WOMAN'S WORLD.

EXPRESSION, THE HIGHEST FACULTY.

A scholar may accumulate much learning, but great faculties lie wholly dormant until he begins to give his learning to others by speech or pen.

The giving in itself is an unfoldment of the powers.

We may take any phase of our development and find the law the same.

Always we must o'erleap the small, narrow confines of the individual self and expand freely in the added life of others if we would reach our perfection.

Whoever has served another, however humble that service may be or however humble that other may be, knows how much benefit has been received back in reflex benefit, how much besides the direct benefit of pleasures conferred.

A poor dressmaker who gave much to Christian missions was asked why she belittled her own wants to so great degree.

"I don't," she cried. "I give for my own soul's expression."

There always is something of fresh wisdom or truth or love which contact with the brother man imparts to us, a compensation in itself.

This is the natural vindication of our inherent unity.

It is the natural and inevitable witness to the need for the expression of our unity.

Miss Keating played in Syracuse last month with great success. Her reception here is a foregone conclusion, Canada being the native country of this talented artiste.

A quiet but pretty redding was solemnized by Rep. Father Cottee, S. J., in the Church of the Sacred Heart, Rockwood, on Saturday, Feb. 9, when Miss Beatrice Cummings, eldest daughter of John Cummings, was married to Mr. Thomas C. McDonnell, Toronto. The bride wore a handsome suit of cream serge, lace waist, and pale blue maline hat, trimmed with blue ostrich feathers. The bride-maid, Miss Katie D. Ryan of Georgetown, was dressed in a cream homespun suit and light hat, massed with violets. Andrew Gormaly, Toronto, acted as groomsman, and John I. Cummings and Herbert Lee were ushers. The church was beautifully decorated in honor of the bride, who was organist. Miss Kathleen Cummings played the "wedding march." After a sumptuous breakfast at "The Beeches," the residence of the bride's parents, the young couple left for a short trip to Detroit. The going-away gown was a dark green plaid cloth, green beaver hat, and the bride wore a handsome set of mink furs, the gift of her father. The groom's present to the bride was a gold watch, and to the bridesmaid, a gold cross. Mrs. McDonnell will be at home to her friends after May 1.

An unusual matrimonial event was celebrated at the parish Church of St. Louis de Mile End, Montreal, when an elderly widower, father of five children, was united to a widow, also parent of five, while at the same service a daughter of the bride and a daughter of the groom were also provided with husbands. In order that the parents and children might join in this nuptial family reunion, special permission was granted the younger couples to undergo the marriage ceremony outside their respective parishes.

At the residence of the bride's parents, 184 Dundas-street, William Robert McMenomy of this city was united in marriage last evening to Blanche Lillian Lancaster, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Lancaster. The Rev. L. W. Hill of Euclid-avenue Methodist Church officiated. Hugh Fletcher of this city was groomsman, assisted by Mervin Lancaster, brother of the bride. Miss Maude Taite of London was bridesmaid, and was assisted by Miss Gladys Goodwin of Montreal. The bride was gowned in pearl sequin over white taffeta silk and carried pink roses. Miss Taite was costumed in grey silk, while Miss Goodwin wore pale pink eolienne over pink taffeta silk. The bridesmaids carried white Canadian queen rose bouquets. The young couple will visit Chicago and western points before taking up their residence at 315 Shaw-street. About 150 guests were present and among the many presents received was a house and lot from the bride's father, a west end builder.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized yesterday afternoon at 2.30 in St. Cyprian's Church, between Miss Gertrude Jakeman Ward, the fourth daughter of Mr. George Ward of this city, and formerly of Manchester, Eng., and John Henry Lee Sarge, eldest son of Thomas Henry Sarge of Toronto. The ceremony was performed by the rector, the Rev. C. A. Seagar, M. A., and was fully choral, the bride having been for several years the organist of St. Cyprian's, and the groom a member of the choir. The church was well filled with relatives and guests, and the altar and chancel, with the family pews, had been very prettily decorated with flowers by the lady friends of the bride. The bridal procession was preceded up the aisle by the surpliced choir, singing the nuptial hymn, "The Voice That Breathed O'er Eden," and the bride, who was given away by her father, looked very charming in a dress of cream surah silk, trimmed with velenciennes lace, and wearing a tulle hat, with ospreys, her bouquet being of white roses, carnations and lilies of the valley. The bridesmaids were the sisters of the bride and groom, respectively, Misses Berta Ward and Fanny Sarge, and they were gowned in Persian lawn, with embroidery insertion and hats of Dresden-trimmed lingerie, whilst they carried bunches of daffodils. The groom was supported by Mr. Jack Erskine, and the ushers were Messrs. W. Fitman and Arnold Furnival. Mrs. Harry Rawlinson presided at the organ. The groom's presents to the bridesmaids were golden pins, with pearl bowknots; to the groomsman gold cuff links, with initials in pearls, and to the ushers, gold and pearl scarfpins. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, 138 Howland-avenue, and late in the afternoon the young couple left for a wedding tour.

