OLD LONDON MOST COSMOPOLITAN

Interesting Letter from the British Metropolis.

VISIT OF GERMAN EDITORS

Teuton Journalists Given Good Reception – Women Writers Condemn Slang.

London, July 16.—Once again "Glorious June" asserts its sway over London society and its doings. Garden parties, receptions, balls, dinners, theater parties and river parties are the order of the day. Never has there been more glorious weather for Ascot, and just at this moment the whirl of the season is at its height. Piccadilly, Belgravia and Mayfair are a sight to behold between the hours of 4 and 8 p.m., when the whole of the gay world seems moving to and fro from function to function. Never were frocks and frills more delightful to contemplate. The "Airy-Fairy-Lillian" type of woman revels in the fragile textures, and in a sharp breeze one sees a carriage flash past, with its dainty occupant in a veritable whirl of chiffon, gauze, tulle, and a "swirl" of ostrich feathers, which appear to be semi-detached from the hat, which takes the most extraordinary curves and bends as the wind plays havoc with hat-pins and "pincurls" (as those little bunches of false hair are called).

"In the Hands of the Germans."

London is in the hands of the Germans at the present. The representatives of the German press have been feted and fasted by every species of corporation in the community, and yesterday were "lunched" at the Mansion House, where the one lady editress, Madame Braun, was the observed of all observers. Mr. James Bryce proposed the health of "Our German Guests," and in a happy speech alluded to the fact that the English and German peoples had never, since the division in the old Teutonic stock, fought against each other, but they had often fought side by side as comrades and had worked together in many fields of science for the benefit of mankind. The secretary for Ireland paid a fine tribute to one of the most noted of German editors, Dr. Barth, whom he described as having the most perfect qualities of a journalist, "perfect uprightness and independence. The true journalist should always say the thing he thought, and say it without fear." One rather wondered how this appealed to the German editors who live in constant fear of arrest for lese majeste!

There is an exhibition of German pictures at Prince's Skating Club, and an amusing incident was told the writer by a lady who had been present at the dinner which inaugurated the exhibition, when German artists, with tears in their eyes, raved at length about the pacific bond which art engendered between countries, and all the time the British guests present were exclaiming under the'r breath at the hideousness of the German pictures which covered the walls of the gallery where the exhibition was held. There is a strong party in England, just now, trying by every possible effort to cement the friendship between their motherland and Germany. Among them may be found those who fight against the aliens bill, which one learns gives great offense to Emperor William, who takes good care to expel from his own domains those whom he does not approve of.

A Cosmopolitan Capital.

London is rapidly becoming as cosmopolitan as Paris. There is one Japanese theatrical troupe playing in the metropolis. Three French companies and Yvette Guilbert have had possession of our theaters. German opera and a German theatrical company, and Russian players are found in other theaters, Spanish and Austrian dancers hold the boards at music halls. The whole trend of life in London is growing more and more like that of the great cities of the continent. The writer spent last Saturday evening at the Austrian exhibition at Earl's Court, where the exhibit of every sort of fabric and artistic creation from Vienna and the Austrian provinces, is to be found. One could not begin to make a thorough investigation of the various stalls of beautiful glass, china and leather articles, or examine the wonderful cases of marvelous costumes, hats, feathers, and costly trifles for which Austria is famous. One thing struck one at once. The furniture exhibited in especially decorated rooms was entirely different in finish and design that one sees in English exhibitions. The finish of the woodwork was most remarkable, and a certain curious solidity and stiffness, as compared with French furniture was evident. The metal work, designed for electric lights, was often beautiful, but while now and then there was a tendency to ornate design, the quality and finish of the metal was really admirable. Glass, from Bohemia, was exhibited in enormous quantities; some of it exquisite in color and design; most of it, too, loaded with gilt. The crowd was so enormous, a typical Saturday night crowd—and it was extremely difficult to push one's way from point to point. Earl's Court is now the rendezvous for the fashionable as well as the ordinary being, but as usual there is a contrivance for separating the "sheep" from the "goats" and the "Welcome" Club" is railed off from the Quadrant, the lawn strewn with comfortable chairs for the members where dinner is served under an open marquee which borders on the lawn. Here the really "elect" disport themselves and listen to a most excellent band or orchestra which plays in the pavilion in the center. A first-rate restaurant flanks one side, where, for 7s. 6d., those who are not members of the club can enjoy open-air and a really good meal at the same time. As the night shades deepen the effect is really exquisite. The myriad of electric bulbs outline all the buildings and pavilions, and the gaily-dressed mingle with the most humble. Many are the frank courtships which are in progress among those lads and lassies who imagine themselves "lost in the crowd." The great Vienna orchestra plays in another cour, and here are the genuine music lovers, sitting, listening in rapt attention to the strains of perhaps one of the best orchestras in the world. Inspiring music, which suggests "Strauss" at his best, is provided, and is strangely in keeping with the surroundings. Not far off is the machine for "aralei flights." Both men and girls mount a platform, seize the handles of a small cross bar, and are swung across a space of about 20 yards, above strong nets stretched below them to prevent accidents. The switch-back and water-chute are also in full swing. Shrieks of laughter and sometimes of fear, are heard as the endless parties of men and women fly down the steep slope of either one. The enormous wheel turns ever slowly with its living freight, until they reach an elevation where they have a most superb view of London. This is the last year of the great Ferris wheel, which is said to be ordered down by the L. C. C. You ramble about among the booths which repersent the outlandish peoples found within Austrian dominions. There are gaily-embroidered sleeveless coats, lined with sheepskin; marvelous garments of semi-oriental design, the use of which no English person can imagine; shoes which are neither slippers or boots, nor yet rightly in the category of "shoes:" murderous-looking weapons, to stick in the broad, gaily-decorated belts, designed to keep together those quaint garments; lace in profusion, some of it marvelous in design and texture, much of it coarse and effective in its bold "motif." On every hand one hears a language which savors of German, but is not the German of Germany, not so guttural, and with "clicking" sharpness at times. Austrian maidens, many of them exceedingly pretty, preside over the stalls and chat gaily with dark-browed foreigners of many nationalities who presumably speak a polygot language which serves their purpose.

