A BRIGHT, HEALTHY BOY whose life was Saved by GRODER'S SYRUP.

A Mother Speaks to Mothers.

THE GRODER DYSPEPSIA CURE CO.

GENTLEMEN:—My child is the picture of health to-day because I heeded the advice of a friend and tried your remedy. Our baby was cutting his teeth last spring, and like many other children at such a time, he became very sick and feverish. We were so anxious about him that we called in two physicians, and did all in our power to relieve him. But he grew so much worse that we feared for his life. There seemed no help for him, and the doctors gave us no hope of his recovery. It was then that a friend recommended your medicine, and we commenced its use. To our entire surprise the very small doses which we gave each hour brought speedy relief. Our boy rallied quickly and soon became himself again. Other mothers have children who suffer precisely as mine did. They should use your remedy and keep it constantly in the house. I would not think my children safe without it.

A ROMANCE OF MIDDLE AGE.

(From Chamber's Journal.)

Soon Miss Sabrina was allowed to come down stairs for a few hours every day, and from the drawing-room window where she lay on the couch she watched the middle aged man and the young girl take their habitual stroll together, and gradually the idea grew in her mind that Dr. Meadows was seeking a bride in earnest—the niece, and not the aunt.

The night before Miss Elizabeth's return, Aimee was talking to the doctor of her younger aunt. He had been drinking tea with them in honor of Miss Sabrina's first walk round the garden. 'I should say, mon ami,' she said reflectively, 'if Tante Elise were younger, that she had la grande passion.' For see, when a girl in France has it, she grows pale; she seems not to hear you when you speak to her, and then her laugh sounds strange and harsh. So it is with Tante Elise; and are not English and French alike in that? But then, alas! I fear she is too old for la grande passion.'

'Too old!' said the doctor, indignitely, adding involuntarily, 'He not too old!'

Something in his voice caught the girl's attention. She looked up curiously at him, and he, foolish ancient lover, blushed like a girl beneath her enquiring eyes. 'Aha!' she cried archly, 'you—my mock papa—are you in love? Why, of course,' she cried again, clapping her hands in childish delight at her own quick perception. 'You are in love with Tante Elise. Why did I not guess before?'

Then noticing that her face was very grave, her mood changed at once, and raising his hand to her lips, she kissed it impulsively. 'Ah I am so sorry,' she said, apologetically. 'I should not have said it, I will not be rude again,' and with a hasty 'good-by' she turned and ran to the house.

Miss Sabrina had been watching the little scene, and never doubted that Dr. Meadows would now ask for Aimee's hand at the earliest opportunity.

'I shall refer him to her parents, of course,' she thought, yet I am sure they could not but approve. What a good thing I warned Elizabeth in time. I shall tell her first thing when she comes home; and meanwhile I will not mention the subject to Aimee.'

The next day Miss Elizabeth returned, looking a shade fresher for her change; and for a long time that evening the sisters were closeted in Miss Sabrina's bedroom. At the end of that time Miss Elizabeth emerged very white and drawn, and she knelt long into the silent watches of the night, praying for the spirit of unselfishness, which should make her rejoice in her neice's good fortune.

When Dr. Meadows left Aimee at the gate, he swore inwardly at having betrayed himself; but when his wrath had cooled a little, he thought of her words, and soon the manliness within him began to cry out against the timidity and self depreciation that had held him back from making a straightforward appeal to Miss Elizabeth's feelings. Then and there he decided once more to "screw his courage up to the sticking point,' and 'We'll not fail" he said to himself as he stood on the doorstep; and he pulled the bell so vigorously that the servant came running to the door in disheveled alarm.

Accordingly the morning after Miss Elizabeth's return he donned a fine white waist-coat, buttoned up his frock-coat with agile fingers, and sallied forth to place his happiness in the scale of fickle fortune. He was fortunate enough to find Miss Elizabeth alone in the drawing room arranging flowers in a gown of Quaker gray. Determined at once to broach the subject uppermost in his mind, he began—after a little humming and hawing—in this wise: 'Miss Elizabeth, I have come to speak to you on a subject which concerns my happiness very deeply.'

'So it was true; Sabrina had been quite right!'

'Yes, Dr. Meadows' said Miss Elizabeth nervously, pulling a pansy to pieces as she spoke. 'I know—that is—we are quite prepared—I will go and fetch Sabrina.'

