J. L. STEWART, ... EDITOR.

FRIDAY EVENING, NOV. 14, 1873.

Out of Tune.

The organs of the new Government are not yet in tune; and the harsh discords in the music must be shocking to Ministerial ears. The Telegraph had no sooner followed Mr. Burpee over to the Grit camp than it manifested a disposition to take charge of the Ministry, the party, the other organs, and the party it had deserted. It said: "Ah, we're all Liberals together; no true Liberal can be on the other side; even Mr. Mitchell is on the road to our camp; let us embrace." But the others don't appreciate this at all. They refuse to embrace. They are just as hostile to Liberalism and its great standard bearers in the Confederation coalition now as they ever were. Listen to the voice of the only paper in St. John whose editor enjoys the full confidence of the Ministers. According to this faithful follower of Mr. Mackenzie's fortunes. "Mr. Tilley is a 'carpet-bagger' of the meanest class" who "sneaks out of political life by the back door" and seeks "a temporary hiding-place at Fredericton." He is "a wretched knave," "an ass braying through a lion's skin," "a great political criminal" whom "many had previously found out."

And yet the life-long friends and supporters of Mr. Tilley—the Liberal party of the City and County of St. John—are asked to vote for the nominees of Mr. Tilley's traducers.

The New Family Compact.

One of the returned Parliamentary gentlemen, when asked why Mr. Anglin had not been taken into the Cabinet, said:

"The Family refused to have him in it."

"The Family! Whose Family?"

"The Burpee Family, of course. There was Isaac, of St. John, you know, and his uncle Charles, of Sunbury; Appleby, of Carleton, Charles's nephew; Pickard, of York, whose mother is a Burpee; and Senator Wark, whose wife is Isaac's sister. Here, you see, were four votes in the Commons and one in the Senate, and every one of them said Anglin should not go into the Cabinet."

"And Mackenzie couldn't afford to lose their votes?"

"Just so; his majority was too small."

"What about the Speakership of the Senate having been offered to Mr. Anglin?"

"Oh, that was a mere sop for wounded expectations. If he had accepted it he would have had to wait until a vacancy occurred. There is none at present."

"Sir John seems not to have been influenced by the Family so easily as his successor."

"That's just the trouble. If Mr. Tilley had been made Governor months ago when Wark advised it, Charles suggested it and Isaac insisted on it, and his seat in the Cabinet given to Isaac, there would have been no revolt of the Family."

"What do you suppose Mr. Anglin will do about it?"

"Nothing at all. He worked hard for the overthrow of the late Ministry—seemed to live and move on God's earth for no other purpose—and he is too anxious for the permanency of the present regime to allow his personal wrongs to make him falter in his allegiance."

The Cuban War Cloud.

The sanguinary struggle in Cuba seems likely to last for ever. All the efforts of Spain, and of the Spanish rulers of Cuba, have been foiled by the insurgent natives. Captain-General has succeeded Captain-General, army has followed army, corps after corps of volunteers have been sent into the field, but the rebels still hold a large portion of the island. The war has been maintained by the Cubans with very little outside aid. The United States, which has always been accused of an anxiety to get possession of Cuba, has maintained a neutrality so strict as to gain the execration of Cuba Libre. The State Department of Washington has been accused of being influenced in favor of Spain by the enormous fees paid by Spain to the son-in-law of Secretary Fish for legal services. The leading papers of the Union have long condemned the course of the Government in the matter, and demanded that the revolted Cubans be recognized as belligerents. The civilized world, shocked at the barbarity with which the contest is conducted, has long been ready to applaud any interference that would stop the struggle. Spain's last act, the condemnation and execution of the crew of a steamer caught carrying arms and ammunition to the rebels, has aroused an excitement in the United States that is felt even in Washington, and we should not be surprised if Mr. Fish's son-in-law should fail to prevent the Washington Government taking some action in the matter. If President Grant had recognized the Cubans as belligerents, as he should have done long ago, there would have been no pretext for the wholesale butchery of the men of the Virginius, and this recognition should be no longer delayed. The recent elections have shown a great loss of administration strength, and the Washington Government cannot afford to longer brave public opinion by allowing the Spanish atrocities to continue.

AQUARELLE Vignettes and Miniatures at NOTMAN'S.

