COMMUNION CUPS

New Revolution in the Method of Administering the Lord's Supper.

[From the Church Economist.] We have received over 60 additional replies to our inquiries in reference to the individual communion cups. Of these all are warmly in favor of the new method, with a single exception, and he only says: "We see no improvement."

From the Plymouth Congregational of Seattle, Wash., the Rev. W. H. G. Temple reports: "Our peo-ple have been delighted with it from the beginning I look upon the individual cup as the solution of some very unpleasant questions connected with the old method.'

where there are so many consumptives, and so much fear of infection, it is a sense of relief to be able to partake of the sacrament without fear of the results. I find many who say they had not communed for a long time now doing so, as all the former objections are removed."

The Rev. John Q. Adams, of the First Presbyterian Church, of Canandaigua, N. Y., reports: "We do not it decent to ask all who sit at our tables to drink from the same cup; why should we think that it is at the Lord's table?"

The Rev. Robert Q. Taylor, of the Presbyterian Church of San Bernardino, Cal., says: "I think all recognize that in a place like this, where there are so many consumptives, the individual service is a necessity. It has come here to stay.

The Rev. W. Hayes Moore, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, of Santa Fe, N. M., says: "The sanitary value of the change alone is a sufficient rea-son for the adoption of the individual I think our people never enjoyed the sacramental season as they do

The Rev. O. J. Hogan, of the Dutch Reformed Church, of St. Johnsville, N. Y., says: "I find the old system repulsive to me. At our synod com-munion I turned the one cup round so that I might use it where some one else had not. Wendered why that stylish, up-to-date church had not made the change. I have kept account of communicants at four services and noted that they gradually increased in number."

The First Baptist Church, of Denver, Col., the Rev. C. H. Emmons, pastor, reports: Many of the members who formerly remained away the communion have returned and the increased attendance has been nearly 50 per cent. The preventing of contagion from tubercucatarrh and other diseases influence every reasonable person to work for the adeption of the individual cup. It does not detract from the sacred memorial service."

While Miss Ethel Walker, of Dorchester, played Mendelssohn's Wedding March, the bridal party took their places beneath a beautiful floral arch. The bride entered the room on the arm of her father, who gave her away. She was charmingly costumed in a gown of white silk en train. The walst was made entirely of insertion and tucks, with fancy collar richly embroidered in silk and trimmings of mousseline de soie. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Annie Walker, was becomingly attired in white silk organdie over pink, trimmed with Valenciennes insertion, and carried pink carnations. The groom was supported by Mr. D. Martin, brother of the bride. Only the immediate relatives and a few intimate friends witnessed the event. After the customary congratulations a dainty lunch was nature, was solemnized last night, served. # Letters to the Editor

Across the Atlantic Coming West.

[By George W. Armstrong.] It is said that the scum of Europe finds its way to America. No doubt this is true to some extent, as some prove. But this is not so to any great extent as regards Canada. Whether our laws are too exacting and too piano, and the list included tokens promptly carried out against evil doers or not, I will not say; but true it is, that with few exceptions, great criminals do not find our Dominion a desirable place for their machinations. Canada loves liberty, but detests libertines, and gives a hearty welcome to good citizens, no matter from what clime they may come. From external appearance the "emigrants" on board our westbound twin screw steamer were desirable citizens for our fair Dominion, but what diverse destinations they had. Some remained on our eastern coast— New Brunswick and the lower provinces; others were bound for our western boundary, the salubrious shores of British Columbia. A few went to our golden city in the gold regions of the Yukon, and others were scattered about to very seattered. scattered about in various parts of Ontario, Manitoba, and even the is-lands of our lakes. The chief objection to a sea yoyage is sea sickness; or, to put it in perhaps less objectionable phraseology, mal de One could perhaps even tolerate this if it could be enjoyed in some quiet, secluded, out-of-the-way place. But the malady is no respecter of persons, has no consideration for times, circumstances or places, gives little or no notice of sinister designs, and takes advantage of the peculiar rolling of the ship to get in its most effective work.

