CARE OF INEBRIATES

his former condition, by keeping him out of the way of temptation till his physical and mental powers had been strengthened enough to meet it.

"According to the statute as it formerly obtained, only the man who was definitely declared insane could receive treatment here, and such cases are practically incurable, while the large majority of cases, where treatment might be effective, are only committed to jail, and the constant reappearance of these men testify only too clearly to the inadequacy of such treatment to solve the question.

The "Dope" Fiends.

"Along with this inebriate class there is another that is also worthy of consideration. Those addicted to the use of drugs are in an even worse state than the habitual drunkard, for the drunkard can by the exercise of his will power change his condition, and such cases are of fairly frequence occurrence, when the moral fibre of the man has not been wholly destroyed. But in the case of the drug habitue there is no chance of his effecting his own redemption, and the only hope for him is that he be isolated in some institution."

The Question.

Whether the asylum is the proper place to care for such patients, or whether homes should be built especially to care for such patients, is too large a question to discuss, but the asylum is an established fact, while the other institutions are merely a hope for the future. There is not at present accommodation for all the patients that would seek admission, for already Dr Robinson has received a number of letters asking what steps were necessary to have such patients admitted. But there is enough to make a start. New buildings are urgently needed, too, in all these public institutions, and their erection cannot well be delayed for long. If when this is done accommodation were provided for the large class of inebriates, and admission placed on the same basis as the admission to the private hospitals and asylums, an immense step in advance would be secured, and the course of many lives now wasted and utterly useless would be changed.

A Little City.

Few people realize how much like a city is this institution, which carries on its own life within the borders of its own five hundred acres, with only a very slight necessary connection with London itself. It has a total population of 1,240, of whom 1,089 are patients. They have their own bakeshop, their own farm, their own slaughter-house and butcher stores. They have a laundry whose equipment could not be surpassed by any commercial laundry in the city. They provide their own milk, have their own water supply, grow their own vegetables and fruit. There is a furniture shop, a blacksmith shop, a carpentry shop and paint shop. They do their own furnishing, install their own plumbing, and that in a manner that would do credit to the best master craftsman. They have their own artesian well and reservoir, their own fire hall, their own sewage disposal station. They grow practically all their own grain; practically the only fodder that is bought is bran. There is a fine, bright, carefully drained stable, made entirely of cement and ironwork, save for a lining of wood beneath the feet of the cattle, and here are housed a whole herd of fine Holstein cattle, that are kept so clean that they give the impression of a well cared for lap-dog. The milk is carefully tested morning and night, and the record of each cow is kept, and only the very best animals are retained.

The Main Building.

The main building, it must be acknowledged, is dark and gloomy, and old-fashioned, but two large balconies at each end will do something toward remedying this defect. The reception hospital, on the other hand, is exactly the opposite. It is bright and roomy, with accommodation for 60 patients. Save for the fact that the doors between the different corridors are locked, there is nothing to differentiate it from any well-conducted hospital. At the top of the building there is a fine modern operating room. Dr. Robinson, however, is not an enthusiast on the subject of operations.

"I don't believe it's giving the poor beggars a square deal," "Dr. Robinson said, "to operate on them when they can't refuse. And, besides, a great number of the patients we receive have been operated on for all manner of things, and as a rule are no better for it. Of course, there are cases where operations are advisable, but until this has been definitely proved they are not undertaken.

Benefit Mental Side.

"The principle in vogue here is rather an effort to benefit the mental side by building up the physical and nervous system, and by making the treatment resemble treatment as little as possible. Every effort is made to have an atmosphere of naturalness surrounding the patient at all times. Finally, the treatment includes as its two main ingredients, fresh air and water. The new hydro-therapeutic apparatus that has just been installed is one of the most complete in any institution of the kind, and a very decided increase in the efficiency of the institution is expected as a result."

The Baths System.

In addition to the large porcelain baths, each with its mixer and heat regulator, where the patients can be reclined in the bath on a canvas cradle, and remain anywhere from half an hour to ten days, which are used to counteract sleeplessness and excitement, there is in the basement a suite of five rooms, where the various douches and tonic baths are installed. These include the Scotch douche, the needle, circular and spray baths, the perineal douche, the sitz bath, a shampoo and massage table, a hot air cabinet, and a number of pack beds.

Care for 180 Patients.

There are three cottages, so called, that accommodate 60 patients each. These patients are under no other restrictions other than of reporting at meal times and in the evening. They do the work of the farm and other necessary work, and are harmless, and as a rule hardworking men.