2360—ONE OF THE NEW WAISTS WITH BOLERO EFFECT.

The introduction of a small bolero into the waist is new and decidedly pretty in effect. One which is suitable to home making is sketched, showing the severe blouse underneath and the fancifully shaped bolero as adornment. The modish black and white effects are here set forth in the white waist, with black lace bolero, edged with black and white embroidered bands. Small black buttons finish the duchess closing and give a vest effect to the front. The sleeves are pretty, ending at the elbow, as shown, but the long ones are provided for in the pattern. A waist of this kind may be developed in a soft silk or chiffon, with bolero of velvet, lace or embroidery. For the medium size 5 1-2 yards of 21-inch goods are needed.

2360—Sizes, 32 to 42 inches bust measure.

Can You Play A Piano?
If not Read this about the Autonola

Unlike most Playerpianos, in the Bell we have not injured musical qualities by the introduction of the player mechanism, we have produced the same exquisitely beautiful instrument as in the regular Bell, and have added a player mechanism of remarkable efficiency, durability and simplicity of construction. This Bell Autonola is a combination of the highest efficiency. It is really two pianos in one case, for it can be played automatically with treadles and music-roll by anyone without having musical knowledge, and it can be played by hand in the regular way.

In this, the piano playing member of the household has an exquisitely artistic instrument upon which to play by hand, and the music-loving non-player has also at command for his own playing, classical, popular, dance and vocal music.

With the Bell Autonola in the home, there will be no lack of music, for anyone can play—and play artistically as well.

How to Fool a Lazy Liver with Artificial Exercise

EVERY serious Sickness has a small beginning.

And, in nine cases out of ten, that beginning is made in the Bowels.

Constipation is the beginning of most diseases. It paves the way for all others.

Lack of exercise, hasty eating, improper food, are its first causes.

Laziness, and postponement, permit it to grow into Chronic Constipation, which means life-long Discomfort.

It isn't necessary to be sick-a-bed, you know, in order to be mighty uncomfortable.

Even a slight indigestion affects the nerves, dulls the mind, and obscures the merry sunshine of Life.

* * *

The time to adjust the Bowels is the very minute you suspect they need adjustment.

—If your tongue is slightly coated,
—If your breath is under suspicion,
—If your head feels a trifle heavy or dull,
—If digestion seems even a little slow,
—If Heartburn, Belching, Colic or Restlessness begin to show themselves,
—That's the time to eat a Cascaret.

It acts as pleasantly as it tastes. It is as congenial to your Bowels as it is to your Palate.

It stimulates the muscular lining of the Bowels and Intestines, so that they mechanically extract nourishment from the food and drive out the waste.

* * *

The only way to have Cascarets ready to use precisely when you need them is to carry them constantly in your pocket, as you do a Watch or a Lead pencil.

The ten cent box of Cascarets is made thin, flat, round-edged, and small, for this precise purpose.

Be very careful to get the genuine, made only by the Sterling Remedy Company and never sold in bulk. Every tablet stamped "CCC." All druggists. 740

"RALPH CONNOR" REPLIES TO HIS LITERARY CRITICS

Books Should Be Taken as a Whole, Not in Part—Newspapers and Their Scope.

Rev. Charles W. Gordon of Winnipeg, perhaps more widely recognized as "Ralph Connor," the author, reached the city yesterday, and is the guest of his brother, Dr. Gordon, at Huron and Bloor-streets. Tho but a few minutes arrived when The World called, half the Presbyterian Church in Canada seemed to be struggling to get on the telephone line at once, while very near relatives stood by anxious to renew acquaintance before the few hours' stay in Toronto were all gone.

