GEORGE MORRISON, Jr.

Carey's Last Letter.

HE NAMES THOSE WHO TOLD ALL BEFORE HE DID.

It is stated that Mrs. Brady, Joseph Brady's mother, has in her possession a prayer-book sent to her by the late informer, James Carey, and that she also received the following letter, which was sent to her secretly out of Kilmainham from Carey two days before he sailed from Dartmouth for the Cape:—

"To Mr. and Mrs. Brady,—No one regrets poor Joe more than I do. His sad and untimely fate would have been carried out without me. The week before I said one word, in the chapel, before mass, Kelly, Joseph, and I were together. Kelly said, 'Marwood will have a terrible job on me; the weight of my body will never break my neck. You are all right Joe.' So you see they knew what they had to suffer. Every one here except Joseph Brady told all they knew. The wretches who were sent to Mountjoy sold us all before we were arrested. God will have mercy on Joe's soul. I send you the prayer-book he held in his hand on the fatal day, with the prayers when a prisoner. I had the book. Joe got it and wrote in it; also the names of the wretches who told all before I said one word, who now are martyrs:—Martin Roules (died in gaol), Farroll, P. Delaney, Peter Carey, Kavanagh, James Mullett, Dan Curley, after me E. McCaffrey, Dan Delaney, George Smith, J. Smith, Joe Hanlon, old O'Brien, and Dwyer I forgot, told all before me. A nice lot of martyrs! A woman done all the harm. I can prove what I say. Mrs. Blank got money from Buckshot. Except Joseph Brady, Lord have mercy on him. I will send you all I know about him shortly, Skin the Goat, Joseph Mullett, and Larry Hanlon. Every one told all on poor Joe and on James Carey. Wishing that God may give you strength to bear your great affliction is the earnest wish of James Carey. Keep this private."

THE NEW ENGLISH BANKRUPTCY ACT.—Just before Parliament adjourned, the so-called Chamberlain Bankrupt Act, after much discussion, became a law. It goes into operation on the 1st of January next. It was framed expressly to prevent fraudulent composition between the debtor and favored creditors, and to deprive professional receivers of opportunities of enriching themselves at the expense of creditors unjustly. The measure also guards against fraudulent bankruptcies by providing penalties for professional bankruptcy. All agreements between debtors and creditors in future must be made under a double supervision—that of the Judge of the Bankrupt Court and the Inspector, or Official Receiver, as he is to be called, of the Board of Trade. The business of the latter will be to inspect the books, accounts, stock, etc., of the bankrupt and to report to the Judge of the Bankruptcy Court. When composition is determined on, the proxies of all absent creditors are to be lodged with him, and as his promotion and advancement depend on his discretion and faithfulness, his interest is best served by acting fairly. On the report of the Official Receiver the court will determine whether the bankrupt shall be discharged, and on what conditions. There is no chance for collusion between the debtor and favored creditors. Any attempt at fraud on the part of a bankrupt will be considered a misdeameanor punishable by imprisonment. The Bankruptcy Court commits for trial, and it becomes the duty of the Public Prosecutor to institute proceedings promptly. No discharge can be had until the offender purges himself of the charge of fraud. Nor can any bill of discharge be granted to a bankrupt whose bankruptcy is due to rash and hazardous speculations or unjustifiable extravagance in living." Pending discharge, no bankrupt can borrow a sum exceeding $100, unless he plainly states that he is an undischarged bankrupt, and as that fact carries with it a stigma he is not likely to obtain many loans.

THE PROGRAMME OF THE ENGLISH LIBERALS.—The extreme Radicals are preparing to contest all the great boroughs in England at the next election, even in opposition to the Liberal candidates of the old school. The programme issued by Mr. Parkhurst, the ultra-Radical candidate for Manchester, is a type of the rest. It comprises nearly all the points of that once celebrated charter—the abolition of the House of Lords, adult manhood suffrage, the payment of members of Parliament, the disestablishment of the church, the abolition of parliamentary oaths, secular free and compulsory education, and local self-government for Ireland. At the Leeds conference an effort will be made to persuade the Radical delegates to subordinate this programme to the immediate interest of Liberalism, while indorsing all the points above stated as the ultimate platform of the party. This is Mr. Chamberlain's plan.

ENGLISH HOSPITALITY TO IRISHMEN.—At Edgisbury (Cheshire) Petty Sessions, August 27, Stephen Oakes and Thomas Gayter, English laborers, were charged with brutally assaulting Michael Flannery, an Irish harvestman, on the 6th inst.