THE OLD AND THE NEW.

A maiden wept sore for the year that lay dead,
And she wept in the depth of her sorrow;
As though with the Old Year all brightness had fled
To that long night that knows not the morrow.
She thought of the Old Year, his goodness and love,
Not of the days of his anger and gloom,
And forgetting the New Year's promise of joy,
Sang as one sings at the gates of Hope's tomb:
"Strong is faith, but far stronger, despair,
Which prevails evermore.
Bright is the river of life, and fair,
Till it breaks on death's shore:
Sad and dark is that shadow of death:
Sun, moon nor stars shine there,
Nor Spirit of joy, with happy breath,
E'er seek t' assuage its care:
Nor aught gladsome or brave
Ever tenant the grave,
Nor aught that is fair."

Ah! sad was the maiden, and bitter each tear,
And wierd and black was the chill wintry night;
The Angel of morning still slept, and the dear
Clouds of gloom veiled the spirit of light.
So the Old Year died, and went down from the land
E'en as his fathers had gone down before,
And the winds and the waves a requiem sang
Over the dead that should live never more.

Then gloomier still grew the night, till afar,
Low down in the East, where dwelleth the morn,
'Twas whispered on Earth, by a soft gloried star,
"Weep not for the Old—a New Year is born."
And the New Year came, pure, and hopeful and bright,
Who listening near, heard the maiden's cry:
And then, ere the dawn of the first morning light
He sang her to rest with his lullaby:
"Mourner sad, hear the Angels singing:
Fear not, but ever hope,
Love's sweet echoes still are ringing;
Then, maiden, look thee up.
All God's p ire saints their vigils keeping,
Look brightly down on thee.
Cease, maiden sad; cease thou thy weeping,
Nor longer fearful be.
Mourn not the past—all earthly joys die,
Be they ever so bright.
Let thy soul on faith's wings upward fly;
Then thou shalt see the light."

And the song of the year drove away the maid's sorrow,
For its burden of hope made the soul of good cheer.
She still loved the past, but she trusted the morrow,
And with joyful heart greeted the happy young year.
So with faith like the maiden's
We sing unto you:
May your New Years be gladsome,
And honest and true,
Till your journey is finished,
And you reach the brink
Of that mystical river,
Whose waters, I think,
Are formed of the tears
That are shed for dead years,
For out of those waters Faith points to the realm of the blest,
Where time is forgotten forever, and dawneth God's Rest.

Brevities.

On dit that the insolvents of the city will bring out a candidate to contest for Hon. S. L. Tilley's seat. These retired gentlemen are so numerous that they think they can successfully carry an election.

Yesterday John Crowley was found guilty of being one of the Hampton rioters. He and Napoleon Brothers were sentenced to six months in the penitentiary.

By the last Gazette Frederick A. Morrison, Charles N. Skinner, and Frederick E. Barker, Esquires, are appointed Commissioners for the revision of the laws of this province, and Edward L. Wetmore, Esq., clerk to the Commission.

A team belonging to Doherty's brewery last evening collided with Mr. Charles Hatheway's carriage and a horse-car in Main street, Portland. The result was a general spill from the two carriages. Capt. Hatheway was not injured, but Burke, who was driving the brewery team, received a severe cut on the head.

The Courier says that Robert Starr, a brakeman on the N. B. & C. R. R., was killed in St. Andrews Wednesday morning while shackling two cars.

The foundation stone of a new Episcopal Church was laid at St. Mary's, York Co., on Tuesday, by his Lordship the Bishop of Fredericton. He was assisted by several clergymen, and a large number of parishioners were present.

Personal.

George F. Taylor, Esq., formerly teacher in Sheffield Academy, has been secured as teacher for the St. Stephen Advanced School.

A. Chipman Smith and C. A. Robertson arrived last evening. They are just from Ottawa and have the air of mystery that hangs round a Cabinet Minister. Though most persistently interviewed they would not give any opinion on the situation. In a few days they may possibly "thaw out" a little and be inclined to throw light on the great questions of the day.