Altogether it is a very interesting ing instructive world, and a fine illustration of what can be done with care and patience to ameliorate the lot of these unfortunate people.

L. AND N. TRACTION BILL GETS SECOND READING

Senator Coffey Assures Upper House That Those Behind It Intend to Build.

Ottawa, April 28.—Senator Coffey today moved the second reading of the Commons bill to incorporate the London and Northwestern Railway Company. He said he would not have urged the bill if he did not know the promoters were men of means, who intended to build, that the road would have land and water connection with the United States, and that the road would be to the advantage of Canada.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell favored the building of the line and thought all railroads should be under the jurisdiction of the Dominion. But the British North America act was against the passage of bills for a line which was wholly within a province, such as this one.

Senator Wilson said he thought Parliament could not be too careful to avoid invading provincial rights.

Senator Campbell declared that shippers found the double railway jurisdiction awkward. A man starting a consignment over a provincial line found himself under the jurisdiction of a provincial board for a few miles and under the Dominion board the remainder of the journey. It would be well if the Dominion and the provinces could come to an understanding, that the Dominion was to have jurisdiction in such cases.

Senator Ferguson thought that the single jurisdiction for a steam line might be advantageous. However, there was a chance that this bill was to enable the company to escape from the provincial regulations of electrical roads.

Senator Coffey said this was a steam road, but there was authority to use electricity.

Senator Watson could see no violation of the B. N. A. act in declaring a road within a province for the general advantage of Canada. The act gave that special authority.

Senator Douglas deprecated the Dominion forcing its views on a province. In this case he understood there was a number of people of Ontario who objected to the passage of the bill.

Senator Ratz said he had heard of no objection to the project from Ontario.

The motion for a second reading carried.

TELLS STORY OF KILLING OF ANNIS

The Trial of Captain Hains For Murder at Last Gets Under Way.

Flushing, N. Y., April 28.—At the Hains trial today in describing the shooting, when Prosecutor Gregg began to relate the part played by Thornton Hains, John F. McIntyre, chief counsel for the defense, objected, and was sustained by the court.

Mr. Gregg spoke about twenty minutes, and then called George Y. Smyner, a civil engineer from Flushing, as the first witness. The engineer identified some plans of the scene of the shooting which he had prepared.

Dr. Leopold Schmuck, house physician at the Flushing Hospital, described William Annis' body and his death.

The doctor said there were seven wounds, and that each bullet went through the body.

Charles H. Birchfield said he had a conversation with Thornton J. Hains at the clubnouse prior to the shooting. He was not allowed to relate the conversation upon objection of Mr. McIntyre.

Herbert Funke, who knew Annis well, testified that he saw Captain Hains standing on the float with his arms folded, and when Annis' boat came up the captain exclaimed, "Annis! Annis!" drew a revolver and shot Annis as he was stepping around the mast to the float. Funke was in his boat alongside the float, he said, and when he attempted to step ashore a revolver was pointed at him.

"Wait a minute," said Mr. McIntyre. "The witness cannot state anything about a revolver being pointed at him unless it was in the hands of Captain Hains."

"That is correct," Justice Garretson ruled.

After Annis was taken out of the water and lay on the float mortally wounded, Funke testified he heard Annis say, "Oh, Captain, you have made an awful mistake," and that Captain Hains replied, "Maybe I have, but I don't think so."

On cross-examination Mr. McIntyre asked Funke if he noticed Captain Hains' appearance just after the shooting.

"Did you notice that the captain's face was pale, his eyes bulging and his mouth twisting?" asked Mr. McIntyre.

Edwin Andrews, jun., a member of the Bayside Yacht Club, who was in a boat near the landing when the shooting happened, described the tragedy.

Justice Garretson ruled that the witness should refrain from repeating anything he heard Thornton J. Hains say. The court announced that he intended to keep everything out of the case that Thornton J. Hains said or did as far as possible.

Defense Opens.

Eugene M. Young, of counsel for Capt. Hains, in opening the case for the defence, told the jury that evidence would be presented to show that Capt. Hains had been insane as early as May 31, 1908, and was insane at the time he shot Annis.

"His father, Gen. Hains, will show this defendant would awake in the night trembling and screaming with terror," said Mr. Young, continuing his address. "His mother will tell you how he was different from other children, and stammered in his speech, and had to be tenderly watched and guarded during his childhood.

"We will show that Capt. Hains fell down a hatchway when 12 years old and was rendered unconscious from the blow on his head, from which he did not recover for a long time.

