WILD DUCK WITH GOLD IN CRAW.

Gold in the craw of a wild duck killed on the Klondike flats Friday is the latest sensation. The duck was killed by Jack Lee while on his way from the north fork of the Klondike. Col. Williams, of the Bonanza Basin dredge, bought the duck with a number of others. On opening the craw the colonel was surprised to find twelve gold colors there.

Where the duck got the gold is a question. It is known there is gold on the Klondike River bottom, but probably not so plentiful in any one known spot as to permit a duck to pan twelve colors with one crop full of sand.

The duck is a widgeon. It doubtless was on its way south with other birds of passage. Somewhere in the vast north, it appears, that duck must have fed on golden sands which would be a halcyon spot for the eager prospector. —Dawson Daily News.

THREE DEEPEST MINES.

It is probably a fact not generally known that the Michigan copper country possesses the world's three deepest vertical mining shafts.

The deepest of these is the No. 3 at the North Tamarack property, its measurement being 5,200 feet. To the south, at a distance of 4,000 feet, is the No. 5 shaft of the same company. This ranks as the second deepest vertical shaft on the globe, its measurement being 5,080 feet from the collar to the bottom level.

Second only to these great openings is the Red Jacket shaft of the Calumet and Hecla Company, which is down 4,900 feet, and in which the copper lode was not encountered until a depth of 3,300 feet had been attained.

The deepest incline shaft in the world is the Calumet and Hecla. This shaft itself, from the collar to the lowest level, is sunk on the plane of the lode for a distance of 8,100 feet, while from drift at the bottom a winze extends downward 190 feet to the boundary of the property, giving a measurement of 8,290 feet from the surface. No. 4 shaft passes the Red Jacket shaft at the 56th level.—Exchange.

JUBILEE SUNDAY FOR THE DIOCESE

Anniversary of Bishop Cronyn's Consecration Marked by Special Services.

Yesterday was the forty-ninth anniversary of the consecration of the late Right Rev. Benjamin Cronyn as the first Bishop of Huron Diocese and the day was marked by special services in the local Anglican churches. The diocese was set apart from the diocese of Toronto on Oct. 2, 1857, and before the month was closed Bishop Cronyn was consecrated by the Archbishop of Canterbury. The church throughout the diocese proposes to mark the jubilee by raising $20,000 to be devoted to the augmentation of the Episcopal Endowment Fund.

BISHOP OF HURON PREACHES.

His Lordship Bishop Williams preached the jubilee sermon in St. Paul's Cathedral yesterday morning. Speaking of the mission of the English Church he said:

"We should remember that there was an English Church before there was an English nation, and in fact the church led the way for the nation. The Church of England has always led the van of English liberty and progress. We would not have today English literature, English art or English liberty had it not been for the Church of England. If the church has accomplished these things in the old land, she can also accomplish them in this country, and with all the great development that Canada is going through at the present time we will need her aid in establishing a national character such as has made England what she is today.

"The Church of England combines all that is true and essential in both the Protestant and Catholic religions," the bishop continued. "The church has a mission not only to England and Canada, but to the whole world. We ought to study the history of the church, but at the same time it is necessary to keep in mind that the church is dead which looks only on the past. The past is useful only as it supplies us with wisdom and inspiration and energy. It avails us nothing that we have had great and unselfish men unless we are filled with the same passions that animated them. We ought further to remember that we cannot discharge our duties to Christ without sacrifices. The tendency nowadays is to be too zealous in amassing wealth, and we let our opportunities for doing good to our fellow men pass by unheeded. Let this year of jubilee be a year of readjustment."

At the Memorial.

At the Memorial Church last evening the rector, Rev. Dyson Hague, made reference to the jubilee of the diocese. He based his remarks on the message of Joshua, "I will not forsake thee; be strong and of good courage," and he said the promise came with special emphasis to the members of Huron Diocese, as they enter on its fiftieth year. The people of the diocese today should be particularly of good courage because of their marvelous advantages. In this connection Mr. Hague referred to the condition of the Church of England half a century ago, saying that when he thought of it he was astonished that the people of today should be discouraged. "Never forget our unparalleled privileges purchased by the early men of the church," said the speaker. "We must remember that only a few years ago this land was a howling wilderness, and men have come in and converted it into a land of plenty. It was a forest not many years ago, and we must not forget the men who came in for small salaries—men like the first bishop of this diocese, men like the late Archdeacons Brough and Marsh, Flood and Evans—and brought advantages of which you are reaping the benefit today. Woe be to our church if the young men and women forget the names of those who in the past have done so much for us. They should not forget the man who was the first bishop, the first rector who preached in this pulpit."

Dundas Center Methodist.

