SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH WEST LAND REGULATIONS

The sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, who was at the commencement of the present war, and has since continued to be a British subject or a subject of an allied or neutral country, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion Land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for District. Entry by proxy may be made on certain conditions. Duties—Six months residence upon and cultivation of land in each of three years.

In certain districts a homesteader may secure an adjoining quarter-section as pre-emption. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—reside six months in each of three years after earning homestead patent and cultivate 50 acres extra. May obtain pre-emption patent as soon as homestead patent on certain conditions.

A settler after obtaining homestead patent, if he cannot secure a pre-emption, may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

Holders of entries may count time of employment as farm labourers in Canada during 1917, as residence duties under certain conditions.

When Dominion Lands are advertised or posted for entry, returned soldiers who have served overseas and have been honourably discharged, receive one day priority in applying for entry at local Agent's Office (but not Sub-Agency). Discharge papers must be presented to Agent.

HUNS SET PRICE ON RAEMAEKERS

The World's Greatest Cartoonist Offended That Only 12,000 Marks Is Offered

SIZES UP THE KAISER

Dutch Artist Wants To Make The World Realize What This War Means

Louis Raemaekers now in America, says he is humiliated to think that Germany has set a mere 12,000 marks on his head. Raemaeker is the world's most famous cartoonist. His cartoons score and scourge the Hun blonde beast in unmerciful fashion. The Kaiser would like to get his hands on the clever Dutch artist whose drawings have stirred the world.

American interviewers regard Raemaekers not merely as a cartoonist, but as an apostle of the war to make the world safe from democracy. He appeared to a representative of the New York Tribune "not as a newspaper cartoonist not entirely as a hard, vengeful fighter, but as prophet as well—a Peter the Hermit of crayon and drawing ink." Ever since the early months of the war we have been becoming more and more familiar and impressed with his drawings, and now he comes to America in person to draw pictures here as he frankly avows, to make us realize what it means to be at war. Personally he is described by the Tribune representative as a little man whose face is mild in repose with a red, mottled complexion, and hardens only when he speaks of Germany. This informant proceeds;

"He is not nervous, but his hands are never still— the slim, delicate hands of the artist. Always as he talks, they move. It is as if they were ever eager to continue the work to which he has given his life—as, if since they have begun striking at Germany with their terrible skill, they have no desire to rest until the job is done.

"Beat Him Over the Head."

These are the hands that first set the stain of Belgium upon the escutcheon of Prussia. They have opened the eyes of the neutral world to the horror that is German war. They have painted the hypocrisy and cruelty and treachery that is Prussia in its true light. They have drawn the Kaiser, Von Tirpitz, Hollweg and the other war-lords as civilization must learn to see them.

"And they belong to a man, insignificant in stature, mild of face, rather shy in manner, and yet a fighter for all that men hope to preserve—a hard, bitter, unrelenting warrior from his little feet in their grey spats to shining hair of his round head."

The New York Globe quotes him as admitting that his mother was a German and as disavowing that he is an anti-German fanatic. He can understand that there are many good citizens among the United States Germans who came out in 1848 and 1864 and immediately after the Franco-Prussian war are a "different breed from the Prussian superman." He says also that if all the Hohenzollern dynasty should die to-day and Schiedemann or even Liebnecht should become President of a German republic to-morrow, it would not alter Germany, for—

"Germany has an idea. The modern German has been so insistently and methodically taught that he is a superman, chosen by God to impose his will on the world, that he believes it with all his heart. He never doubts it. The German Socialist is no exception.

"There is only one way to reach the modern German. Beat him over the head. He understands nothing else. The world must go on beating him over the head until he says 'Enough.' Otherwise the world can never live with him.

"There are only two real things in the world to-day— most awful Prussian despotism pitted against democracy and liberty for civilization. You over here have photographs, movies, and reports. I have seen what it is with my eyes. Six weeks I passed at the English and French fronts under permit. I have talked with the mothers, with the fathers of the warring populations. I know what they think about their girls who have been taken to Germany to work in the fields, as the Boches say. Work in the fields! The German officers can select their "orderlies" from the girls of Lille.

Showing Up the Kaiser

In the meagre comment he makes on his own work, he says in The Evening Post that first he finds out what is happening, and then draws it to explain it to the people "all over the world and give them the whole story in one picture," and he proceeds;

"I read from the news of all the world, then try and combine the picture of the history of the moment. Every day we are making a living history. Let the Waterloos rest. We must take care of to-day. I am working to make the greatest number of people in the world understand the struggle for liberty— not the street man alone, nor the professor, but everybody. Sometimes the more educated will understand better than the man in the street; sometimes the man in the street will know better. And please make understanding (the phrase in Raemaekers' very own) that I am not trying to be witty or trying personal success as an artist or a cartoonist. I want people to know to think, to see the war as it is.

"I want the world to know the Kaiser as he is. (Raemaeker has never seen the Kaiser, but has studied the man for years, so that it is current talk that there is not an arist who depicts Wilhelm more correctly than he does—even friends of the Kaiser have admitted as much.) I have studied his doings, and the doings of the Crown Prince, so that I know them inside and out. Sketch the kaiser in words Well, he is a versatile man, a man who, I believe, exactly fits the description his father gave of him; 'Be careful of Wilhelm, because he is just as stupid as he is square-headed. He has a religious mania, is full of bigotry and conceit."

GENERAL FOYOLLE
who, with General Guillaumat, is leading the successful French offensive on the Verdun front.

BILLY SUNDAY PRAISES CANADA

Noted Evangelist Pays A Warm Tribute To People Of Dominion

NEXT DOOR NEIGHBOR

Loyalty of Dominion Magnificent; Canadians a Clean Living People

Not long ago the editor of Maclean's Magazine, asked "Billy Sunday to send a message to Canadians, expressing his feeling toward them. The great evangelist heartily responded as follows:

"I often speak of Canada as 'Our Sister of the North.' That is not a mere figure of speech with me. I mean it.

"Canada has been our next-door neighbor since we first set up housekeeping here. For all these years our front lawn has joined up with yours for a matter of three thousand years, and there never has been a fort nor a fence between. We have swapped things back and forth; our wives have borrowed and lent; when we got into a family scrap in the sixties, two or three regiments of you came over and helped us settle it; we've sent a big regiment over to help you in your present fight. And now Uncle Sam has taken off his coat, rolled up his sleeves, hitched his belt up a notch of two, and is going to pitch in and help you in dead earnest. Thank God that I have lived to see the American stars and stripes, the red cross of Britain and the tricolor of France waving from the same staff in all the streets of New York City, and everywhere in this country and in the countries of our common allies.

"I know a little about the people of Canada. I have spoken in Toronto, Vancouver and Victoria. I can say without flattery or any mental reservation whatsoever that I like you. You're clean-living people with respect for the Sabbath, and a veneration for the things of God, and you know how to fight as well as pray. I tell you I don't believe anyone, not even a Canadian, read with more pleasure and pride than I have done, the accounts of Canadian valor on the battlefields of France, and on all the seven seas. My blood tingles at your heroism, and so has the blood of every other man who is free and loves liberty.

"The loyalty of Canada to the Mother Country in her hour of trial is one of the most magnificent spectacles that men or angels ever looked upon. Your cause is our cause, and we are with you to the last ditch."
