

BASE CANNON AGAINST BRITAIN

In Recent Raid On Scarborough, Warships Flew the Union Jack.

LETTER RECEIVED HERE

Noise Dreadful When Coast Town Bombardment Began.

500 SHELLS WERE FIRED

Little Mites Scared Out of Their Senses—Damage Done Very Heavy.

The following letter has been received by Mrs. A. Hogg, of Port Stanley, who was in the city this morning, visiting relatives at 223 Wellington street. It gives a splendid account of the recent German raid on Scarborough, and is replete with facts and figures which tell the utter heartlessness and baseness of the German raiders. The Teutonic warships appeared on the coast firing the British flag, and in all, fired about 500 shells.

The letter reads as follows:

6 Sandside, Scarborough, Jan. 2, 1915.

My Dear Sir: I have just got your letter, and I'll write you a line or two while I have a chance. We are all right, a good deal shaken up, but otherwise first-class. We did not get any damage to property, but there is a tremendous lot in the town. I think it was estimated at £100,000, but since they have got a start with repairs it seems to be more, lots of houses having to come down. It is no use trying to describe it at all. It was just awful. They fired about 500 shells at us, and there we had to stand to be shot at, with not a single gun to hit back with.

What maddened me most, the beasts were flying the British ensign. I was watching them for a minute or so. I thought they were British ships having some practice or something till they started to come our way, then I scouted, I can tell you, and got my hat and coat on ready to bolt if necessary. I saw the lightships hit, I thought all the tower had been blown away, but when the smoke and dust cleared, I saw they were only the British ensign. It will have to come down, though, in fact, they have started to take it down. They are afraid if it comes a heavy shelling will blow down. The Grand Hotel is in a fearful state—about £7,000 damage, they say. Didn't hit Wireless.

They did not manage to hit the wireless station. They tried hard though, but the nearest shot was ten yards off. As you will understand, the noise was dreadful. To give you an idea: When they were shelling Whitby we could hear them here, and it is 29 miles off. The panic was awful. People were running about the streets, just as they jumped out of bed. The children, poor little mites, were scared out of their lives. Hundreds of people have left Scarborough. They are too frightened to stay, for fear of coming back, but I don't think they will. You see, they laid mines so thick after them that they would be in danger of being blown up by their own mines.

Had awful time! You know, dad is agent for the shipwrecked fishermen's society, and we have had an awful time since the bombardment. We must have had the crews of ten ships through our hands. Ships that have been blown up by mines. We had three on Christmas Day, so you can guess how worried and busy we have been. When we go to bed we never know when we shall be called up. Dad has stood it very well, although he has been ill all the year. I think he has stood it better than the two of us. My nerves are all of a jump, I can tell you.

Infirmary full. The sea-bathing infirmary was badly hit, and it was almost full of wounded soldiers, but no one was hurt. They had them all moved to the basement. Bits of shell are selling like ripe cherries. Ten pounds has been given for a piece not so very big. While I have been sitting here there has been a lifeboat call. Some more of the cultured Germans' work expect. What a toll of life the Kaiser and his party will have to answer for. It is getting awful. As sure as God's above us, he will come to his infirmary.

All trade is at a standstill. If it goes on very much longer, Scarborough will be ruined. It is touch and go with a lot of people even now.

I have crossed a bit out of one of the papers. It was a wrong report. The bombardment started at 8 in the morning. Now I must wind up. I hope you will be able to understand my garbled account, but there is some excuse for us here for being jumpy. With best love to you all, Your loving cousin, LIZZIE.

SUPPOSEDLY DEAD WARRIORS RETURN TO FRANCE UNHURT

Over 100 Long-Given-Up Soldiers Had Been Conducting a Guerilla Warfare On Germans In Ardennes Since Middle of August.

[Canadian Press.]

Paris, Jan. 22.—Great astonishment was recently caused, says the Temps, at a military centre near Paris, by the arrival of over a hundred war-worn French and Belgian soldiers, under the leadership of Sergeant Laurent, all long registered as killed or prisoners after the battle of Charleroi.

Came From England.

Inquiries elicited the information that the party had just returned, via England and Holland, from the Ardennes, where, since the middle of August, they had successfully maintained a guerilla warfare with sudden attacks on German detachments, and even small parties of troops. These exploits were followed by a rapid retirement into the depths of the forest.

CONFERENCE OVER GUARDING CROSSINGS

Board of Control Invites Council and Solicitor to Meeting.

[Canadian Press.]

Before dealing with the matter of safeguarding level crossings in the city, the board of control today decided to invite the whole council and City Solicitor Meredith to be present at the next meeting of No. 1 committee and get full details regarding the situation. "This is no doubt," said controller White, "that both track elevation and subway are years off, and in the meantime we have to have the provision of watchmen and gates. The matter of guarding the crossing at Portersburg, which the city also has to consider now."

INVESTIGATE EVERY WORD OF EVIDENCE

Crown Attorney Will Look Into Peculiar Facts of Hume Inquest.

Crown Attorney James B. McKillop announced today that he would investigate the evidence given by the witness at the inquest of David Bertin Hume, which was held at police headquarters last night.

