PARSONS' PILLS

These pills were a wonderful discovery. No others like them in the world. Will positively cure or relieve all manner of diseases. The information around each box is worth ten times the cost of a box of pills. Find out about them, and you will always be thankful. One pill a dose. Parsons' Pills contain nothing harmful, are easy to take, and cause no inconvenience. One box will do more to purify the blood and cure chronic ill health than $5 worth of any other remedy yet discovered. If people could be made to realize the marvelous power of these pills, they would walk 100 miles to get a box if they could not be had without. Sent by mail for 25 cents in stamps. Illustrated pamphlet free, postpaid. Send for it; the information is very valuable. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., 22 Custom House Street, BOSTON, MASS.

Consolation.

A lady dressed in deep mourning and having a look of Bostonian refinement and reserve, got on a Chicago train bound for Denver one day last week. Away out in Kansas, near Deadwood creek, there boarded the train a native of the soil in the shape of a woman in a green delaine dress, a blue and red shawl and a yellow nubia. She dropped easily and gracefully into the seat in front of the lady in black, turned round, stared hard for a moment and then said:

"Widder?" "I—I—did you speak to me?" asked the lady in surprise.

"Yes'm—widder?" "Yes."

"Thought so. Quite recent, eh?" "Yes."

"What ailed him?" "Consumption."

"Linger a good while?" "I—I—yes."

"Much ag'ny?" "Yes, indeed."

"Coughed a sight, hey?" "Oh, yes; but I"—

"I know what'd cure him in less'n a month. Never knowed it to fail, an' I've seed it tried in cases where they'd been give up by five doctors. Yes'm. But it ain't no use talkin' 'bout that now. Any children?"

"Yes, three."

"His folks got 'em?"

"No; but really, I"—

"Two boys an'a girl, or two girls an'a boy?"

"Two girls."

"Oh! D'd you get your thirds out an' out?"

"Really, madam, I"—

"Or did he leave a will?"

"Excuse me, but"—

"The law gives a woman her thirds, but 'tain't often she gits 'em out 'n' out. I think she'd ort to have half, don't you?"

"I—I—really, I don't know."

"Well, I do. Was you made gardeen of the children?"

"No—that is"—

"Well, I bet I'd be gardeen of my own young uns if my man was to die. These gardeens git the propty half the time. Did he have money in bank?"

"I beg your pardon, but"—

"You ort to made him put it in your name. It makes it lots easier when the man dies to settle things up. His kin try to break the will?"

"Excuse me"—

"A man can't die nowadays 'thout a pack o' his folks tryin' to break the will, sh matter how many wives and children he has. You gein' to wear crape all the time or only a year?"

"Pardon me, but"—

"It's becomin' to you, but kinder expensive for common wear. But dear me, you ain't mov'n 36 or 37, are you?"

No reply.

"I don't know how you feel 'bout second marriages, but I"—

"Oh, madam, please"—

"You'll marry agin, now I'll bet you do. Oh, I know how you feel now. My sister Cindy felt and talked jist so, an' she married agin in six months, an' done well, too. I'd wait a year, if I was you. It looks better, shows respect and all that; but if I was young as you an' had only three children I'd"—

But the lady in black had fled to the next car, and her consoler turned to the man on her right and said:

"Talk 'bout her not marryin' agin! I've an idee she's goin' west a-purpose to see if she kin do well there, and I don't blame her."—Detroit Free Press.

Fish Living Out of Water.

Some years ago in Africa a detachment of troops came to camp on a level stretch of country, perfectly dry and devoid of a suspicion of moisture. In digging up the ground to arrange the tents a fish was found as dry as a chip—a long eel like creature coiled in a ball and seemingly incased in a mud cocoon. The fish was supposed to be mummified and was taken as a curiosity and in the course of several weeks fell into the hands of a naturalist, who placed it in water. The mud slowly dissolved and soon the fish gave a gasp, then a convulsive struggle, like a sleeper awakening, finally swimming off.

Here was a singular example of a fish living out of water. It belonged to a group known as lung fishes, the members of which have a peculiar faculty of migrating overland and of being able to exist not merely days but months out of the water. At certain seasons the lakes and ponds of some localities in the dark continent dry up, and were it not for some provision which enables the fishes to bridge over this time it is evident that many would be destroyed. Nature, however, comes to the rescue, and, as the waters dry up, the fishes either crawl away to other streams or immediately descend into the earth, where they form themselves into a round ball and lie in a semi-desiccated condition until the water comes the ensuing season. It is even said that fishes have been known to pass two consecutive seasons in this condition. —C. F. Holder in Philadelphia Times.

A young German boy living near Altoona, Ia., has many characteristics of an albino, his hair being very light, his eyes small and of a pinkish hue and his skin as soft as velvet. He is unable to see by day, but at night his sight is perfect. He frequently plows all night, and the darker it is the better he sees.—New York Evening World.

The latest result of the youthful prodigy craze is the publication of a little book entitled "School Room Cogitations," written by a 10-year-old boy of Newark, N. J.

Whose Face Is Her Fortune.