The next important arrival was Hon. Judge McDonald of Antigonish, late Minister of Militia. He looked the picture of content as he sat by the fire with a TRIBUNE reporter. He spoke of his past political life. A little over six years ago he was wafted into power, an opponent of Confederation, defeating the Hon. W. A. Henry, then Attorney General of the Province. He now retires from Parliament, and takes a position on the Supreme bench of his native Province. He expects that the Hon. W. A. Henry will contest Antigonish County for the seat rendered vacant by his elevation.

Hon. David Laird, of P. E. I., also arrived by train last evening. One cannot help noticing Mr. Laird. He stood by the cigar counter in the Victoria, last night, with one leg thrown gracefully over it. His slippered feet, and pantaloons which seemed to have been made for a much shorter man, gave him an air of ease and negligence that was quite refreshing.

Hon. A. J. Smith appeared the happy man of the party.

Coffin of Shelburne, returning to his constituents for re-election, moved about in a melancholy way that was almost appalling.

Hon. Mr. Ross was quiet and taciturn, having very little to say, and evidently wondering what sort of an opposition he would meet with in Victoria, C. B.

Mr. Ray, M. P., who came the night before, is a fine portly man, and quite a favorite with every one. His face was cloudless, excepting once when he asked for a "coffin," and he had a word or a nod for every one.

Senators Locke and Annand were also at the hotel. Theirs were the don't care faces in the party, and they could afford to laugh and joke the members who had to face their friends at home.

Hon. Isaac Burpee was a passenger by last night's train.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred. E. Scammell arrived last evening and took up their residence at the Victoria.

Lee's Opera House.

A very varied programme was presented last evening. The favorites all appeared and did their best to please. "The Recruit," a short comedy, ended the performance. Misses Dinsmore and Cambridge had parts well adapted to them, and acted easily and gracefully. Boyle and Warner also did well, and Fredericks would have made a better impression if he had remembered that a gallant soldier in urging a suit with a fair lady always takes his hat off. Other novelties are offered for to night.

Logs.

Logs are still coming down the River in large numbers. Yesterday a large number of rafts came through the falls at high tide in the afternoon. The Suspension Bridge was occupied by a number of spectators who watched with interest the huge bodies of logs carried down by the rushing current. One raft in coming down was almost broken in two by striking one of the rocks in the stream, and the men on it were for some time in danger. It went together again in a few minutes and floated whole down to the harbor. Kirk's mill was obliged to close yesterday on account of not having logs, but some were brought down for it and operations were resumed this morning.

MY DEAR SIR: We have much pleasure in informing you of a large demand for your Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites, and we hear excellent accounts from those who use it. Some of our physicians who are acquainted with its valuable properties consider it a most reliable medicine; so it is fast becoming as popular in this part of the Dominion as with your own people.

Wishing you every success, we are yours, very respectfully,

A. CHRISTIE & Co., Chemists.

Spring Hill Notes.

The Spring Hill and Parrsboro Coal and Railway Company have contracted with Messrs. James Harris & Co. for two steam boilers and one engine with binding gear complete. Messrs. Harris & Co. have agreed to have the engines, etc., on the ground in about four weeks. In addition to the engine, etc., from Messrs. Harris, they have, through James L. Dunn, Esq., ordered by cable two wire ropes, each one hundred fathoms in length. These ropes, which are for the purpose of hauling up the coal tubs, are to be of the very best quality. Other operations are progressing very favorably. At the end of October the company had cleared over seventy acres of land, and over 10,000 cubic yards of excavating had been done on the line of railway. The excavations on the Hibbard area have been very satisfactory, and prove more enormous deposits of coal than the most sanguine believed were there when the property was purchased.

"A Common Blacksmith."

We have long intended to give our readers a "Half hour with Mr. Flaherty," and have been keeping his wise saws, witty repartees and funny anecdotes in reserve. Here is one anecdote, however, that we give as a foretaste of what is to come: "I went into the Academy of Music, you see," said Mr. F., "to get reserved seats for the Lecture Course. I got my tickets, and then exerted myself to open a passage through the crowd for a well-dressed lady who wanted tickets. After a great struggle we opened a passage for her, and she began looking for a seat. I stood at her side to keep the crowd off. Putting her delicately gloved dexter digit down on two blank numbers the lady said she guessed they'd do, but, just as the clerk was about to mark them for her, she asked who had taken the adjoining seat. The clerk told her it was Mr. Flaherty's. 'What Mr. Flaherty?' she asked. 'Mr. R. L. Hazen Flaherty, the popular safe maker,' said the clerk bringing his pencil down to the paper. 'Hold,' cried the lady, 'a common blacksmith! Give me seats on the other side of the house.' Then I left, not waiting to see any more fun or help any more ladies secure tickets. I went down to Chubb's and talked it over with the money changer. 'Only a common blacksmith!' She is fastidious as to who occupies contiguous seats, isn't she?" And then Mr. F. smiled a serene and contented smile, and went into the Pharmacy to tell Stewart about it.

