weather on this day is proverbially said to determine the weather of the spring. The same belief exists in many places in Newfoundland.