'Fetch Sabrina!' echoed the good doctor in astonishment at this novel way of receiving a speech so obvious in its meaning.

Miss Elizabeth became more and more flurried,

'Well—I will fetch Aimee, she said, tremulously. Then, catching the doctor's eye, and reading a strange tale therein, she added wildly, in her confusion, 'or both of them.'

Suddenly it all flashed upon the doctor. He moved to where Miss Elizabeth was standing, and took both her hands in his. 'Is it possible Elizabeth, that you can mistake what I mean.'

'Oh, please don't talk like that, Dr. Meadows,' sobbed Miss Elizabeth in dismay. 'I promised Sabrina that I would not let you lead me into foolish sentiment ali-ism.

'What do you mean, Elizabeth? I love you. I want you to be my wife. It is Yes is it not? he asked, tenderly, for Miss Elizabeth had unconsciously laid her head on his shoulder and was sobbing as if her heart would break.

'But Sabrina said you were only a bee-eee,' she murmured piteously through her tears, and that you—flew about—sucking a little honey—here and—there, and that if you ever was to settle, it would be on some gorgeous flower, and I am only a—comparatively poor old maid' She had learned her lesson well.

At that moment Dr. Meadows hated Miss Sabrin with a vindictive hatred. But he controlled it, and gently putting his arm around Miss Elizabeth he drew her to him and tried to sooth her agitation. 'I don't think I am a bee,' he said, hardly able to keep from smiling at the apt comparison and if I am, why, my dear, I have got a cosy hive, and you shall come and be my queen.'

Then he laughed at his foolish words, and Miss Elizabeth laughed too, and was just wiping her eyes when Sabrina opened the drawing room door. She stood for a few moments, looking with bewildered eyes at the tableau vivant.

'Miss Sabrina,' said Dr. Meadows, stepping forward, 'I have asked your sister to become my wife, and she has done me the honor to accept my offer. I cannot ask for your sanction but I should blessing and continued friendship. Believe me, I am not the light rover you imagine. I will take care of Elizabeth, and you shall not feel that you have lost a sister; but only, by God's help, that you have gained a brother.' And stooping, he raised Miss Sabrina's hand to his lips.

'When does the next train go to New York?'

'The next train, madam,' said the agent, looking at his watch, 'goes to New York at exactly 3.30.'

'Will that be the first train?'

'Yes, madam, the first train.'

—Major C. F. Howes of Boston has had an interview with Attorney General Blair and instructed him to take proceedings for libel against Mr. H. H. Pitts, M. P. P., proprietor of the Fredericton Reporter, on account of the publication in a recent issue of the Reporter of an alleged death-bed confession of the major's regarding the shooting of his wife some years ago. Major Howes pronounced the statements untrue in every respect. The report in the Reporter was to the effect that Major Howes had as much as confessed to shooting his wife on the Tobique a few years ago. This will give Mr. Blair a weapon to use on Mr. Pitts which may hurt more than the York election did.

—At Dartmouth, Halifax, on Saturday John Lewis Tynes, infant son of Thos. Tynes, colored, was burned to death. Mrs. Tynes left the house about five o'clock to go to a neighbor's for oil and returned in fifteen minutes. On entering the door she called for the four children she had left up stairs. No reply was received, and after going up, she was met, with a volume of smoke which so darkened the apartment that she was unable to see anything within for some time. She found her way through the smoke to the bed. There lay the eldest child, a little girl, who cried aloud when touched. The smoke clearing off, John L., ten months old, sat still wrapped in his chair as when she left him, but stone dead.

Gratifying to all.

—Herbert Raynes, sixteen years old, is in custody at Waltham, Mass., for shooting his employer, Hiram Caldwell. Young Raynes, according to his own story, has been knocked around considerably. He said he was born in Nova Scotia and when he was six years old his parents separated and he went to live with an uncle in New Brunswick. He remained with the Uncle five years and then his father took him. After living with his father two years he started out to earn his own living. He worked about New Brunswick for a while, but his father kept drawing his pay, so he left the country and went to the States. He hired with Caldwell, who is a milkman. Raynes says Mr. Caldwell had kicked him once and was about to repeat the blow when he was shot. His mother, he thinks, now lives in Halifax, and his father is residing somewhere in New Brunswick.