Rev. Seaford E. Marshall, M. A., of Berlin, delivered a strong sermon to young men at the Dundas Center Methodist Church in the morning. He exhorted them always to have the courage of their convictions, holding up Daniel as an example. The choir furnished special music, it being the anniversary of the Epworth League.

In the evening, Rev. J. H. Hector, the "Black Knight," spoke to a large congregation.

First Methodist Church.

In the First Methodist Church in the morning a special Sunday school anniversary was held, at which Rev. R. Whiting, of Hamilton, occupied the pulpit, Mr. Graham, the pastor, having exchanged with him. The choir furnished special music.

In the evening Mr. Whiting delivered a special sermon to young people, in which he made a strong appeal to them to set their thoughts on some hero and model their lives after the best that is in the life of their hero.

Reopening of Centennial Methodist.

Yesterday was anniversary and reopening day at this church. The congregations were treated to admirable sermons, in the morning by Rev. A. G. Harris, of Lambeth, a former pastor, and in the evening by Rev. James Livingstone.

The choir, under the excellent leadership of Mr. Bluethner, delighted the large audiences. The service of praise of this congregation is a marked feature.

The auditorium never looked so well as now, with its new, rich carpet, and restained and polished seating.

Tonight a social evening, with music and addresses by Dr. Daniel and Rev. Dr. Livingston, concludes the brightest and best anniversary in the history of this flourishing church. Tea will be served in the schoolroom from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

The Black Knight at the Auditorium.

J. H. Hector, the "Black Knight," addressed a mass meeting of men at the Auditorium in the afternoon. He was assisted by Mr. Albert Greenlaw, the well-known colored baritone soloist, and by Mrs. Hector and daughter. The attendance of men was the largest so far this year. Long before the opening of the meeting the Auditorium was filled and numbers were turned away.

Mr. Hector's address took the form of a temperance lecture. On being introduced by the secretary of the Y. M. C. A., who presided over the meeting, the speaker said that when he looked at such a large gathering of men, he could not help feeling what a wonderful power for good they could be if they would each do all that was within their power. It brought to his mind an incident which happened during the war between the north and the south. Forty thousand people were hemmed in on a small piece of ground, by flooded rivers, so that there was only one way of escape, and that had been cut off by several of the large guns of the enemy. For a time it appeared as if the 40,000 must starve, unless the enemy's guns could be spiked. Gen. Butler, who had come to relieve the unfortunate 40,000,found that there was only one way to get the enemy's guns away, and that was for a small body of men to take their lives in their hands and go right in and capture them. He called for volunteers, and every man in his command stepped forward to the line and offered to go. The sight caused the old general to beak down and shed tears. The guns were spiked and the 40,000 saved.

Mr. Hector went on to say that he would like to see this large gathering of men rise up and go forward to overthrow the power that is keeping so many families of poor, staggering, red-nosed, blear-eyed drunkards in hunger, poverty and misery. He expressed the hope that they would do their best to have no licenses in London, or in all Canada, and have the saloons shut up, not as they are shut up now after hours, with the back and front closed, but the sides open like the new style ladies' dresses—but shut all round.

Speaking of the arguments being made in favor of the liquor traffic, he said that at one time it was maintained that slavery was a divine institution, ordained by God, but no man ever dares to offer such an argument now. Just in the same way as the emancipation of the negro was accomplished by persistent effort, so can the abolishment of the liquor traffic, which is such a curse to our country today, be overcome, if people go about the work in the right way.

Mr. Hector compared many of the professing Christians of today to an army he once heard of, which used to drill all the time, but never did any fighting, and therefore was never of any good. They would charge on cornfields, tear down fences, and march about until they had the earthworm baldheaded, but never accomplished anything. Just so, he said, many people go through religious duties like a soldier marking time—they do not go forward. They go to church, go home from church, go to church, go home from church, for years, and never do anything to help the good cause along. "Let's get out and do something to destroy the great power that is destroying us," urged the speaker.

Mr. Hector will speak in different city churches each night during the week, excepting Saturday evening. He is a great champion of the temperance cause, and his lectures are well worth hearing. Wit, humor and song are worked in with the great principles that Mr. Hector advocates, in such a way as to make his lectures very enjoyable.

Other Churches.

Bishop Williams preached at St. James Church in the evening on "Character Building."He compared the building of character to the building of a house on a good foundation. After the service fourteen candidates were confirmed.

On Nov. 8 the Memorial choir will render the social cantata, "Ruth," which they are preparing under the direction of Miss Moore.

At St. Andrew's Church in the evening Mr. Francis Firth rendered a pleasing solo.

Rev. Dyson Hague, of the Memorial Church, has gone to Toronto to lecture to the students at Wycliffe College.