The Women Writers.

The Women Writers gave their annual dinner at the Criterion restaurant on Monday, where a vast concourse of women sat down to the many tables ranged down the length of the great room. It was an interesting gathering of the women who provide us with our daily gossip, and, one might well assert, our daily novel, so many are the books turned out by the industrious literary bee. Mrs. Walton and Mrs. Wharton, two well-known novelists, were there, both middle-aged, stoutish matrons; Mrs. Alice Meynell, who looks like a being suddenly transported from a far-off sphere, with dreamy eyes and a delicate worn face; Mrs. Thurston, the observed of all observers, in a model costume of paquins, flame-colored chiffon skirt, white bodice with a girdle of black velvet, and a sort of fichu of the flame-colored material. She has quite an interesting personality to observe, this most successful of authoresses, whose last book is said to have netted her £9,000. Ivory-tinted complexion, buxom figure, dark flashing eyes, and black hair, arranged in a decidedly daring fashion, with one thick lock worn low down over the eyebrow, she is distinctly noticeable even among so great a crowd of notables. Mrs. Alec Tweedie, the traveler and writer, was at one end of the table at which the writer sat, and Miss Violet Hunt, who writes risque novels, was at the other, clad in the most extraordinary vivid shade of blue, as daring as Mrs. Thurston's flaming gown. Dr. Arabella Kenealy was another striking figure, as unlike one's idea of a lady doctor as it is possible to conceive. Mrs. Thomas Hardy and Mrs. Meredith were two of the guests. Ther were endless "titled" ladies among both members and guests, and one of the most conspicuous of these was Lady Glover, whose article in the Fortnightly on the suffragist question has attracted much attention. Lady Colin Campbell, who looked very ill, and I noticed walked with the aid of a cane, was the center of an animated group. Lady Bell, who presided as chairman, made quite a telling speech, when she pleaded for more discrimination in the use of words among women writers, and lamented that our young people at the present day were unable to express themselves, and said that their vocabulary seemed to be comprised in "rot," "rotten" and "rotter," "waster," "a good sort," and "of the best." They also spoke of "sitters" for sitting-rooms, "bedders" for bedrooms, and "progers" for programmes.

JUMPING WITH NERVE PAIN.

That's how you feel with neuralgia. But why lie awake at night, grumble or complain, get busy with a bottle of Nerviline. It does act like magic, seeks out the pain and destroys it.

Harmless and certain, instant in effect, nothing is so popular as Nerviline for aches and pains of all kinds. Try it for lumbago, test it in rheumatism, prove it in neuralgia, pleurisy or colds. You'll soon acknowledge that Polson's Nerviline beats them all. Sold everywhere in large 25-cent bottles.

FISHER'S FIERCE FIGHT

Catches 80-Pound Muscallonge, Which Nearly Drowns Him.