Mr. Young traced alleged eccentrications to the captain during his army career down to the time he met Annis in 1906, and the two families became intimate. He spoke of Capt. Hains' trip to the Phillippines, where he heard of his wife's alleged misconduct, and hastened home.

"Those who brought him across the continent from San Francisco will tell you of his mad actions," said Mr. Young.

"He never slept at all during the trip and paced the sleeping-car, annoying the other passengers, night after night."

Mr. Young described the family conferences after the captain arrived from the Pacific coast and the effect upon the captain of the news of his wife's conduct as told him by his father and brother, who said Claudia had confessed to them that she loved "Billy" Annis.

"He raved, alternatively laughing and crying, during this time," said Mr. Young, "and went about singing 'How Happy It Is To Be Married.' The thread had broken and his mind gave way."

Mr. Young said he would put in evidence the signed confesison of Claudia Hains, the captain's wife, of her relations with Annis, and a letter written to Annis by her after the captain's return, telling Annis that her husband knew everything, and warning Annis not to come to the house.

"Capt. Hains was told that Annis kept his collars and cuffs in Mrs. Hains' dresser, while the captain was away, and was called 'Papa' by the captain's own children," said Mr. Young.

Mr. Young stated that the defence would show that all things should cause the defendant to go into breaks of maniacal frenzy at various times, always followed by periods of deep, severe depression.

"We will show by officers of the United States army that the defendant's conduct during several months was decidedly erratic and irrational," said Mr. Young.

"This man was made insane by grief, shame, and mental shock," he added.

The lawyer told how the man used to recite by the hour, at his brother's home, Kipling's "Vampire," which begins, "A fool there was," etc.

All during Mr. Young's address Capt. Hains sat immovable, except now and then to bow his head on the counsel table. The defendant's lawyer described the movements of Capt. Hains and his brother Thornton on the day Annis was shot, and said he would show that the captain was under his brother's care at the time, and had gone with him to the Bayside Yacht Club, to look at some property near by, which Thornton expressed a wish to buy. The captain did not know Annis was there, Mr. Young said, and when he unexpectedly saw him he was seized with an insane attack which led him to kill.

Mr. Young spoke for about an hour. Court adjourned for the day when he had finished.

HIT BY EXPRESS.

Chatham, April 28.—Albert Mills, an employee of Gray's, met with a serious accident late this afternoon.

He was driving across the Grand Trunk crossing when an express struck him. The horse was thrown about a hundred feet and instantly killed. The wagon was thrown fifty feet and smashed into a hundred different pieces.

Mills was thrown from the rig and very badly injured and has a bad gash on the side of his head. He was rendered unconscious and taken to St. Joseph's Hospital.

The horse and rig belonged to Mr. Robert Gray.

DON'T BE CHEAP.

Do not hold yourself too cheap. If you do not think well of yourself others are not likely to think much of you. You are usually taken at your own value. By this is not meant a foolish self-conceit, but a proper self-respect.

Have a regard for the esteem of those whose opinion is worth having. No one can be admired by all. He who has no enemies may doubt whether he has real friends. Try to win the regard of the good and the wise; if the foolish take offense, pass it by.

Think too well of yourself to stoop to anything coarse, mean or untrue. However humble your station in life may be, you may think yourself worthy only of that which is good and true. To be genuine puts you on a high level. Whatever your purse, you may be rich in character. Think yourself worthy of the best to which you can attain. Aim for the highest you see, and should you fail to reach it you will still be higher than if your aim had been low.—Milwaukee Journal.

"THERE'S A REASON."

A STRONG MAN ALMOST DIED, GREW THIN, WEAK AND NERVOUS.

A Remarkable Recovery.

"Until three years ago I was the picture of health—then I became what people call Neurasthenic. I grew sleepless, worried, lacked will power, felt great physical fatigue, experienced fears and felt always in danger of something unknown. All the time I grew thinner and weaker, felt so nervous that I felt the end must be near. No medicine helped, each one seemed a new disappointment. Then my doctor suggested 'Ferrozone'—it was a fortunate choice because I improved at once. I gained weight, enjoyed my meals, got a better color, forgot my nervous fears. The way Ferrozone built me up is surprising—it made a new man of me and now I look good for twenty years to come.

GREEK APPEARS TO BE TOTALLY IN THE DARK

Is Fined Repeatedly But Cannot Speak English and Doesn't Know What It's For.

George Sam, the latest member of the peanut trust, who only came to this city a week ago, and in that time has already appeared in court twice for not moving on, appeared again this morning for blocking the street.