In the Park Street Church, Chatham, on Saturday, Rev. Dr. Daniel, of the Colborne Street Methodist Church, this city, conducted anniversary services.

The newly-appointed divisional officer of the Salvation Army in this district, Staff-Capt. Hay, assisted by Adjutant Crichton, conducted special services at Woodstock on Sunday.

At both services Rev. W. C. Beer, of this city, preached in the Central Methodist Church.

A union meeting of the Centennial Methodist, King Street Presbyterian, and Adelaide Street Churches is to be held on Wednesday evening in the Adelaide Street Church. The meeting, which is under the auspices of the London Temperance League, will be addressed by the "Black Knight" (Rev. J. H. Hector), who is expected to be assisted by his daughter and Mrs. Hector.

The Sunday school of the First Methodist Church held its anniversary day yesterday. The children gathered in the church at both services, which were conducted, by the Rev. R. Whitting, of Hamilton. The Sunday school choir sang both morning and evening.

PUBLIC QUESTIONS TO BE DISCUSSED

Canadian Club Decides to Take Up Municipal Matters at Bi-Monthly Meetings.

The executive of the Canadian Club of London have resolved to hold a series of meetings to discuss matters that may be of interest to the citizens generally, and for this purpose have appointed a committee, consisting of Mayor Judd, Hon. Senator Coffey, Jared Vining, B.A. Fred W Daly, B.A., H. B. Ashplant, Dr. John D. Wilson, J. M. Gunn, B.A., J. A. Cottam and S. Frank Glass, to carry out necessary details

A meeting of this committee was held at the general committee room, city hall, on Saturday afternoon. Dr Wilson occupied the chair, and stated that the object of the meeting was to devise some plan to conduct bi-monthly debates on subjects of public interest, among which might be mentioned municipal government, municipal ownership of waterworks, gas and light, and such matters. The public, the doctor said, were taking a great interest in these matters, and he thought they were subjects that might be discussed and debated in public, and by so doing they would no doubt assist in framing legislation of advantage to the city. It was finally resolved to initiate the campaign at as early a date as possible. The first meeting will be held in the city hall on Thursday night next, Nov. 1, and similar meetings will be held on alternate Friday nights following. The subject for debate at the opening meeting will be: "Resolved, it would be in the best interests of our city to change its municipal system of government, by placing the executive in the hands of a paid commission, leaving legislative matters only to the board of aldermen."

The affirmative in the debate will be supported by Mayor Judd and J. A. Cottam, while Dr. J. D. Wilson and Jared Vining will uphold the negative.

The public are cordially invited to attend, and especially the ladies. It has been arranged that fifteen minutes will be given to the leaders in the debate, and ten minutes to their supporters, after which the debate will be open to the discussion of the public, five minutes being allowed to each speaker. The committee have also arranged for a programme of music, which will add interest to the gathering

As it has been arranged that these meetings will be held fortnightly, on each alternate Friday, a committee composed of Aldermen Gillean, Forristal, Greenlees, Cooper and Secretary S. Frank Glass, was appointed to interview the city council at its next meeting to secure its permission for holding the meetings in the city hall.

For the second meeting, to be held on Friday, Nov. 16, Mr. J. P. Jaffray, of Galt, has kindly consented to give an address on the question of municipal ownership, after which the meeting will be thrown open for debate.

A committee, composed of Jared Vining, Fred W. Daly, H. B. Ashplant and Secretary Glass, was appointed to arrange details and draft resolutions for debate, full announcements of which will be given at the meeting on Thursday night next. The Canadian Club ask the co-operation of citizen generally in debating these questions, which must necessarily be of interest to every citizen of London. During the series of meetings prominent speakers will be invited to assist.

FIREMEN CHECK DANGEROUS BLAZE

Started in Storehouse Close to a Shed Filled With Oil.

A spark from a passing locomotive is supposed to have been the cause of a fire which broke out on Saturday afternoon in a storehouse of the McClary Manufacturing Company, on the south side of York street, immediately west of Wellington, and along the line of the G. T. R.

The firemen were called, and as usual were on the ground in quick order, but by the time they arrived the flames were burning fiercely, and dense columns of smoke were rolling upward, blocking the view of the seat of the fire.

A short distance away was a shed filled with barrels and cans of oil, and as soon as the chief became aware of this he placed his men between the fire and this shed.

In a short time the flames were conquered, but the fire held out stubbornly for an hour or more.

Had the flames reached the oil house, undoubtedly a very bad fire would have resulted. As it is, the loss will only be slight.

Talking about hazing in British schools, the dean of Canterbury said he once had to drink a glass of salt and water so thick with salt that a rules would stand upright in it and it did not do him any harm.
