GREEN CORN IN BRITAIN.

Large Quantities of Seed Imported for Planting Last Spring.

One thing the British can be thankful for in the years after the war will be the fact that because of it they learned to eat "roastin' ears."

That directions for planting or eating sugar corn should be needed by anybody seems to the average Canadian, especially rural-born middle westerners, to be impossible. But it isn't. Here's what Donald McDonald, F.L.S., conductor of the London Daily Telegraph's garden department, tells his readers:

"Maize or Sweet Corn. — Large quantities of the seeds of quickly maturing types of this American food crop have been imported during the spring, and many will be giving it a trial. As soon as all danger of frost is past the seeds, after being soaked overnight, can be planted like dwarf beans, and they will soon appear. Most of the varieties are of so sturdy a character that they need little or no support. The cobs are often ready in the early sorts before July is out, and may be cooked whole, or the young corns scraped off and served up like beans. The plants should not stand closer than a foot apart, according to the variety, the robust sorts extending to three feet apart each way. Those who cannot eat the cobs may give them to the poultry or other live stock with advantage."

Millionaire's Bequests.

Second Lieut. A. P. Wernher, the young millionaire, who whilst attached to the Welsh Guards was killed in France in September, 1916, made a number of bequests under his will. Recently the Court of Appeal decided that although only 18 years of age he had power of appointment over £1,000,000, left in trust for him by his father, the late Sir Julius Wernher. His bequests now come into force. They include:

£50,000 for such charitable institutions in the United Kingdom as the executors may select.

£5,000 to the Eton Mission.

£5,000 to the colonel in command of the Welsh Guards, to be used for the relief of those in the regiment and their dependents who are in distress.

£5,000 to Gen. Sir H. L. Smith-Dorrien.

£5,000 to Lt.-Col. the Hon. W. A. W. Lawson.

£500 to Brig.-Gen. Sir Charles W. King.

£1,000 to his late nurse, Elizabeth C. Thompson.

The residue of the property he left to his brother, Major Harold Augustus Wernher, or should he be dead, to his mother, Dame Alice Wernher.

War Money Flowing In.

A hopeful view of national finance was taken by Mr. Bonar Law in his speech on the second reading of the finance bill in the British House of Commons.

Mr. McKenna, commenting on the situation, had said that by some means or another the Chancellor of the Exchequer would have to raise, between April 1 and December 31 of the current year, 2,250 millions. He had already had to borrow to the extent of 1,257 millions. It was quite obvious that during the next nine months this short-date borrowing could not be very much increased. It was a serious outlook.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer said that the position at this moment did not cause him any anxiety. Long term borrowing had now been going on for rather less than eight months. Comparing it with the 1,000 millions raised by loan in January last year, we had actually raised — apart from War Savings Certificates, which showed the most satisfactory increase of all—up to April 1 the sum of 719 millions sterling.
