ANALYTICAL CHEMIST TELLS OF PATENT MEDICINES

A graduate in organic chemistry, who has made a study of many of the best-known patent medicines on the market, states that many have virtue, but as a rule people have to pay for a lot of unnecessary expense. The following is the recipe of a well-known secret preparation, and is known by authority to be one of the best stomach and liver tonics. It is prescribed by many of the best physicians.

This mixture cures constipation and biliousness. The recipe:—

Fluid Extract Cascara	½ oz.
Syrup Rhubarb	1 oz.
Carriana Compound	1 oz.
Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla	5 oz.

Take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

An eminent authority, who has made a careful and scientific study of the relative values of drugs having a specific action on the kidneys, bladder, and liver, pronounces this an excellent combination.

You can buy the ingredients separately and mix at home.

Cut this formula out and save it.

The income for the year was $7265, and expenditure $7775, a deficit of $515. This, it is hoped, will be made up by well-to-do friends. THREE REFORM DECREES IN CHINA'S AWAKENING

Important Edicts, Translations of Which Have Just Been Received in America.

To say that China is marching rapidly in the path of civilization, and that the conservatism of the ruling officials has given way to an earnest desire to bring the nation up to the position which she ought to occupy in the ranks of civilized powers is but to repeat what is obvious to all who are in touch with the history of recent events in the far east. On Sept. 27 and Oct. 1 three imperial decrees were published in the Peking Gazette, which, in keeping with numerous edicts of the past two years, mark important steps in China's development.

The first of these is in the name of the dowager empress, and it states that a contitutional government and parliamentary representation are desired ends, and that the calling of an imperial assembly is a first step in that direction. A further step of education and preparation is the establishment of local councils in places to be selected by the viceroys and governors, and in these a system of "local self-government will be tentatively tried." The ministry of the interior is charged to formulate a scheme for "local self-government for the empire," and the ministry of education is commanded to draw up a plan for "universal education thruout the empire, and of the books to be studied in the schools thereof."

These ministries are to "make frequent inspections to find out whether our commands have been carried out or not, so that as early a date as possible may be arrived at for the granting of the constitution and parliamentary representation to the country. "Let us have tangible results and not merely hollow appearances."

Fitted for Constitution.

The second decree is in the name of the emperor himself, and it impresses upon officials and commoners his belief that the country is just fitted for a constitutional form of government. "The ministries and government offices in Pekin, and the viceroys and governors are commanded to lose no time in carefully selecting men of ability to explain the doctrines that the emperor desires to grant a constitution to the country, with the sovereign at the head, and an earnest effort must be made to study the systems of government of the various countries of the west." Those who have shown ability to understand and explain these systems are to be recommended to the throne for promotion, whilst those who are lax in their duties are to be censured.

The third decree is also in the name of the emperor. It is doubtless called forth by the recent Boxer uprising at Kanchowfu, where the mission property of the Roman Catholics and of the China Inland Mission was destroyed, whilst in the neighborhood the Italian priest, Cadaglia, and a number of native converts were killed. It is the clearest and most satisfactory pronouncement yet made upon the relation of misionaries and converts to the government and laws of China.

The "deep regret of the throne" is expressed, and the blame is laid upon the incapability of the authorities concerned, for not properly settling disputes between converts and non-converts.

All are alike children and proper subjects of the emperor, and they are all alike amenable to the laws, without distinction. Viceroys and governors are charged to prepare abstracts from the treaties bearing upon this subject, and to print and circulate them among their subordinates.

Important Changes.

These, in turn, must make a close and diligent study of these abstracts, so that they may be able to act in strict accordance with the treaties. "If officials will only act with justice and impartiality towards all, without invidious distinctions, non-converts and converts will naturally adjust themselves to the normal conditions before them, eradicate all feelings of envy and hostility and live at peace with each other. Should any district official be ignorant of the treaties or deal unjustly with Christians, or, on the other hand, seek to curry favor with Christians by dealing unjustly with non-Christians, thereby creating a disturbance which may have most serious results, the guilty officials will be sternly dealt with, without mercy."

It may be of interest to mention yet another decree of Sept. 27. This puts an end to the system of universal allowances to the Manchu soldiers and their descendants thruout the empire, which have not only been a heavy burden upon the country but have led to large numbers of people growing up in idleness and want, without learning a trade, as did the Chinese around them.

The horse-breeding lands allotted to each garrison are to be divided up, so that each family may have enough to cultivate for their maintenance. Where garrisons have no lands the local authorities must purchase at current prices from farmers and others. At least one out of every ten men in the garrisons is to cultivate, and the number must gradually increase. "They are to be similar to the Chinese around them in every respect."

Joint Local Conference.

It is obvious that the merging of the two races, and thus obliterating the hatred of the Chinese against the dynasty as of foreign origin, is one, at least, of the objects of this decree, and of a previous one, by which Chinese ladies are made eligible as empress consort. The decree, recently repeated, against fotbinding, will also work in this direction, for the Manchu women have never bound the feet.

The China Inland Mission in Toronto has arranged to hold a joint Bible and missionary conference next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Dec. 3, 4 and 5, in Central Presbyterian Church, Grosvenor-street, at 3.30 and 7.45 p.m. The Bible teachers are Rev. W. J. Erdman, D.D., well known in connection with the old Niagara conferences; Rev. J. M. Gray, D.D., dean of the Chicago Bible Institute, and Rev. Henry W. Frost. Several missionaries will also speak.

A FEW WORDS IN CONFIDENCE.

King Palmetto Compound is a distinct product of the twentieth century conditions. It is not a secret or patent nostrum. On the contrary the formula is plainly printed on the wrapper. It is the result of the modern investigations into the cause and cure of all disorders of the stomach, liver and kidneys.

Science has demonstrated that ninety per cent. of the diseases to which the body is subject have their origin in the retaining of waste and poisonous matter in the system, and that if the bowels and kidneys are properly performing their functions, all the other organs and the nerves will continue in a condition of abounding health. King Palmetto Compound is a kidney and liver tonic and blood purifier of wonderful virtue, and the diseases which arise from impure and sluggish liver and kidneys are quickly cured by its use, as cystitis, catarrh of the bladder, nervous prostration, general debility and rheumatism.

One dose a day. Pleasant and convenient to take. It contains no dangerous poisons and no narcotics, but just pure vegetable remedies of universally acknowledged efficacy.

Price $1.00 a bottle.

Give it a trial. Write for a free trial sample to the King Palmetto Company, Bridgeburg, Ont.
