BUTTONS For Ulsters.

Ivory—8c. per dozen.

What do you pay for the commonest composition buttons for ulsters? about 12 cents. And for solid ivory? say 30 cents.

We start from that.

Supposing you could buy the twelve cent kind for eight—that would be cheap, but supposing you can buy the thirty cent kind for the same price—that would be cheaper. That is what you can do. Perhaps you think it strange we should give so much space to such a small matter as buttons, but the amount you can save on that item alone might be inducement enough in itself for you to purchase your ulster cloth at our store; while the figures at the top represent the amount to be saved on this lot of buttons.

School children should call for "The Dry Goods Herald," a pretty little illustrated paper to be had free on application.

BUTTONS—For Dresses. For Jackets. Black. Oxidized.

Jet buttons that won't break—a fact—guarantee: for every button that breaks we will give you as many as you have on your dress.

No idle warrant this, as back of our guarantee is the word of the maker to us. "For every button that breaks I will give you a box." You can understand why we are anxious to discover every broken button as we would be gainers with you in such an event.

What is the actual worth of such buttons? Taking into account the fact that it relieves you of the necessity of getting a half dozen extra every time you buy buttons "for fear one might come off," they are worth much more than the prices, which are twenty-five and thirty cents per dozen, for dress size.

These buttons are to be had only at our store.

SECOND EDITION.

THE LOAD WAS TOO HEAVY.

A Case that Attracted Much Attention and Pity.

BY TELEGRAPH TO THE GAZETTE.

NORTH ANSON, Me., Oct. 30.—The history of a young lady who was lately buried in this town was most pathetic and adds one more victim to the many who have died of broken hearts with blasted hopes and expectations. She was a nice pretty little girl, who went from here and found employement writing in an office in a Kennebec city. She had no home and was almost friendless, but through her connextion with a church, as a worshipper and a Sabbath school scholar, she became acquainted with a young man, a student, who was fitting himself for the university. Their acquaintance ripened into affection and finally an engagement was announced. All went well for several years, but in the lapse of time a change came over the demeanor of the young man. He was attending one of the Maine colleges and met another girl whom he fancied, and, apparently without a pang of regret, he broke off the engagement. The blow fell with crushing force upon the little girl. She had looked forward to the enjoyment of life in a home of her own. The breaking of the engagement broke her heart. For a few mornings she appeared at her desk but a heavy load was upon her mind and she was never herself afterwards. Once she attended church and heard the young man preach and wept all through the service. The load was too heavy and she fell into a decline, being obliged to give up her position. Returning to North Anson, where a friend lived, she took her bed and died, the funeral occurring last week. The case has attracted much attention and feelings of pity from those knowing the circumstances and creates much comment.

Nearly Fifty Rounds.

BY TELEGRAPH TO THE GAZETTE.

HAMMOND, Ind., Oct. 30.—Four hundred people witnessed a 47-round fight yesterday between Louis Michaels, the "Belgian wonder," and W. J. Nelson, the "colored phenomenon." Four-ounce gloves and Queensbury rules were used. The negro proved the better pugilist, and in the latter part of the contest, chased the Belgian around the ring and knocked him down at will. The white man took an extraordinary amount of punishment. He was knocked down six times in the 47th round, and was insensible when dragged to his corner. After the call of time, the negro was declared the victor. The fight lasted a little over three hours.

THE MURDER TRIAL.

J. H. Wasson Once More on the Stand.

The McDonald examination was resumed at 2.30 this afternoon, J. H. Wasson being the first witness put on the stand. He stated briefly his duties as an employe of T. B. Barker & Sons. He knew McDonald. Had known him since he was employed in Barker's first. McDonald was employed principally in the sundry room He sometimes marked parcels. Have not looked in the sundry room since McDonald's arrest to see whether I could get any packages marked by him. [Samples of writing shown] These are similar to McDonald's writing. I have seen his writing in the hand book in the store, but cannot tell whether he wrote in different styles. I cannot recall any conversation with McDonald when he was with us first, several years ago, about the bible or on religious subjects. I can recall a conversation with McDonald after he was with us the last time, in reference to church attendance, I do not remember making any remarks about the observance of the Sabbath day, or with reference to clergymen. When I asked him if he still attended Germain street Baptist church he replied in the negative and said he was an atheist. Witness went on to make such testimony as he had made on the occasion of the inquest. He knew they had in stock comb boxes like those shown. Knew they had strychnine in stock, but could not remember having sold any lately.