Prosecutor had been to Frodsham to purchase provisions, and was coming away in company with two other Irishmen when they were confronted by the prisoners, who asked them if they wanted fight, Stephen Oakes at the same time delivering a heavy blow on prosecutor's left eye which knocked him down. He get up, when Oakes struck him again, they strug gled and fell together. Flannery being uppermost, he got up and waked away, but Oakes again followed him, and then the two other prisoners came up and joined in the affray. Joseph Oakes got behind and pinioned Fannery's arms; while the others hit him as hard as they could in the face for about five minutes. Gayter also kicked him when he was down. His clothes were torn and his shirt ripped off his back. He bolted with his two Irish companions into Mr. Davies' yard where the prisoners followed and stoned them with macadam and paving stones. Prosecutor's face was terribly cut up and his body bruised and injured. Mr. Davies then interfered, and drove them off with his dog.

The prisoners produced a belt, which they said the Irishman had assauled them with, but complainant said he simply moved this about his head to keep the Englishmen off.

The Chairman said it was a brutal assault, and sentenced the prisoners to a month's imprisonment, with hard labor.

Mr. Tomkinson, a magistrate on the bench, said Irishmen who had been brutally assaulted had been to him to complain of the way in which they were treated. He also said Irishmen had been completely driven by terror out of his district.

TRANSFUSION OF BLOOD.—The Presse, of Vienna, lately described an operation of the above kind successfully carried out by Professor Nothnagel in conjunction with Herr Ritter von Hasker. On account of the unsatisfactory results recently obtained in several cases [illegible] human and lamb's blood, it was decided to try a better method, already [illegible] by several physiologists. This consisted in a solution of common salt of 0·6 per cent. rendered alkaline by two drops of concentrated solution of soda. The patient treated on this occasion was a young man who was in imminent danger from weakness of the heart, consequent upon loss of blood by reason of an abscess in the stomach. An incision was made in a vein in the upper part of the arm, and by means of a funnel-shaped receptacle about two pints and three-quarters of the fluid in question were introduced into the system of the patient, who is now expected to recover.

A GOOD CROP OF POTATOES.—Reports from Woodstock, Houlton, Caribou, Fort Fairfield and Presque Isle are to the effect that an unprecedented yield of potatoes will be ready for shipment in that section this year. The Aroostook crop alone is placed at 4,500,000 bushels, of which one half will be used in the starch factories.—Tel.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 21.—Advices from Prof. Nordenskjold's expedition to Greenland state that the expedition started from Authikswic on the 4th of September and reached a distance of 300 kilometers inland, attaining the height of 7,000 feet above the level of the sea. This is the first time human beings have penetrated so far into Greenland. The whole region is an ice desert, thus proving there is no open water inland. Very valuable scientific data have been obtained. Along the north-west coast a cold stream flows which induces a very low temperature. On the eastern shore the weather is not so severe, and the coast is accessible to steamers in autumn. When the party were 140 kilometres east of the glacier border soft snow prevented them proceeding on the sledges, and the Laplanders were sent on with snow-shoes. The rest of the expedition visited the North-West coast. Between Waigatted and Cape York they were informed by the Esquimaux that two members of the American polar expedition had died, and the rest had returned to Littleton Island. On the 16th August the expedition sailed south from Egedesminde, making short stays at Firghit, Julianeshaub, and Frederikadal, and tried to proceed westward three times through the Sound north of Cape Farewell and once along the coast, but the ice hindered them. They went outside the ice-field to latitude 65 deg., remaining constantly in sight of land, having twice vainly tried to find the shore free from ice more to the southward. A band of drift ice was forced south of Cape Dau, and on Sept. 9th they anchored in a fjord newly visited by Esquimaux, where remains of the Norman period were found. This was the first time since the fifteenth century that a vessel had succeeded in anchoring on the east coast of Greenland south of the polar circle. After having tried vainly to anchor in another fjord more to the north they returned and arrived at Reikjavik on September 9th.

A new process for covering floors is described as follows: The floor is thoroughly cleaned. The holes and cracks are then filled with paper putty, made by soaking newspapers in a paste made as follows: To one pound of flour add three quarts of water and a tablespoonful of ground alum, and mix thoroughly. The floor is coated with this paste, and then a thickness of manila or hardware paper is put on. This is allowed to dry thoroughly. The manila paper is then covered with paste, and a layer of wall-paper of any style or design desired is put on. After allowing this to dry thoroughly, it is covered with two or three more coats of sizing mace by dissolving half a pound of white glue in two quarts of water. After this is allowed to dry, the surface is given one coat of "hard oil finish varnish," which can be bought already prepared. This is allowed to dry thoroughly, when the floor is ready for use. The process is represented to be durable and cheap; and besides taking the place of matting, carpet, oilcloths, or like covering, makes the floor air tight, and permits of its being washed.
