Fish Prices Are Lower; Butter And Eggs On Decline

Fresh Salmon Still Selling at Seventy Cents Per Pound—Lemons Are Higher.

Falling prices in motor gas and oils, country produce, and several lines of wholesale groceries, were featured in the local market this week. Gasolene was quoted at a reduction of one cent per gallon, the present prices is 38 cents. Palacine at 26 1-2 cts., is lower by 2 1-2 cts., and Royalite at 23 1-2 cts., has dropped 2 1-2 cts.

There were a number of reductions evident in green goods. California lemons were the only fruits quoted at an advance on last week's prices. They went up 50 cts. per crate and are selling at from $7 to $7.50.

The fish market quoted a number of reductions; mackerel are 25 cts. per lb., halibut 50 cts. to $1 each, fresh halibut 35 cts., fresh salmon 70 cts and kippered herring 7 cents.

There were no changes in wholesale meats, hides or feed.

Clever Ruse.

Jones has been grumbling about the gas bill, and Robinson advised him to have a penny-in-the-slot meter installed.

"Does that work out cheaper?" asked Jones; "I always understood it costs more."

"Not a bit, my boy," replied Robinson, cheerfully. "You see, you get the kiddies to put their pennies in it, thinking they are saving up for their birthday."

First Glance Deceived Him.

He (ready for party)—Doris, the taxi will be here in a minute. Put on your evening gown, quick!

Wife—Don't be funny, Jack, it's on.

"Nature it seems never will learn." What do you mean?"

"In spite of the way the girls paint their complexion nature stubbornly refuses to make the real thing look that way."

Mrs. Styles—"I see by this paper that a woman in a western town has hit upon a novel plan of obtaining a separation from her husband without going to the expense of court proceedings."

Brave Little Mary.

Grandmother had been talking to four-year-old Mary Ellen about becoming angry so easily. After the little girl had listened a few minutes she thought it time to tell of some of her good qualities, so she said: "Yesterday my dolly got stepped on and broken and I didn't cry a bit or scold anybody." "That was fine," approved grandmother, very much pleased. "And who stepped on your dolly yesterday?" she asked. And back came the enlightening answer: "Why, I did, grandma."

The breechloading rifle was first demonstrated in 1851; twenty years later the magazine rifle appeared. The gatling gun, in crude form as compared with the machine gun of today, was first used in 1862.

"Who are you you writing to, Bill?" "I'm writing to Peter Veniot." "What are you writing to him about?" "I'm telling him that Lord Beaverbrook, on behalf of Lloyd George, wants him to take the post of Chancellor of the Exchequer and Leader of the House of Commons." "He'll decline, of course, and tell everybody of the great offer he has declined in the interests of his party and Liberal principles." "Do you think him fresh enough to take it seriously?"
