TEXT OF PROTEST

OF FRENCH LEADERS OF ALL RELIGIONS

The text of the protest recently announced in a cable to the N. C. W. C. News Service against the Soviet religious persecution, drawn up and signed by the principal representatives of all the religions practiced in Paris, is as follows:

"Violent persecution is raging in Russia.

"The Soviet Government is attacking the religious idea, without distinction of faith or worship. It is an open fight, the avowed object of which is to uproot religion, which is considered as useless and dangerous, from the soul of the people.

"In order to arrive at this result, all means are employed; the confiscation of church property, the profanation of the churches, temples and synagogues, the parody of religious ceremonies, official atheistic schools, prison, torture and death. Everything is done to insure the success of an undertaking which is at the same time sacrilegious and anti-social.

"The execution of the Metropolitan of Petrograd, Benjamin, the recent trial of Mgr. Cepliak, the execution of Mgr. Budkiewicz, the imprisonment of the Patriarch Tikhon and the menaces used against him while awaiting his trial have aroused legitimate horror and universal reprobation.

"The persecution which strikes at the head of the religious confessions in Russia does not spare the ministers or the simple faithful; how many have died as a result of their attachment to their beliefs!

"The evil already committed is enormous, the suffering which has been endured and the fears entertained of a future still more terrible, oppress innocent souls. We cannot remain insensible to so much misery and, as far as it lies in our power, we wish to remedy it.

"Whatever our beliefs, we all have at heart the same sentiments of respect for religion, compassion for undeserved miseries, universal fraternity in the Father who is in Heaven.

"Strong in these sentiments, we protest unanimously against a regime of religious violence which nothing can motivate; we appeal to public opinion of the entire world in order that by every means in its power it may put an end to the persecution which oppresses our brothers in Russia and in order that it may endeavor to provide relief for the unhappy victims.

"We have the firm hope, and may God grant that this appeal find an echo among all men who have at heart the safeguarding of civilization of which religion is the indispensable guarantee."

The protest bears the signatures of Louis, Cardinal Dubois, Archbishop of Paris; Emmanuel Chaptal, Bishop of Isionda; E. Gruner, president of the Protestant Federation; Israel Levy, Grand Rabbi of France; Chauncey W. Goodrich, Pastor of the American Church, Paris; Frederik W. Bekman, Dean of the Cathedral of the Holy Trinity (American); W. Marshall Selwyn, Chaplain of the British Embassy Church; F. Anstruther Cardew, Chaplain of the Anglo-Catholic Church of St. George, Paris; Germanos Vassilakis, Superior of the Greek Orthodox Church.

GERMAN DISCOVERY IN MUSIC

Cologne, June 18.—Church music is expected to be greatly enriched as a result of the discovery of a key to the abbreviations made by the musicians of the periods preceding the use of modern musical notes.

The interpretation is the work of Dr. Oscar Fleischer, the Berlin professor.

There are many ancient manuscripts in Germany, over which modern scholars have pored for years, endeavoring to correctly interpret them. Dr. Fleischer's discoveries and interpretations, it is said, promise to revolutionize modern music and melodies lost for many centuries may again be brought into common use.

WHAT ABOUT TOMORROW?

School days are over. Convents and colleges are deserted. On their quadrangles and courtyards which have echoed to the loud talk and merry laughter of a boisterous youth, an unbroken silence now reigns supreme.

With cap and gown many young women have proudly and smilingly passed from the lecture halls of their Alma Mater into the broad world. For them, it is commencement day in the great university of life. Facing the various paths which open before the graduate many a young girl is now asking herself: "What about tomorrow?"

Tomorrow means life in all its seriousness, with all its possibilities of failure or success, with its inevitable relations with eternity. Tomorrow is that stretch of years that lie between school days and death, and give to life its usefulness, its full meaning. For life is but the realization of the ideals of youth. The fulness and valve of its years depend on the ideals that direct and support them.

Of all the ideals that appeal to youth none, we believe, is more germane to the enthusiasm, ambition and disinterestedness of that age, than that of "service." It implies the absorption of life in a worthy and noble cause. And when "service" means a life dedicated to God, to Church and Country, life itself is lifted to its highest plane.