The fabled butterfly seated in the rose's heart is not more confident of present sovereignty, and more thoughtless of the future than the hapless woman whose face is her fortune and who is content therewith. An unspoiled beauty, if not a lusus nature, is a specimen of her kind sufficiently rare to warrant surprised inspection. So difficult is it for her to keep her head steady and to order her heart aright, that even her plain visaged companions accord her magnanimous applause when she succeeds in doing one or both. She is more likely to pose as Narcissa, exacting tribute of adoration by inordinate estimate of her attractions. Once convinced that she is the beauty of her family, she aspires to eclipse every woman she knows; is loath to perceive the charms of others, and, when forced to do them partial justice, hates her rivals. The speck of blight works fast and far in a nature where the conserving power of sound sense has been reduced to a minimum by excessive vanity, bordering upon monomania. Flattery, conveyed in various vehicles, is her daily diet, and, if stinted in supplies, she seeks it avidly, and at any cost—let it be of her own soul. Earth has no drearier spectacle than that of a passe belle, who clings with both hands to the sceptre claimed by younger or fairer pretenders to the throne.

It is harder for beautiful women to be good than for those who have been taught from babyhood to seek the approval which all crave in the cultivation of mental and moral traits. Hard for them to put self out of sight. Our beauty is so fair to view; promises such lavish return for outlay so trifling that friends conspire to foster self-esteem. It is harder for her than for her sisters to refrain from appeals to the sensuous love of physical beauty in men that leads them to critical survey of her as a fine animal, not the goodly case of a goodlier soul. Harder to be generous to those who trench upon her province and threaten to divide her spoils.—Marion Harland in Philadelphia Times.

Humbug.

Barnum said "The American People like to be humbugged." This may be true in the line of entertainment, but not where life is at stake. A man with consumption, or any lingering disease, looking Death in the face and seeking to evade his awful grasp, does not like to be trifled with. So with confidence we place before our readers Nature's great remedy. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a sure relief for that long train of diseases resulting from impure blood, such as Consumption, Chronic Nasal Catarrh, Liver Complaint, Kidney Disorder, Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Scrofula and General Debility. Time-tried and thoroughly tested, it stands without an equal! Any druggist

ODDS AND ENDS.

Deeper than it seems—mud.

A SAD PROSPECT.—How many weary broken down invalids there are to whom life is burdensome and whose prospect is sad indeed. The nervous debility and general weakness of those afflicted with lingering disease is best remedied by the invigorating and restoring properties of B B B.

A taking fellow—the photographer.

A FAMILY FRIEND.—Dear Sirs,—We have used Hagyard's Yellow Oil for sore throat and colds, and always can depend on it to cure. We also use it for sore shoulders on our horses. Mrs. Wm. Hughey, Wilberforce P. O., Ont.

As a rule sharp business men are rather blunt.

MAKING SURE.—There are many people who adopt health and diet rules when attacked by disease of the stomach liver or bowels, this is quite right, but those who add to this treatment the use of B. B. B. according to directions, make sure of being quickly and easily cured.

All's fair in love—especially the object of one's idee.

PREVAILING SICKNESS.—Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sore Throat, Inflammation and Congestions are most prevalent at this season of the year. Hagyard's Yellow Oil is the best external and internal remedy for all these and other troubles.

The charming daughters of Colonel Bob Ingersoll are even stronger atheists than their father.

THANKFUL.—Some time ago being very greatly troubled with colds and coughing, I went to the drug store and got Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. In a short time I was well. I have found it a sure cure and am thankful that I used it, and now would not be without it. E. A. Schaefer, Berlin, Ont.

A bill has been introduced in the Kentucky legislature to punish wife-beaters at the whipping-pose.

HOW TO SAVE MONEY.—Always buy the best because it is the cheapest in the end, and not only is Burdock Blood Bitters the best medicine known for all chronic diseases of the Stomach, Kidneys, Liver and Blood, but it is really the cheapest as it needs less to cure and cures more quickly than any other remedy.

The blizzard, having gone into retirement in the United States, has been promptly succeeded by the flood.

A Sight Worth Seeing.

Probably few persons ever saw the breathing apparatus of a human being laid open for inspection. From a hospital cadaver, we once saw the lungs and bronchial tubes removed, and blown up as a boy would a bladder or toy balloon, until the fine bronchial tubes and air cells of the lungs were distended to their fullest extent. In this state the lungs were hardened by immersion in alcohol, so that they remained expanded when the air was let free. With a sharp knife the wind-pipe and lungs were split open, so that it was easy to trace the bronchial tubes gradually diminishing in size from the wind-pipe itself, becoming finer and more delicately branched, until smaller than fine sewing cotton, these tiny bronchi lead into the air-cells beyond, to convey air to sustain life.

Truly a wonderful sight, which we have often recalled during the past winter as we read of the great number of deaths from pneumonia and bronchitis. Nearly 250 deaths in Boston in the month of January.

It seems impossible to most people, that so common and simple a disease as bronchitis, should cause death at all. But think for a moment, what would happen if the lining membrane of those tiny tubes described above should become much swollen by inflamation, which is likely to occur after any severe cold. The passage of air to the lung cells would be stopped, and the patient die from suffocation, as certainly as if a giant grasped his throat.

People should not overlook the irritation or "tickling in the throat," which causes a "hacking cough." Sure symptoms of bronchitis. The irritation being caused from the inflamation inside of the wind pipe, it is useless to take medicines into the stomach to cure it; one might as well eat yellow to cure chapped hands.

The interior mucous membrane of the wind-pipe must be promptly treated to prevent the downward spread of the inflamation, and effect a cure. On page twelve of the pamphlet published by I. S. Johnson & Co., Boston, Mass., is printed plain directions for applying Johnson's Anodyne Liniment to the bronchial tubes and nasal passages, to cure colds and bronchitis.

It is a well-known fact, as many persons can testify that this old-fashioned remedy will stop inflamation and swelling, quicker than any other medicine.