It has apparently become a habit with Mr. Sam to pay out $1 for he listened with no sign of comprehension while the magistrate read over the bylaw, but at the first mention of fine he put his hand in his vest pocket and pulled out four quarters that he had already counted out and walked over to Mr. Moule's desk. He gave them to him and prepared to leave the court, thinking it was all right.

The court, however, warned him he must keep his pushcart moving, and if he did, he will not have to pay out a dollar every time. Mr. Sam listened, but apparently did not understand a word of what was said. When the court asked him if he had a wife he nodded his head in the affirmative and when asked how many children he had, he said three.

In the Dark.

"I think somebody ought to explain to this man," said the court, "that all we want him to do is to keep moving, and then he will not be fined. I hate to take the money from him, as he probably has none to spare: however, we can't have him blocking the streets."

Sam Zimmermann, a Hebrew peddler, tied his horse in front of Ald. Garratt's, and left it for two hours. Ald. Garratt complained, and an officer took Mr. Zimmermann's name. A fellow-countryman explained that Zimmerman has only been in this country a short time and did not know the law, and he was let go with a warning.

LUCKNOW FOLKS HEAR OF LAYMEN'S MOVEMENT

Foreign Missionary Congress Opened There Yesterday.

Lucknow, April 28.—The laymen's missionary movement congress opened here today.

The opening address was given by Reeve Joynt, of Lucknow, who showed the importance of the movement.

Dr. Tucker, of Toronto, gave an eloquent address. He pointed out the high position of true womanhood, which was shown the greatest when doing the greatest work. Women were first in Christian and missionary work. He made an eloquent appeal to the women to bring freedom to the foot-bound women in China and to the down-trodden women of Africa and child-widows of India.

The evening session was held in the Presbyterian Church. President Rev. D. T. L. McKerroll presided. Over 500 people filled the church.

P. C. Murdoch, of Lucknow, gave an excellent address on "Moving of the World." He showed the wonderful changes in the world. Japan has opened up to missionaries and has adopted western methods. An intellectual movement was opening up China and a desire for knowledge was now moving India. God was moving the East to receive the Gospel and the West to give it.

The movement asks 7,000,000 Canadians to move 40,000,000 heathen.

The people of Lucknow an dvicinity are stirred and interested and great results are expected.

WINDSOR MAGISTRATE ENTERS MATRIMONY

Owing to Recent Bereavement in Bride's Family Ceremony Is Quiet One.

Windsor, April 29.—Gordon J. Leggatt, Windsor's police magistrate, and Miss Effie Morrison, youngest daughter of Mrs. Morrison, and the late Donald Morrison, were wedded last night at the home of the bride's mother, 116 Chatham street. Owing to a recent bereavement in the bride's family, the guests were limited to the immediate relatives and a few close friends.

The house was prettily decorated, each room being treated in a different color scheme. The wedding party entered the drawing-room by an aisle of white ribbons strung from the staircase and took their places before a bank of ferns where the ceremony was performed by Rev. J. C. Tolmie, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

The bride was given away by her brother, Stanley Morrison. She was attended by Miss Bertie Leggatt, sister of the groom, while Charles T. Morrison acted as best man. Miss Maud Morrison, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. The wedding march was played by Miss Wenona Morrison, of London, Ont.

Among the wedding presents were a silver water pitcher, trap and goblets from the Windsor police force, and a set of silver and gold orange spoons from the public library board.

Following the ceremony a buffet lunch was served. Mr. and Mrs. Leggatt left on the midnight train to spend their honeymoon in Atlantic City and New York.

CLASHED WITH MAYOR

A Suffragette Claims She Was Insulted by Montreal's Chief Executive.

Montreal, April 28. — Montreal's first suffragette case is now under way, in the shape of an action for $5,000 damages against Mayor Payette for alleged indignities to a fair supporters of the Socialistic and women's rights ideas. According to the mayor's secretary Mrs. Wright called upon him, accompanied by another well-known Socialist, and demanded help, on the ground that the city was bound to furnish aid or work to unemployed. The mayor did not see it that way, and the lady's replies were such that she was removed from his office. A few days later she again called and demanded help. On the mayor's refusing, it is stated that Mrs. Wright became very violent, and in the course of a stormy denunciation of his worship seized a paperweight and smashed a civic inkpot. This was too much for the mayor, and he called the police to remove the screaming woman.

Mrs. Wright now claims that she was insulted, and that the police used unnecessary violence in removing her to a cell, and has notified the mayor that she will enter suit against him for $5,000 damages.