The missionary endeavour of the "Sisters of Service" offers this ideal to the Catholic womanhood of our land.

Catholic women of Canada, what about tomorrow?

OBITUARY

MARK M. KELLY

It has pleased Almighty God in His Infinite Mercy to call from the midst of his dear parents, brothers, sisters and friends, Mark Kelly, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Kelly, who passed away to his heavenly reward on Sunday, July 1st, at the youthful age of twenty.

The deceased young man possessed a kind disposition. His humility, patience and charity were most remarkable, especially among his comrades at St. Jerome's College, Kitchener, and at Assumption College, Sandwich, where he attended. The funeral took place from his home in Kinkora, and proceeded to St. Patrick's Church where a Requiem Mass was celebrated by Reverend Father Hussey and thence to the cemetery for interment.

Surviving him are his parents, four brothers, Hugh, Wilfred, Albert and Gerald, and three sisters, Mary, Elizabeth and Louise, all at home. Besides these he leaves many dear relatives and friends. May his soul rest in peace.

HARVESTING ALFALFA HAY

EXPERIMENTAL FARMS NOTE

The number of farmers in Canada who are growing alfalfa is gradually increasing as its value as a hay crop becomes more generally recognized. At this time of year the best methods of making it into first quality hay are of prime importance to the alfalfa growers.

The first point to be considered is time of cutting. The methods or time vary widely with different growers, and each method has something to recommend it. Most growers gauge the proper time to cut by the stage of blossoming of the alfalfa plants and, while this may be an indication, the really proper indicator is the commencement of growth of the young shoots from the crown which will furnish the second or third growth, as the case may be.

If the alfalfa is cut before these small shoots start at all the second growth will be slow in starting and will, as a result, take considerably longer to make a second cut than when the first crop is cut just as these new shoots appear in the crowns. If, on the other hand, these shoots have started and made sufficient growth to be cut off by the mower, the second cut will be even more delayed. The proper time to cut, therefore, is just when the shoots of new growth are first noticeable at the crowns.

The length of time the hay should be left in the swath will depend both on the heaviness of the crop and the weather at cutting time. Care should be taken, however, to rake the hay into windrows while it is still a little tough, so that the largest possible percentage of the leaves will remain on the plants, as these are by far the most nutritious part of the hay. After curing slightly more in the windrows the hay should be put up in coils that are small in diameter in proportion to their height. This permits the hay to cure much more quickly than if put in large bulky coils, as the air can get through them better and there will be less danger of moulding.

Occasionally it will be possible to haul the hay direct from the windrow to the barn or stack, or, in stacking in very dry climates, direct from the swath to small stacks; but over a large portion of the country sufficient improvement in quality will be obtained by coiling to justify the expense.

Sufficient time should elapse in the coil to allow the hay to cure thoroughly, particularly if a large quantity is to be put into one mow in the barn. Otherwise, there is serious danger of the hay heating considerably in the mow and damaging the feeding value of it, as this heating almost invariably results in a dusty, rather unpalatable hay which is injurious to stock, particularly horses.

A Tale of the Irish Struggles of 1866 and of Recent Times

BY CHRISTINE FABER

Poor suffering Ireland! trampled long
Still art thou theme of tale and song.

The following story was written with the hope of contributing a little to that literature which seeks to delineate faithfully the Irish character—the faults of the latter have served too often as a fruitful theme, while its virtues were either ignored, or so caricatured that they failed to be appreciated, or even understood.

While the genial and spontaneous humor of the Irish people remain almost without a parallel, that very humor sometimes seems to obscure or conceal the heart depths beneath it—the spirit of sacrifice for loved ones, the intense affection for kindred, the heroic, and, in many cases, cheerful endurance of wrongs they were unable to rectify.

Such are some of the kindly qualities of the Irish, though alas! at times marred by sad blemishes; but side by side with these faults are virtues rare and bright, and to depict these virtues, with the hope of winning just regard for a people so long suffering, has been the aim of THE AUTHOR.