Sea sickness is indulged in in the open manner possible; and those, who on shore are very fastid-lous about appearances, are frequently seen within measurable distance the ship's sides, with the expression "Oh, my!" continually on their lips, and ready at short notice to take impromptu lessons on the instincts and habits of the finny tribes who ceive is to be told. "That's right, it lief without weakening effects which will do you good; it will remove the usually attend the medibile; you'll be all the better for it cines." 25 cents.

when it's over." Job's comforters! It is said that bile is a great disturber of peace—both personal and domestic—and makes the best-tempered man somewhat cross; if this is so, then some of my fellow-passengers would be good tempered for the rest of their days, for they did not fail to deal out this commodity most lavishly. It is somewhat singular TO AID 7TH BAND that when sea sickness is most preva-lent, those who seem able to resist its attractions should make it the subject of their conversation and jests, until they, having tempted Providence in this way, prepare themselves to become its victims. Considering the vast mercantile fleets that are constantly afloat—the thousands of ships of all nations that plow the vasty deep-it will be thought incredible that in crossing the Atlantic only about five or six ships were sighted; and though the good old Book, which rink will be found to be well ventilated and quite comfortable. It has been tastefully decorated, and there will be plenty of seating accommodation for things are and wide sea, wherein are things are and wide sea, wherein are things are anning in the sook, which our late revered Queen is credited with saying is the secret of England's tastefully decorated, and there will be greatened and wide sea, wherein are things are applied. things creeping innumerable, both small and great beasts; there go the ships; there is that leviathan, whom thou hast made to play therein," yet in the nearly 3,000 miles of continuous briney water only four or five fishes (dolphins) made themselves visible, and two or three whales (scriptural leviathans) displayed themselves to show what excellent temperance spouters they were.

We also passed several icebergs, which was a great relief. Icebergs are very beautiful to look at, but are very dangerous if you come in too close contact with them. We saw them in the distance—two or three miles away—but brought them near with our powerful glasses.

The perils of the deep are multiplied on the Banks of Newfoundland. Icebergs and fogs of dense darkness are an unholy alliance. One night we had to stop the ship for several hours, until the "fog raised," and few of the passengers prepared themselves for their berths until safety was assured. We came within a few yards of dispatching a couple of fishing smacks into futurity. A fisherman's life is full of

The faithful companions of our voyage were sea gulls—feathery friends. Eight or ten of these birds followed us incessantly until we reached the Newfoundland Banks, and then we lost sight of them owing to the fogs, but in course of time they turned up again and remained with us until nearly the end of our journey. Sea gulls have a wonderful instinct for meal times; quite as powerful as the fat boy in Pickwick. If they were not visible an hour before, they were sure detect this kind of food from vege-tables, with their keen eye, at a fairly long distance. Several days we kept them near the vessel for hours throwing pieces of meat into the water: the rapidity of their motion and sureness of their aim was truly marvelous. Our ocean greyhounds travel with almost the exactness of locomotives on land. The ship's officers could tell us at almost what hour of the day we would sight land and at what hour certain points would be reached and Night or day seemed to be both alike to them. Ocean travel is now reduced to an almost "exact science." The gulf, then the mouth, then the River St. Lawrence; familiar names which indicated that we were nearing our much-loved Canada. A trip to the old country is somewhat exciting and inspiring to those particularily who have never crossed the ocean, but the prospect of planting our feet again on the shores of the Dominion produces a thrill of joy that noth ing short of loving loyalty can surpass. Such a "thrill" many experienced as they were nearing home, thankful that the perils of the deep were passed and that after temporary pleasure came the feeling of a permanent resting place. But what about the strangers who were reaching our shores for the first time? Their future was an enigma; their home a figment of the imaginations; their friends largely unknown; their experiences would develop as the days passed by; and time would make his records of success or failure. we could do was to give them welcome and load them with good wishes and trust they would be as good to Canada

as Canada desires to be to them. Demand for Hour Glasses.

[New York Sun.] "Most people think that hour glasses went out of style years ago," said a clerk in a Twenty-third street store, along with perukes and breeches, but as a matter of fact we have more calls for them today than we have had at any time within the last ten years. That this renewed popularity of the hour glass augurs its universal acceptance as a time-piece by the coming generation, I am not prepared to say, but if such a renaissance were to become assured it would be no more surprising than some of the other recent fads based on a re vival of lost customs. Anyway a brief study of the hour glass will do nobody any harm. There are thousands in this generation who have not the slightest idea, what an hour glass looks like, and it won't hurt them to broaden their education along these lines. "Of the hour glasses sold at present the three-minute glass is in the lead. This glass is used almost exclusively to measure time in boiling eggs, and its usefulness naturally places its sale a little in advance of the more sentimental varieties. Next comes the five, ten and fifteen minute and full hour glasses, which are bought chiefly by musicians for piano practice and by lodges and secret societies.

"The sand used in an hour glass is the very finest that the world affords. The western coast of Italy furnishes most of it, as it has done for ages past. The cost of hour glasses is regulated by the ornamentation of the frames. A glass set in a plain rosewood case can be bought for $1, while a mahogany frame comes to $1 50 or $2. Of course the price can be brought up still higher by fancy carving and decoration. Swell lodges sometimes go to this extra expense, but most people are satisfied with the cheaper grades.
