Automatic Letter Boxes

German postmen, in collecting letters, don't handle them. The letters are removed from the beautiful blue wallboxes by fastening a bag to the bottom of the box. The bag, which has a metal rim to its mouth, is slipped into grooves, and opens and closes automatically. The postman does not handle or even see the letters, and cannot get at them unless he is prepared to make a hole in the bag.

A young son of Louis Wedder of Pond street, fell into the harbor yesterday afternoon, and was rescued by a man nearby.