—The shipping of the port of North Sydney for 1892 shows a considerable increase over previous years. The total arrivals, including vessels for orders were 2,400 as compared with 1,534 for 1891. Sydney Mines had a busy year, their coal shipments reached 163,000 being 16,000 larger than in previous years. Navigation is still open. Several steamers have loaded at Sydney Mines since the New Year. The barque Forrest is at Dobson's wharf, chartered to load at the Gardiner Mines for St. John. The present season has been a fairly profitable one for the mines and the outlook for the future is equally favorable.

—The Custom Department recently passed a regulation admitting sugar and molasses from the U. S. at the same rate of duty as that from other countries. This was done to remove all cause for friction between the two countries as it was claimed by the Americans that our tariff was a discrimination. Local sugar men are protesting against the repeal of the law, as they claim it will divert the heavy trade to the States which formerly came to Canada.

—The shipments of coal from Cumberland county for last year will show a decrease of 24,000 tons. The total shipments from the Springhill collieries are 362,000 against 406,000 tons in 1891 a falling off of 34,000 tons. The Joggins colliery, however, shipped 63,900 tons last year against 53,872 tons for the previous year—an increase of 10,000 tons. Extensive improvements were made at both collieries during the year.

—In the Exchequer Court, Ottawa, the 'hard pan' case of McDonell & O'Brien, contractors for sections two and three of the Oxford and New Glasgow railway, was heard. The judge intimated after all the evidence was in that he would 'find' for the plaintiffs in the full amount of their claim, about $42,000. Judge Burbidge rendered judgment in the first of the 'hardpan' cases in Ottawa, awarding the plaintiffs $175,000. Stewart and Jones were awarded $30,000. McManus and Trites were awarded $32,000 as extras.

A DOUBLE HEADER.

Mrs. Martin Johnson of Chicago Gives Birth to a Remarkable Child.

It is a Pretty and Well-Framed Girl, but Attached to Her Back is the Body of a Twin Brother.

CHICAGO, Dec 26.—Unusual merriment resounded through the home of Martin Johnson at 475 West Indiana street last night. Six weeks ago Mrs. Johnson ushered into the world two children born as one. There were some doubts expressed after the accouchment was over whether the twins would live or die, but yesterday all fears gave way to merriment. Several men learned in medical lore have seen the infants, and have tried to reach a theory that would account for the living of one while the other is dead. They are perplexed over the phenomenon, nothing like it has ever been heard of in the medical world and that the child of Mrs. Martin Johnson will stand pre-eminent as a freak for many years to come seems assured.

When the Siamese twins appeared in America they puzzled the scientific world, but when one died the other succumbed soon afterward. Physicians at once discovered the link that bound them, but the Chicago doctors—or those who have seen them—cannot account for the fact that one of Mrs. Johnson's children is alive, while the other is dead. It is thought, however, that eventually both children will grow into one perfect specimen, and that the deformities which now surround the living child will be thrown off by nature.

The face, abdomen, breast, legs and arms of the living child are perfect, while at the base of the brain and extending down the back is the spinal column of a second baby. The positions, however, are reversed. At the rectal bone are the face, eyes and mouth of a second child, while at the back of the neck are the hindquarters. Armes about six inches long, the property of child No. 2, extend from the side of the living infant and are perfect, with the exception of length. The features of the dead child are plainly to be seen, and from appearance he additional weight does not bother the living infant in any way. It is a girl, and seems to be as much of a beauty as any of her sex at a similar age.

THE TWINS OFFERED FOR INSPECTION.

Last evening the little one was taken from her cot by her mother and child No. 2 was undressed for the benefit of a visitor. There is no life whatever in body No. 2, or if there is it has not shown itself. The eyes remain closed and the little lashes droop over the lids in the usual manner. The lips are small, somewhat discolored; the cheeks are of a dull color, showing a lack of vitality, and the ears are likewise dark. The physicians account for the color by the position of the body. Were the positions changed, it is probable both babies would be alive, but the downward position of one child caused a rush of blood to the brain and consequent death. Where the third bone in the spinal column should be there is a lump the size of an egg; what it is no one has attempted to explain, but further up toward the head is to be seen very plainly the posterior of a second body. There are no additional legs, however. The mother thinks the lump in the back is what should be the legs, but that they failed to develop. The arms, however, are what a woman would call cute. They extend from the body in a prominent manner, and the fingers on each hand are perfect and none are missing.