To Mr. Stockton—Have heard people arguing on religious questions. Have known people to say just opposite to what they think, especially in religious argument. Have seen other clerks than McDonald back in the evening.

A CHRISTIAN SCIENCE TRADE.

A Wife Sold in Obedience to the Revelations of the Faith.

From the Minneapolis Tribune.

Many years ago George Weikoff took unto himself a wife. Years rolled on, and George went to work in the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul shops at South Minneapolis. Both husband and wife by this time were past the prime of life. They resided in a comfortable dwelling house in the vicinity of Fourth avenue and Lake street.

The husband continued to ply his trade, and his wife finally joined the ranks of Christian Scientists. Soon she practiced Christian Science healing. She became so imbued with the spirit of the doctrine that after much deliberation she found that her husband was not her "soul's affinity." At first the exact whereabouts of her kindred spirit did not become revealed to her, but not for long was she allowed to grope in darkness. As a light from heaven, the truth flashed upon her, and she found her "souls affinity" in the person of one Henry Bratsch.

Henry is no longer a youth, having passed his 40th year. By trade he is a machinist and works alongside of George Weikoff in the railroad shops of South Minneapolis. He is well to do and is reputed to own property valued at $40,000. Most of it lies within the city limits of St. Paul. He boarded at 3,028 Fort street, South Minneapolis, with the Weikoffs.

Harry had passed the age of sentiment, but his fellow workman's wife, who rejoices in the name of Henrika Weikoff, cast the spells of her Christian Science over him, and he fell a ready victim to her wiles. He became a believer in this strange doctrine. The truth suddenly dawned upon him that Henrika had the other half of his soul. The truth had not long been revealed to them before they became "two souls with but a single thought." The only difficulty in the way of the consummation of their faith presented itself in the inoffensive husband. But now this trifle has been removed and they are free to practise their belief as far as George, the husband is concerned. Henrika Weikoff owned a house and lot on Fort street, and, to satisfy her husband, she mortgaged this property for the sum of $900, $500 of which she paid her husband, he agreeing to sign a deed of separation releasing her from all matrimonial control in consideration of the sum above mentioned.

Henry Bratsch paid over $500 to Weikoff yesterday, and the necessary papers were drawn up by a well-known attorney of this city. As security Bratsch took the mortgage on Mrs. Weikoff's property. All parties are now happy. The two loving souls can yearn to their heart's content without the interference of a husband. Mrs. Weikoff has two grown-up children. One of them is a young man and a prominent officer of a secret society. Shortly Mrs. Weikoff will institute proceedings for divorce from her legal husband, and the climax of this strange story will occur when the marriage bells ring on the occasion of the marriage of Henry Bratsch and Henrika Weikoff. All the parties to the affair were interviewed this afternoon and admitted its truth.

His Body Laid in the Grave And the Earth is Being Filled in When he is Found to be Living.

SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.

MONTREAL, Oct. 30.—La Minerve says—A shocking occurrence has happened in the neighboring parish.

A few days ago, Auguste Archambault who had been treated for Bright's disease but got no better was seen to fall backwards, and the physicians pronounced him dead. He was kept two days and many of his relatives and friends accompanied the hearse to the church and grave. His coffin was lowered and the process of filling in the earth was in rapid progress when some one thought he heard a moan. Every one listened and to their horror the moan came from grave. Hastily the coffin was raised and on removing the lid a live man was seen struggling for breath. Two physicians were summoned and succeeded in restoring the man to consciousness. Archambault is doing well.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

Mr. Scott's Paper on an Old Time Landlord and his Tenants.

The season's work in the New Brunswick Historical Society was opened last evenihg. The members present were:

President W. P. Dole, Jonas Howe, Jas. Hannay, G. L. Robinson, Col. Cunard, Mr. Crawford, John C. Miles, Dr. Inches, C. N. Skinner, M. P., Gilbert Murdoch, S. D. Scott, C. Ward; Joseph Ewing, and D. P. Chisholm.

Publications were acknowledged from the Lundy's Lane, the Manitoba, Maine State, and New York historical societies.

The President stated that the publication of the papers that had been read before the society in former years would be commenced at once. He also announced that during the winter, papers would be read by Jonas Howe, James Hannay, Joseph W. Lawrence, Clarence Ward and other members.

