IT WAS THE FIRST BREAK.

Sir Richard and Lady Cartwright's Youngest Son's Remains Interred.

Kingston, Oct. 13.—The funeral of the late Lewis Cartwright occurred from "The Maples" at 11 o'clock to-day. The gathering was private, save that it was attended by Hon. Messrs. Borden and Fielding, representing the Federal Cabinet, six delegates of the City Reform Association, H. A. Calvin, ex-M.P., B. M. Britton, M.P., Private Secretaries O'Hara and Burns, and family relatives. All the brothers and sisters of deceased were present.

The service at the house was conducted by Prof. Worrell of St. Mark's, Barriefield, after which the remains were taken to Cataraqui Cemetery, and vaulted. The bearers were members of the family. The death is the first break in Sir Richard's family.

MADAGASCAR IN REBELLION.

French Residents Have Been Murdered and Trade is Suspended.

Marseilles, Oct. 13.—Mail advices received here from Tamatave, Madagascar, say that the rebellion is general throughout the island. Some of the French settlers have been killed on the open roads. Trade between the interior and the coast is suspended.

East Toronto.

No particulars have been yet received by the Symons family regarding the death of Arthur Symons while braking on the Sante Fe road, west of Chicago, although a number of telegrams of enquiry have been sent.

The deceased used to work in the G.T.R. yard at York, and his brother yesterday received a letter from him, dated some 30 hours before the accident, telling of his prosperity and asking to be warmly remembered to his York comrades of old days.

Not willing to face dogs and an irate householder, in the person of Mrs. J. Maclean of the Danforth-road, burglars turned their attention to the hen house instead. They cleared out all the inmates, including some 10 fancy fowls, valued at $4 a pair. County Constable Tiddsberry found all the feathers in a field near by, but has got nothing else so far.

Johnnie McArthur, the East Toronto schoolboy whose whipping is to be aired in court, fell down yesterday and broke his right arm at the wrist. He is a nervous, sensitive boy, who has had wretched health until lately.

Dr. H W. Aikins Won.

In the Assize Court, Charles Shannon of 504 Yonge-street, painter, through John Macgregor, his counsel, sued Dr. H. Wilberforce Aikins of 204 Church-street for alleged unskilful medical treatment. Mr. D. E. Thomson, Q.C., was for the defence. The plaintiff's case is that the defendant was called in to treat the eyes of the plaintiff's infant child, Mabel, and it is alleged that in consequence of his neglect the child may lose the sight of one eye, and damages are claimed on behalf of parent and child. At 6 o'clock the Judge began to charge the jury, who ultimately brought in a verdict for the defendant.

Tollgates a Live Question

The authorities of York Township hold strongly to their view that with the abolition of the market fees went the county control of roads, and they say they are prepared to back up this claim. Reeve Hill has called a special meeting for Friday to discuss the matter. County Solicitor Robinson, on the other hand, says that the tollgate keepers may legally ask toll until the County Council meet in November. Everything is quiet on the Kingston-road. Enquiries fail to find any who have refused to settle them.

Bicycle and Rig Collide.

Yesterday at noon, as Miss Higgins, cashier in McPherson's shoe store, was wheeling at Yonge and Adelaide-streets, she collided with a rig driven by George Tomlin of Duke-street. The wheel was badly broken, and Miss Higgins escaped with a few bruises. Tomlin did not stop to ascertain whether the young woman was injured or not.

Over 4000 Sick Soldiers.

Madrid, Oct. 13.—A despatch from Havana says the sick and wounded among the Spanish soldiers on the Island of Cuba number 4200.

Refuse to Extradite Tynan.

Paris, Oct. 13.—The Figaro says the Council of State has decided to refuse the extradition of P. J. P. Tynan, the alleged dynamite conspirator, to England.

MAKE OUR OWN STAMP MILLS

Ontario Manufacturers Can Turn Them Out.

AT LEAST 300 ARE WANTED

This Province Will Find a Good Market in the B. C. Gold Fields.

Even Now the Big Ontario Dealers Should Have the Trade—Better Means of Communication are Absolutely Necessary for Close Inter-Provincial Trade—A Review of the Law Regarding the Question of Non-Assessable Stock—General Mining Notes.

Are our Ontario manufacturers and mercantile men preparing to take advantage of the extensive market which seems about to be thrown open to them by the development of the country's mineral resources?

In the hearing of The World a well-informed mining man the other day estimated that within the next year at least 300 stamp-mills would be introduced into the mining districts of northwestern Ontario.

Now the question is, where are these stamp-mills to come from? According to the present outlook the machinery will have to be imported from the United States.

It is asserted by those who should know that the manufacture of these stamp-mills is a comparatively easy matter, calling for no costly machinery in their construction, and that any of our engine and boilermakers could build them without much extra equipment. It is to be hoped that if the prophesied demand springs up Canadians will get the benefit of it.