The mother held the infant and gave a face view of the living baby. It is a perfect specimen of a healthy baby girl, from a front view in every particular. The face is full, the cheeks rosy, and the eyes blue. The head is of normal size, and is covered with dark hair. The appetite of the baby is of the ravenous kind, and bottles of milk disappear with a frequency that would cause the Milk trust to wish that there were more infants of the same kind.

But how is No. 1 going to go through the world with such heavy weight? However, her father says she is all right and will suffer no inconvenience.

PROUD OF THEIR WONDERFUL BABY.

Martin Johnson, the father, is a norwegian and an iron moulder at the foundry of Fuller & Co. His wife is a dark-eyed little woman and was born in Canada. They have two well-formed children besides the pair that are now attracting attention, and the appearance of the last mentioned pair has caused them no uneasiness. Last evening the family were in an enjoyable frame of mind. It was Christmas day, and their children showed every indication of living; therefore they had more than ordinary cause for feeling thankful, and all who called were royally entertained, and given a glimpse of the child that should cause Barnum to turn over in his grave.

When the twins were born, six weeks ago, the sight awed those who saw it. The doctor present at once became restless and summoned the assistance of a midwife. The two consulted and it at once became apparent that the children were twins. Nature, however, in one of her inscrutable ways, did not separate the bodies, and when they came into the world they came as one, and as such, it seems, they will remain. Vigorous efforts were made to keep life in the body. Baby No. 2 was dead when born, but baby No. 1 gave unmistakable evidence of being the possessor of good lungs. Shortly after its birth however it suffered a relapse. The doctor informed the mother of the condition of the child, but she wanted it to live at any rate. Last night Martin Johnson was happy, his wife was happy, and all who called wished long life and prosperity to the infant that is bound to make the west side famous.

DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS FOR PALE PEOPLE

ARE NOT a Purgative Medicine. They are a BLOOD BUILDER, Tonic and Reconstructor, as they supply in a condensed form the substances actually needed to enrich the Blood, curing all diseases coming from poor and Watery Blood, or from VITIATED HUMORS in the BLOOD, and also invigorate and BUILD up the BLOOD and System when broken down by overwork, mental worry, disease, excesses and indiscretions. They have a SPECIFIC ACTION on the SEXUAL SYSTEM of both men and women, restoring LOST VIGOR and correcting all IRREGULARITIES and SUPPRESSIONS.

EVERY MAN Who finds his mental faculties dull or failing, or his physical powers flagging, should take these PILLS. They will restore his lost energies, both physical and mental.

EVERY WOMAN should take them. They cure all suppressions and irregularities, which inevitably entail sickness when neglected.

YOUNG MEN should take these PILLS. They will cure the results of youthful bad habits, and strengthen the system.

YOUNG WOMEN should take them. These PILLS will make them regular.

A Favorite and Most Valuable Remedy for the CURE of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA

OR ANY FORM OF THROAT AND LUNG TROUBLE.

If Afflicted, Try It. It Will Cure You.

Malcolm McLean, of Kensington, P. E. I., writes the following:

For five years I suffered from severe Chronic Bronchitis, for which the doctors and numerous patent medicines failed to give relief. My physicians and friends advised a change of climate as my only hope. HAWKER'S BALSAM OF TOLU AND WILD CHERRY was recommended to me, and I am happy to say that I was entirely cured before I had used two large bottles. I consider it to be truly a wonderful medicine, and cheerfully recommend it to all so afflicted.

CATARRH

Is a most loathsome, dangerous, and prevalent malady. It is a blood disease, usually of Scrofulous origin, and for which local treatment is useless. Before health is possible, the poison must be eradicated from the system, and to do this the disease must be treated through the blood. For this purpose no remedy is so effective as Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

"For the past eight years, I have been severely afflicted with Catarrh, none of the many remedies I tried affording me any relief. My digestion was considerably impaired, and my sleep disturbed by phlegm dropping into my throat. In September last I resolved to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, began to use it at once, and am glad to testify to a great improvement in my health." —Frank Tesson, Jr., engineer, 271 West Fourth street, New York City.

"My daughter, 16 years old, was afflicted with Catarrh from her fifth year. Last August she was

TREATED WITH

Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and after three months of this treatment she was completely cured. It was a most extraordinary case, as any druggist here can testify."—Mrs. D. W. Barnes, Valparaiso, Neb.
