THE DREAM OF JOINVILLE.

Continental gossip says, that the Prince de Joinville having had a row with his royal father, concerning his famous pamphlet, rushed away to Saint Cloud, where he slept at an inn, and dreamed the following dream:—

* * * * * * *

Stealthily we speed along
I and my black steamers,
None can see the colours three
Painted on our streamers.
Not a star is in the sky,
Black and dull and silent;
Stealthily we creep along
Towards the wicked Island.

No'er an English ship is out
Somehow to defend it;
So we reach the Thames's mouth
Swiftly we ascend it.
Then I give a lesson fit
To Albion perfidious;
Properly I punish it,
For its treasons hideous.

Swiftly down the Thames we go,
All pursuit outstripping,
Blowing every village up,
Burning all the shipping.
Fancy Ramsgate in a blaze,
Margate pier a-dropping,
Woolwich burst, and red-hot shot
Plunging into Wapping!

London town's a jolly place,
England's pride and wonder;
Mortal eyes have never seen
Such a place for plunder.
Lord! it is a glorious night
As my steamers pretty
Moor there, and my lads and I
Pour into the City.

"Here's enough for each," say I,
Whatever his rank, lads,
Pierre shall rifle Lombard-street,
And Jean shall get the Bank lads;
Every seaman in my crews
Shall take as much as suits his
Wish, and needs but pick and choose
From Jones and Lloyd's to Coutts's

When my speech the seamen hear,
Each man does salute his
Admiral with loyal cheer,
And then begins his duties.
Some burn down the Monument,
And some the Tower invest, sir;
Some bombard the Eastern end,
And some attack the West, sir.

Gods! it is a royal sight,
All the town in flames is
Burning all the way from White-
Chapel to Saint James.
See the Mayor, in cotton cap,
Asking what the blaze meant?
When we hang his worship up,
Fancy his amazement!

Kill me every citizen,
But spare their pretty spouses;
Hang me the policeman up
At the station-houses.
Best St. Paul's with red-hot balls,
Set Temple Bar a-blazing,
Burn me Paper Buildings down,
And Lincoln's Inn and Gray's Inn.

List to no man's prayer and vows,
Grant to none their pardons;
Bloomfield hang at London House,
Peel at Whitehall Gardens,
Apsley House is stormed and won,
Seize the Iron Duke, boys;
Have him out, and hang him up
To the lantern—look, boys!

Gods, it is a noble flame!
Now my fellows thunder
At the gates of Buckingham—
How the Prince does wonder.
Out he comes with sword and lance;
Boys, stand back, impartial,
See an Admiral of France
Pink an English Marshal!

Tell us who's the best at blows,
The Army or the Navy?
Carte and Tierce! and down he goes!
Albert cries, "Peccavi."
"Spare my precious husband's life:"
The Queen upon her knees is,
The little Princes kneeling round
In their night-chemises.

* * * * * * *

Just as I had raised my arm
To finish Albion's ruin,
Came a cock, and crow'd a cursed
Cock-a-doodle-doing,
It was morning—and I lost
That delighted vision—
Cruel morning, to dispel
Such a dream Elysian! —Punch.

McKibbin's

Improved Sheathing, Dry Hair, Roofing, and other Felt.

IMPROVED SHEATHING FELT,

For covering Ship's Bottoms, &c.

The advantage this Sheathing Felt possesses over any other materials hitherto offered to the public, are such important improvements, as will recommend themselves, on inspection, to those ship-builders who have been in the habit of using Felt.

"In all the oldest Vessels discovered, the Hair was perfectly fresh, although the timber was in a state of decay. * * * The worm never penetrates through an inner sheathing of Hair. The strong and adhesive inner sheathing has proved mainly instrumental in preserving vessels from sinking, when the outer sheathing or caulking have failed or been destroyed." [Treatise of the Institution of Civil Engineers.

IMPROVED DRY HAIR FELT,

For Steam Boilers, &c.

Dry hair felt is justly considered indispensible for the exposed parts of Boilers, Cylinders and Steam Pipes, by those who study economy in fuel, and is now becoming in general use in all large Establishments, and on board steamers.

THE IMPROVED ROOFING FELT

is peculiarly applicable as a substitute for Slate, Zinc, Tiles, and other materials used for roofing, for its economy, lightness, and durability.