"Ralph Connor" has very piercing, shrewd eyes. He is a much taller man than his photographs suggest, and gives one the impression of being an excellent good fellow to be away on a holiday with.

"What do you think of Ward Clark's criticism in The Bookman of a certain dramatic incident in 'The Doctor,' which a local paper has quoted in an editorial on the Thaw case?" was asked.

(It may be said that Ward Clark has reflected rather severely on the moral tone of it.)

"I have not seen the editorial you refer to," said Ralph Connor, "but I am conversant with criticism. It is not my custom to reply to criticism of my books. I think any man has a right to say what he thinks about my books. My work is to write, his is to criticize. If a man really believes that is the impression conveyed by that chapter, I think he has the right to say so.

"But it is not the impression the writing and conception of the chapter had on me, and I think, on most people. I think that probably Ward Clark had read only the one chapter, and had not an appreciation of its relative significance towards the remainder of the book. I think, had he commenced at the beginning and read to the end, he would have felt differently.

"Several people, who have read the chapter by itself, and afterwards read the whole book, have felt that the full reading altered that first impression. Mr. Revell, the publisher, told me that he had met, one day a very eminent American writer and critic, and had asked him what he thought of 'The Doctor.' The critic said that he had sent off the day before a criticism of the same nature as Ward Clark's. In surprise, Mr. Revell said, 'Why you cannot have read the book?' The critic admitted that he had only read the one chapter, to which his attention had been called. Mr. Revell told him he had better read the whole book and get a sense of proportion in the matter. The critic did so; his views were so completely altered that he telegraphed for his copy to be taken from the presses, and wrote an entirely different review of the book."

An incident in a recent book of a distinguished English authoress was instanced, to which Ralph Connor replied, "Yes, that is so. I had the feeling that vice was held up as attractive and alluring. But, in 'The Doctor,' my object was to show the horror and danger of it. The word horror best describes my own sensation in the matter—the seductiveness, the unconscious descent, and the horror of their awakening to a sense of how swiftly and unconsciously their unchecked lower nature had nearly swept them away."

"And how do you regard the attempts being made in certain quarters to prevent the admission of reports of such cases as the Thaw case to the newspaper columns?"

"That is a big question and a difficult question. There is so much to be said on both sides. I do not agree with those people who say the newspaper should be idealistic. The newspaper cannot be idealistic, and remain a newspaper. The magazine and the weekly review may be idealistic, but not the newspaper.

"The duty of the newspaper is to supply news; not of what the world might be, but of what the world is. As it is, the newspapers do edit and make many divorce and other items presentable.

"It is not so much a matter of what a paper tells as of how it tells it. Publicity may scorch sin, or it may make it attractive. I see no objection to a cold, plain, bald statement of occurrences, but I do object to any system, where a paper, after printing the evidence in one column, then collects all the lurid parts and patches them together into a vivid and alluring story, and draws attention to it by scare headlines. That is done, I know, by some of the papers on the American side. It exalts these stories out of their relative importance, and is immoral in its results."

Ralph Connor said the Mormons in Alberta were hard-working and thrifty; they respected the law, but their general standard of morals was not so high as their neighbors. Some were suspected of practising polygamy on the quiet, but, on the whole, they made very fair citizens.

"As good as the Doukhobors?"

"No, not by any means," said Ralph Connor. "The Doukhobors are among our best settlers. They work hard, make good farmers, are peaceful and law-abiding. Their only peculiarity is their religion, which, while reasonable in some ways, is interwoven with peculiar mysticisms, which a western mind cannot attempt to understand."

LEAST PROGRESS IN U.S.

Women Suffrage Makes Headway Even in Syria.

Chicago, Feb. 12.—Rev. Anna Shaw, president of the American Woman's Suffrage Association, which holds its annual convention in Chicago this week, declared yesterday that the suffrage cause had made less progress in America during the last few years than in any other enlightened country.

"Even in Syria," she said, "at the foot of Mount Ararat, the people are awakening to the importance of the woman's suffrage movement. All over the world, this has been one of the most promising years, but, curiously enough, the least progress has been made here in America."