"Are you likely to take any action that will result in an arrest on a criminal charge?" the crown attorney was asked by an advertiser reporter. "I cannot answer that question until I have thoroughly investigated the evidence given by the witnesses," replied the crown attorney.

"Suppose you find that the witnesses had been tampered with, and perjury had been committed, what will be done?" queried the reporter.

"I am not in a position to answer that kind of questions yet," stated Mr. McKillop.

The crown will also investigate a story that the witnesses from the witness room could hear the testimony on the stand, and inquire as to why the story of one witness varied so much from the rest.

"All that I can say at present is that I am going to investigate the evidence from the first to the last word," stated the crown officer.

U. A. Buchner, barrister, who appeared at the inquest in behalf of Mr. Morris, the mother of the victim, stated today that as yet he had not been instructed to take any action regarding the testimony given on the witness stand.

"However, I have heard that there is going to be an investigation of the testimony," stated the barrister.

SIDESWIPES ENGINE

Eastbound Freight and Another Car in Mixup.

A fast eastbound freight, passing through the local Grand Trunk yards, en route to Toronto, sideswiped a yard engine at 5 a.m. today, causing over $500 worth of damage to the London shunter.

The accident occurred while the yard engine was in the act of going over a crossover. The freight mogul struck a side-swinging car, forcing it off the track and causing some damage to the side of the light engine. The freight, in charge of a crew from Mimico, proceeded on its way to Toronto, while the auxiliary had some hours' work replacing the engine and patching up the roadbed.

GORY SIGHT

The driver, so as to protect Edwards. This was more easily said than done. Onlookers state that the two men put up a merry battle before the burly police constable had them under subjection. They declared that Edwards gave them permission to drive the horse any place they pleased.

Edwards denied he said he would notify anyone. "I asked if the authorities had been notified, and someone said it had been done, so I did not bother my head about it any more. I have other things to bother about now, as all my money was tied up in my dry business, my sole means of livelihood, and now I am up against it, and haven't a nickel to my name. I never told those men that they could have the horse. I am going to sue them for damages."

To the reporter, who endeavored to ascertain who was to blame for not having the remains of the horse removed, it appeared to be a case of "Button, button, who's got the button?" The police state that the health department was to blame.

Inspector Luttman declares he was not notified, so how could he be held responsible? One thing is sure, however, and Market Clerk Makar testifies to that, the job of clearing up the street and carting away the body, was anything but a pleasant one.

Who shirked the job? Kennedy and Sullivan pleaded guilty in court today of being drunk and disorderly, and were given the option by the police magistrate of paying $5 and costs each, or spending fifteen days in the county jail for these two, who have read of the German barbarities in their native lands.

Anthony Radell, a busier, is an Italian and comes from Italy. John Brown has served in the British army before and gives as his birthplace, West Indies.

RUSSANS NEAR PRUSSIAN GATE

Advance Guards Now Only 20 Miles From German Frontier.

FINE OFFENSIVE THRUST If They Follow Up Success Will Have Unbroken Front.

DESTITUTION IN POLAND Conditions There Said To Be Much Worse Than In Belgium.

[Canadian Press.] London, Jan. 22.—News dispatches referring to the situation in Poland set forth that north of the Vistula, in the vicinity of Lipno, Russian advance guards within 20 miles of the German frontier, while to the northeast the Germans have evacuated Skemp, which is about 25 miles from the Prussian border and due west of Thorn. If the Russians do not fail to follow up their success at Skemp and continue their forward movement, it will give them an unbroken front, in the opinion of British observers, dangerously near German territory.

Important Offensive. The western Allies are watching this region just now with great interest, and dispatches from Petrograd say that the Russians are planning high hopes on this offensive thrust near the Prussian line. Elsewhere they are planning merely to hold their own, barring, of course, the advance through Transylvania. The Austrians, however, appear not to have been crushed by their reverses in Bukovina, for the Russians themselves refer to the attempted Austrian offensive. Other news despatched tell of the movement of Austrian reinforcements aimed to check the Russian advance.

SUI TO DEVELOP. In the western allies, the war the battle at Solsona still ranks as the only great conflict during many weeks past. The Russian advance has been a surprise, but a trench here and there, there are all that either side has gained. If the German plan is a real offensive, it is a serious one, and a concentrated attack at some strategic point, it has not yet materialized.

The Turks claim to have arrested the Russian advance in the Caucasus, but give no details. The British press continues to assert that the proposed Turkish invasion of Egypt is doomed to failure, but it gives no reasons for its opinion. The effect that such invasion would have on the Russian advance is not yet clear.

Worse Than Belgium. The situation in Belgium is for the moment in the background when compared to the situation of non-combatants in Palestine, Poland and the Caucasus. From Palestine, Jewish colonists continue to flee to Egypt, being conveyed as rapidly as possible by the American Red Cross. The destitution of Poland is said to be terrible, and a new appeal for aid has been issued by Ignace Paderewski and Henry Simons, who will call on many of the world's great financiers. It is said that the situation in Poland is far worse than it is in Belgium. The feeling people of Bukovina are living in a state of destitution, and are seeking for such sustenance as the snow-covered country affords.