The Philomathian Debating Club met last night with a very large attendance of members. The time of meeting was changed from eight o'clock to half-past seven for the winter, and seven new members were elected. Parliament being called, the remainder of the evening was spent in lively struggles, all but one unimportant motion resulting in favor of the Government. The Opposition, having failed in all their attempts at ousting the Government, became considerably demoralized toward the close of the evening, and the Speaker was obliged to vacate his chair for a time.

The Academy Concert.

The Academy was full last night, and presented a brilliant spectacle. The musicians were a half hour late, there being some delay in getting their baggage from the train. Dr. Keator informed the audience that the Academy was intended for entertainments of this kind, and apologized for the delay. The published programme was carried out, and Mrs. Osgood responded to two or three encores. She was much admired. It was a most successful opening for the course. There is still room in the balconies to spare.

City Police Court.

Business increases in police circles as the week draws to a close. Nine prisoners occupied the dock this morning, and the number of spectators was quite large. The frail portion of the community was represented by the Nickerson sisters, Ann and Isabella, both old offenders. The former only got out of the Penitentiary yesterday and went to her old quarters in Sheffield street and got drunk and raised a row. She was arrested by Sergt. Hipwell, and while he was taking her to the station Isabella followed and abused him, making a worse row than her drunken sister. She was also taken in charge by the police. Ann confessed being drunk, and Isabella acknowledged abusing the policeman and only wished "she had broke his mouth." Two months in the penitentiary was imposed on each.

Dennis Flinn was arrested drunk in Dock street, and, after being placed in the station, amused himself by breaking the windows of his cell. A fine of $6 was imposed or 20 days gaol.

Benjamin James confessed being drunk on Market Square, and Jeremiah McDermott admitted being drunk in St. James st. They were fined $4 each.

John Adams, the old policeman, was again arrested drunk last night in a hall off Mill st. As usual his appearance was a text for a temperance lecture from the Magistrate, after which he sentenced the prisoner to two months in the Penitentiary.

Andrew Lane and Joseph and Alexander Diggs were charged with committing an aggravated assault on Thomas Hector. They refused to be tried by the Magistrate, and the preliminary examination was commenced. They all pleaded not guilty and John Kerr, Esq., appeared to defend them. Thomas Hector, the complainant, told his story, which proved the assault to be in every sense of the word an aggravated one. It occurred in a house at the corner of Wentworth and Sheffield streets. After hearing the evidence the Magistrate remanded the accused to gaol to await trial at the Circuit Court, which opens Tuesday next.

Portland Police Court.

One simple drunk was all that came before Justice Tapley this morning.

John Balmer was arrested drunk in Main street and fined $4.

On Saturday, 1st inst., Margaret Robertson, aged 84 years, strayed from the house of her brother, Mr. Robert Robertson, French River, Merigomish, and though she was missed in a very short time after her disappearance, and diligent search made by the people of the neighborhood, she was not discovered till Monday last. Her lifeless body was found lying beside a wind-fall in a deep gulch, only about a quarter of a mile from Mr. Robertson's house. She has been mentally deranged for some time.

The Coroner's inquest over the body of John Hall, who was killed by being stabbed on the night of Saturday, the 1st inst., was concluded on Wednesday, last week. The jury returned a verdict that the deceased came to his death from the wound, but were unable to say who inflicted the wound. McDonald, the man under arrest, was then discharged, but was arrested immediately afterwards on a warrant issued by D. Hockin, Esq., Stipendiary Magistrate, on complaint of Philip Hall, brother of the deceased. The investigation before the justice was commenced Monday.—Pictou Standard.