But stamp-mills only constitute one item in a long list of things that the mining boom, if it continues, will create a market for in this province. In fact we may count on the manufacturers of and wholesale dealers in all lines of merchandise reaping a rich revenue from the opening up of the mineral bearing regions of Ontario and British Columbia.

Even now, the big dealers in Ontario should be carrying on a big trade in the Kootenay and kindred districts of the Pacific Province, were it not for the inaccessibility of these regions from the East. The proposed Crow's Nest Railway will remove this obstacle and then Ontario should get rich.

An Opinion From the Territories.

Instances are daily coming to light, says The Calgary Herald, to snow what this country is losing through the lack of proper communication with the Southern British Columbia mining regions. Not only are Alberta farmers and ranchers debarred from marketing their produce at a profit in the Kootenay district, but eastern Canadian wholesalers and manufacturers are losing to the Americans a tremendous business, which rightly belongs to our people. For the item of mining machinery alone hundreds of thousands of dollars are sent to the States, and probably millions more will be expended in developing the numerous properties for which money is now being raised. This money is mainly going into American pockets, partly because many of the people and much of the capital drawn to the gold fields come from that country; partly because railway connections attract the demand that way; partly because some of the machinery has not heretofore been made on a large scale in Canada. Canadian manufacturers want to be put in the closest possible connection with the demand for mining, smelting and refining the various ores of the province. This demand in the next few years is likely to attain immense proportions. Scores of mines will be opened and plants will be required for them. New smelters will be built and will have to be equipped. All this output should be made by Canadian workmen in Canadian workshops. The Crow's Nest Pass Railway ought to be built without delay, and the item of the tariff relating to mining and smelting machinery should be left untouched. As it stands all such machinery is admitted free of duty if it is of a kind not made in the country. If it is of a kind that is made in the country it is subject to a duty of 27 1-2 per cent.

Coast Cities Awake.

Victoria, Vancouver, Nanamio and other British Columbia cities have wakened up to the fact that the trade of their mining regions is all going to the United States, and they are uniting with a view to turn the tide of commerce in their own direction. The councils of the various municipal corporations are appointing committees to work in unison towards the procuring of efficient railway communication between Trail Creek and the coast.

Assay From an Ontario Mine.

Prof. Hillee of Port Arthur has forwarded the particulars of assays made by him of ore taken from the Saw Bill drifts. The first assay gave $175.74 and the second $54.47. The assays have been made from ore that showed no free gold in the panning tests. Assays made from ore showing free gold in the panning tests would run very much higher.

Non-Assessable Stocks.

Capt. Currie of Campbell, Currie & Co. writes the following letter:

Editor World: A few days ago in your columns you took occasion to point out that there was still some doubt whether so-called non-assessable mining stock was assessable or not.

Having taken part in the formation of several of the companies that have so-called non-assessable stocks, perhaps, although not a lawyer, my experience may be of some value in untangling a knotty problem.

At present there are several methods of forming companies for mining and selling non-assessable stock in British Columbia. There are the State laws of Washington, Montana and other mining States of the West; the Imperial Act of 1862, in force in British Columbia without amendments, and the Joing Stock Companies Act plus a clause in the Mining Act.

The stock is made non-assessable in every case by an evasion of the law. Why this should be necessary I cannot understand. I have not met a single individual yet that wanted mining stock to be assessable. Everyone interested asks for a simple law that will make mining stock sold at a discount non-assessable, and why such an Act is not passed I cannot understand; Colonel Baker, the Minister of Mines, says the law should be amended. I take it that he means in this way, so that it will not be necessary to evade it—anything else would kill legitimate investments and mining in British Columbia. We have such an Act in Ontario, but the fees are wildly exorbitant. The amount paid for a charter in Ontario would put a good mine on a paying basis. Two or three miners cannot form a mining company here, for miners are generally poor, and all the benefits of co-operation are lost.

Under the laws of the State of Washington a certain number of persons can sign articles of association and form a company with any amount of capital. The charter fee is only $15, and the charter will issue in a few days. The company then meets, and all the shares are handed over to the vendor of the mining claim as fully paid-up stock, in lieu of his title, claim or rights. The vendor then donates all the shares, except such portion as he may desire to retain, back to the company. A certain number is given back for the benefit of the treasury, called treasury stock, to be sold for developing the mine. The remainder is given to the promoters as their interests may appear, in return for a personal consideration, which is the price paid by them for the claim. This stock is commonly called promoters' stock, and is identical with the treasury stock, except that any money paid for it does not go into development work. The promoters usually agree and should agree to pool their interests until the treasury stock is sold, or agree not to sell at less than the treasury price. Otherwise the stock will be on the market at two prices, the promoters' stock underselling the treasury stock.