A paper was read by S. D. Scott on An Old Time Landlord and His Tenants. The landlord was Colonel Frederick Wallett Desbarres. After some remarks about the contributions of the Huguenot refugees to the settlement and the defence of the American colonies and tracing Colonel Desbarres' ancestry, Mr. Scott gave a brief sketch of his military career, drawing from the Haldimand papers, Brown's history of Cape Breton, a lecture of Judge Morse of Amherst and other sources, referring to services in the frontier states, at Louisburg, Quebec and St. John's, Newfoundland. The next service was the more peaceful one of surveying and preparing charts of the North American coasts. While this work was going on Mr. Desbarres secured by grant and purchase 8,000 acres of land at Minudie, 8,000 at Maccan and Nappan, 20,000 at Tatamagouche and 20000 acres at Memramcook. The Minudie estate Mr. Desbarres settled with Acadians, who reconstructed the dykes at the proprietor's expense, and who were provided with stock and seed grain, from the produce of which the proprietor was to receive a share. A sketch of the personal history of some of these French families was given, with some account of their manner of life, traditions, superstitions, and character as settlers. To show the impression entertained of the place by English settlers, a letter was read from Luke Harrison, a Yorkshire man, who lived on a farm rented from Colonel Barren, near the Desbarres estate, and who in 1774 gave a gloomy account of the country, where, he said the people were eaten by mosquitoes all summer and frozen all winter. The Maccan and Nappan estate was settled by Yorkshire men and others, some of the lots falling to American refugees, who arrived some time after.

The names of these tenants, with a brief account of their fortunes, was given. The Memramcook estate which Mr. Desbarres purchased was settled by Acadians, and the Tatamagouche property for the most part by Swiss or Germans who were a sort of hereditary friends of the proprietor. These included the Tattrie, Bigneys, Langilles, Metetals, Grattrie's, Joudrys, Patriquens and others, who formed at Tatmagouche, a small French-speaking community, employed a schoolmaster to read prayers for them, and lived quite devout lives under circumstances of considerable hardship. Colonel Desbarres was instrumental in securing the grant of a large estate in what is now Albert county, on the bank of the Petitcodiac river, to General Haldimand, the war governor of Canada, and his partners, Hoops, Hessencleaves and Wallace. He also assisted in settling these lands with a German colony brought from New York.

Having described the foundation of the various settlements, Mr. Scott told of General Desbarres' business transactions with Haldimand, quoting at some length the colonel's pathetic story of his unfortunate financial condition, and of the losses he sustained through the glib tongue and fine address of a land boomer and general promoter named Ferreux, who victimized Haldimand, in Canada, Desbarres, Avery and Deschamp in Halifax and Huston and Allen at Fort Cumberland. The importunities of creditors on one occasion did what the enemy was never able to do—cause the gallant colonel to take to take to flight. From his refuge in Tatamagouche whither, to use his own euphomistic language, he had journeyed un peu precipitant he poured out his sorrows to his friend Haldimand.

The first part of Mr Scott's paper closed with a reference to Mr. Desbarres' law suit with ex-Governor Franklin, and to the completion of the charts of the coast survey on which the colonel labored for several years in England, hoping to obtain a suitable reward for his arduous work, and struggling with his debts.

The history of the proprietor, his farms and his tenants will be resumed next month.

At the close of the meeting, Mr. Hannay in moving a vote of thanks to Mr. Scott for his interesting and valuable paper expressed the opinion that the best work in which a historical society could be engaged was in collecting information about the planting of settlements and the daily life and circumstances of the pioneers. The vote of thanks was seconded by G. L. Robertson and carried unanimously.

The next meeting of the Society will be the annual meeting, when the election of officers will take place.

The Mill Street Retaining Wall.

The retaining wall to be built along both sides of Mill street at Portland bridge, will be a big job. The specifications call for a good solid stone wall to be built on a foundation of timber. The walls on the east side of the street will extend from near the railway crossing to Paradise Row, and that on the west or lower side will run from the railway crossing around to Mr. Fisher's pond. They are to be built so that the thickness at the base will be equal to half the height. At the culvert, where the water used to escape from the old pond, the walls will be about twenty feet high. The work of clearing away and making preparations for laying the foundation has been commenced between the railway crossing and Messrs. McGoldrick's premises. Mr. John McGourty is the contractor. He is to receive $2.24 per cubic yard for building the wall.
