OVERSEAS OFFICERS MUST BE FIT FOR JOBS

Minister of Militia Says Two Battalions, Slated to Leave for the Front, Are Being Held Till Inquiry is Made Regarding Possible Change in Commands—Equipment Output Now Equal to Demand for All Recruits—Britain Looking After Needs of Canadians at Front With the Exception of Boots.

Ottawa, Nov. 2—Before any more battalions are allowed to proceed to the front, the minister of militia says there must be no doubt as to the training and ability of the officers in charge. Every officer must regularly qualify and demonstrate his fitness to command, says General Sir Sam. Because he is not satisfied on this point two battalions, which are now slated to leave for the front, are being held back pending further inquiry as to the staff of officers and a possible change in some of the commands.

The winter uniforming of all the Canadian troops, including both those now in training in Canada and the 50,000 men now in England, is said to be proceeding satisfactorily. The shortage of supplies which existed a few weeks ago, has now been practically overcome and the militia department officials claim there will be no difficulty in keeping pace with all the requirements of providing equipment for the new recruits as fast as they come in.

This, however, does not apply to the arming of the men immediately on their enlistment. Naturally, with the great demand for rifles all over the world, there has been difficulty in Canada, as elsewhere, in meeting the sudden demand for the regulation army service rifle, but it may be noted that every battalion which has so far left for the front has been completely armed with the regulation Ross rifle before leaving Quebec.

The manufacture of military clothing in Canada has now been organized on a basis which insures an output equal to all demands and some of the big firms, which have not been given orders for the Canadian troops, are available for equipment orders from Great Britain or France.

As for the Canadians now in France, it is worth noting that their equipment is being looked after by the war office which supplies new uniforms, etc., although the cost is being charged up to the Canadian government. The needs of the men before they leave England are, however, looked after directly by the militia department here. Experience has shown that the made-in-Canada uniforms last on the average about six months, and the only Canadian equipment now being sent directly to the men in the trenches consists of two pairs of new boots each, and a pair of larrigans. The minister of militia thinks that in the matter of footwear Canada now has the best article.

Her health had been comparatively good until about two weeks ago, when she fell down a flight of stairs in her home, sustaining severe injuries which, with the weakness of age, caused her to gradually sink, despite the efforts of medical skill. She is survived by one son, E. W. Kelly, a missionary in India; also one brother, Dr. E. Miles Kierstead, of McMaster University, Toronto; a number of grandchildren, including Arthur Kelly, of Calgary, and Miss Elizabeth Addison, a student at Acadia College, Wolfville, who hastened to her grandmother's bedside on news of her illness. A number of nieces and nephews also survive. Mrs. Edward Erb, of Apohaqui, is a niece.

Through some delay in telegrams, Dr. Kierstead, of Toronto, failed to get here to attend the funeral, as he wished, so sent a message of love and sorrow to be read at the funeral by the officiating clergyman.

The body was laid to rest on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, when Rev. J. L. Tingley conducted the services. After a short service at the home, the funeral cortege formed and wended its way to the Baptist church, where a very impressive service was held.

The pall-bearers were relatives, W. A. Kierstead, Newton Sharp, F. A. Kierstead and Edward Erb. A very large number attended the funeral

Moltkeism vs. Mahanism.

(New York Evening Post).

The English press will not be slow to pick up the statements now coming from Berlin that with the operations in the Balkans the war becomes a test of Moltkeism against Mahanism, of land power against sea power. London will take this as an admission of failure by Germany with regard to at least one object, which at one time was held out as the great object towards which Germany strove—the freedom of the seas.

Gunn, the well known commercial traveler, representing the Knox Manufacturing Co., of Toronto, died very suddenly this evening, just as he boarded the Maritime express going out on a trip. Mr. Gunn left his son's residence after tea in his usual good health and walked sharply to the station to catch the train, and just as he seated himself in the car he collapsed. The train had just started and the passengers called the attention of the conductor to his condition. The train was stopped and Mr. Gunn was conveyed to an automobile, but died before he reached home, about thirty minutes later.

WEDDINGS

Hovey-Weaver.

An event of interest to a large circle of friends took place at the Baptist church, Pereaux (N. S.), when at 1 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 16, Viola Beatrice, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David A. Weaver, of Pereaux, was married to Amos Arnold Hovey, pastor of the Baptist church at Newcastle Bridge (N. B.) Rev. Rupert S. Meadows, of the Pereaux Baptist church, officiated.

The auditorium of the church was artistically decorated by Acadia University friends of the contracting parties. A color scheme of green and white was carried out in evergreen, ferns and white carnations. A beautiful arch was arranged before the altar and, as a solo, Because You Come to Me was sweetly sung by Miss Evelyn Nelly, of Aylesford (N. S.), the groom, with the minister entered the room and stood beneath the arch. Immediately after, the bride, on the arm of her father and preceded by four young ladies acting as ushers, came up the main aisle and took her place beside the groom. At the close of the impressive ceremony the wedded couple passed out of the church while a wedding march was most skilfully rendered by Miss Ethola Frost, of the faculty of music of Acadia Ladies' Seminary.

Folowing the marriage, a large number of invited guests were received at the home of the bride's parents. Among those present from a distance was Mrs. Herbert Pond, of Boiestown (N. B.), a sister of the groom.

The bride was gowned in white satin with beautiful lace and pearl trimmings. She wore a veil, fastened with pearls and the groom's gift, an exquisite pearl-set pendant. The ushers, Misses Dora Lewis, Elizabeth MacPhee, Ethel Mitchel and Georgie Balcom, were gowned in pink and white.

The bride received many valuable presents, including a sum of money from her parents; a cut glass bowl and silver sadle from her former pupils at Acadia Seminary, and a luncheon set of Havland china from members of the faculty.

After the reception the happy couple started on their journey via Truro and Moncton, for their future home at New-