After these formalities have been observed the company registers in British Columbia under the Foreign Companies Act and carries on its business there. Now the only question that could arise is, will these American companies come under the British Columbia law? If the law could by any means be construed in that way we would have heard of it years ago. There is not one single case where the shareholders of such companies have either been squeezed out or assessed. This law is not the creation of yesterday, and if we go by precedents we can only assume that it is as near perfect as possible.

The next law is the Imperial Act of 1862. Canadian lawyers will find this Act discussed in "Lindley on Companies." It stands separate and unamended as one part of the Joint Stock Companies Act of British Columbia. A company can be incorporated under it, as it stood in 1862, or as amended in the consolidated statutes. You can take your choice. The universal choice is the old Act, and some of the best company solicitors of this province, who have had occasion to discuss this matter with me, have pronounced this Act the best ever enacted, and far superior to the modern company laws passed hurriedly by ill-advised legislators. Articles of association are signed and the same formalities observed in this case as in the Washington laws. All the stock is turned over to the vendor as paid-up stock. He gives the treasury a certain amount, and distributes the rest among the promoters for their money paid by them to acquire title.

Now I am informed by the members of the bar that all the decisions under this old Act of 1862 are to the effect that where disputes arise, the trial judges are not in any case to enter into an examination of the intrinsic or actual value of the property turned over in lieu of paid-up stock. This law has another advantage over the Washington law, or the British Columbia Joint Stock Companies Act. The directorate can reside anywhere in the British Dominions, and the head office need not necessarily be in British Columbia. A company was formed under this Act a few days ago in Toronto, and two of the best company lawyers in the city were called in to assist the promoters and to give their opinion on the law. When the procedure and the law were examined, they without the slightest hesitation pronounced it sound, and said the stock of a company incorporated under the Imperial Act of 1862, in force in British Columbia, was unassessable if the formalities were properly observed. It is needless to state that in every case they are.

Now in the case of the amended Imperial Act and the Joint Stock Company law of British Columbia, there is some doubt as to the assessability of stock. Recent decisions of the judge might permit of the juage taking into consideration the value of the mining property. There is, however, I understand, a clause in the Mining Act that permits of development stock being sold at a discount. Such stock would be non-assessable, but the doubt would apply to the promoters' stock. Only one transaction can be conducted by a company to evade the law, and any subsequent transactions under any of the charters, such as the buying of more properties, would cast a doubt on the stock.

I consider that the Ontario Act is the best law passed, if a few slight amendments were made, but the fees are far too high and the time it takes to incorporate needless. A mining company requires every dollar it can get to mine with. The fee for a charter should not exceed $25. Give the poor miners who want to form a company just as good a chance as the millionaires. There is no reason why the time of giving notice should be so long.

You will pardon this long letter, but I think I have made it sufficiently clear there are at least two forms of incorporation whereby stock is non-assessable, that is the American laws and the imperial Act of 1862. The laws are old ones, and no single case can be pointed out where holders of fully paid-up stock in British Columbia mines have been made liable either for a further call to assist in developing the mine or to pay creditors. Mining is conducted there on a cash basis with such companies. All the creditors could possibly take would be the machinery and the hole in the ground. The shareholders would not be called upon for any further contributions. Such is the intent of every joint stock company with a limited liability

Some questions have arisen as to the advisability of selling shares at less than par. All I can say is that I consider it better to do that and allow small Canadian investors to reap the benefits that may accrue from the development of our mines rather than issue debentures on the property to be sold in Europe, whilst the common stock is acquired for nothing by capitalists. If our mines are going to be productive, and this is going to be the greatest mining country in the world, the man of small means should have an opportunity of investing his earnings and reaping a large return just as well as the man of wealth. In the west men with very little capital have acquired wealth by wise investments. There is no reason why the small investor should be crowded out in Ontario.

In conclusion let me again point out that no case can be shown where holders of fully paid-up mining stock have been called upon by the courts for further assessment, although such stock has been traded in for years.

What is the sense of raising doubts in the minds of investors, and "bearing" the stock for the benefit of stock jobbers and scalpers?

METHODIST CHURCH BURNED.

A Fire, Believed to Have Been Incendiary, Destroys $12,000 Worth.

Simcoe, Ont., Oct. 13.—At 2 o'clock this morning fire broke out in the rear of the Methodist Church. It originated in the corner of the shed, which is built close to the church, and in which was considerable dry wood. The Rev. Mr. Prescott was one of the first on the scene, and noticed a stranger, apparently the worse of liquor, coming from the shed with a lantern. Suspicion points to the stranger, and it is generally thought to be incendiary. The building and contents are a total loss. Insured in the British America for $8000.

The church and its contents were valued at $12,000. There will be about $4000 not covered by insurance.

This is the third of a series of bad fires, supposed to have been incendiary.
