NOTES

1. The quotations in this paragraph are from The Assault on the U.N., by Alexander Uhl, published by the Public Affairs Institute, 312 Pennsylvania Ave., S.E., Washington 3, D.C. This 35-page pamphlet is filled with other quotations of the same tenor.

2. The Cross and the Flag is the magazine edited by Gerald L.K. Smith, leader of the Christian Nationalist Crusade. The quotation is from its December 1952 issue and is reproduced from the important book, Apostles of Discord, by Ralph Lord Roy (Beacon Press, 1953).

3. The quotations are from editorials in the Chicago Tribune of Oct. 28, 29, 30, 1953--days when this study was in process of preparation.

4. The text of the Atlantic Charter may be found in many books of reference, as for example Charter of the United Nations: Commentary and Documents, by Leland M. Goodrich and Edvard Hambro (World Peace Foundation, Boston, 1946).

5. United Nations and World Community, by A.H. Feller. (Little, Brown and Company, 1952.)

6. The Churches and the United Nations, by Walter W. Van Kirk. (Distributed through the National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A.; 1952.)

7. "What Shall We Do with the U.N.?" by John Foster Dulles. (The Christian Century, Sept. 3, 1947.)

8. World Against War. An Account of the U.N. Technical Assistance Programme for Economic Development. (United Nations Publication, Geneva, Switzerland, 1953.)

9. The quotations from Senator Lodge, Paul G. Hoffman, Bishop Sherrill and Mr. Firestone are from an article, "The Eight Biggest Lies About the United Nations," by Arthur D. Morse, in the Readers Digest for October 1953.

10. Quoted from The United Nations and Our Religious Heritage, by Justin Wroe Nixon. (The Church Peace Union, New York, 1953.)