Milwaukee, July 17.—Col. J. H. Sieber, of Pittsburg, passed through the city Saturday on his way home with a trophy of his vacation trip to Northern Wisconsin, in the shape of the largest muscallonge ever caught in the northwest.

The fish, which was in the baggage car, weighs 80 pounds and one ounce. The monster was caught at Tomahawk and his taking nearly cost the Pittsburger his life. The fish hustled his birchbark canoe all over the lake, hustled him on to a snag, stove a hole in the frail craft and then darted for the shore.

Col. Sieber was dumped out into the lake, where the water was up to his armpits, but he stuck to the line and succeeded in landing the fish.

"I would as soon attempt to eat a chunk of a broncho as that," exclaimed a westerner as he gazed upon the prize.

"That fish must be 50 years old. Look at the barnacles on him," and the man turned the fish over and displayed great ridges of foreign matter sticking to the body of the "catch."

THAW SUED BY ANOTHER WOMAN

For $20,000 on a Charge of Assault Four Years Ago.

New York, July 17. — Assistant District Attorney Garvan, who is building up the case against Harry Thaw, was informed yesterday of a proceeding brought against Thaw some years ago and which will undoubtedly be used by the prosecution at the murder trial. This proceeding was a suit brought by a woman named Ethel Thomas for $20,000 for assault.

An interesting fact concerning this suit was that the lawyer of record was Abe Hummel, who drew up the affidavit which Evelyn Nesbit made against Thaw after she had left him in Paris and returned to this country. One of the charges said to have been made by Miss Nesbit in that affidavit, of which a record can be produced, is that Thaw assaulted her.

The facts concerning the suit brought against Thaw by Miss Thomas were given to Mr. Garvan yesterday by Joseph A. Shay, a lawyer of 395 Broadway. This suit is still pending, and Hummel still stands on the records as the lawyer for the plaintiff.

According to the affidavit of the plaintiff, the assault occurred on Jan. 3, 1902. She averred that she had been acquainted with Thaw for some time prior to that, that she met him on that day in answer to a letter, and that he took her to his apartments. These apartments were at 304 Fifth avenue. They were in the name of Wm. Bedford, Thaw's valet, who has since died. On the way there, Miss Thomas alleged, Thaw bought a whip, and when he got her in his room he beat her with this whip. She escaped from him and went immediately to a lawyer's office, exhibiting the marks made by the whip.

Two more women who can tell something about the principals in the Thaw-White tragedy were before Mr. Garvan yesterday. They were Rose Marston and Marion Stokes. Miss Marston is at present playing in an outdoor presentation of "As You Like It." She has only recently become an actress. Before that she was an artist's model. She met Evelyn Nesbit while the latter was posing and they became friends, both visiting the same studios.

Marion Stokes, who is also an actress, and was a friend of White, was questioned for some time by Mr. Garvan yesterday. Miss Stokes corroborated the story, that she had had an appointment to meet White the night he was killed. The appointment was for 11:30 o'clock. He was to meet her at the garden.

The eyes of the girl for whose sake murder has been done are hazel. They are large and long, and have that clear, liquid softness that only Murillo ever succeeded in painting. They are unusual eyes in that they have the length and shape of what we call oriental eyes, but they have none of the languor and stupidity of the average "eyes of the harem." Evelyn Thaw's eyes are bright and sparkling, alight—not with intelligence or thought (that pretty head is sadly lacking in these useful attributes), but with the fires of youth and merriment. Long lashes fringe these bright eyes, and exquisitely arched dark brows give character to the fair forehead, with the dark hair growing low around the piquant little face.

She has the full, voluptuous mouth of the unthinking pleasure lover — the mouth that temperamental artists give to sirens. It has the beauty of outline, but there is no firmness or strength in its amorous curves.

Edward Dunkhorst, more popularly known in Buffalo as the "Human Freight Car," says that last July while he was managing the Academy Cafe at Irving Place and Fourteenth street, in New York city, Stanford White offered him $250 if he would "do up" Harry Thaw. Dunkhorst was quite a prominent character in boxing circles at one time, and even now he attracts attention when he appears upon the street. He confesses to weighing 420 pounds on the hoof.

ALIMONY AND THE WOMAN

Chicago Judge Says She Always Deserves It.

Chicago, July 17. — After separating forty couples in three weeks through the application of law, Judge Willard McEwen, of the circuit court, sums up his impression of the divorce industry thus:

"The age of 20 is a pivotal time in married life. The age of 40 is another time when divorces are likely. In the 40 divorce cases heard but two were church marriages. Conclusion: Church weddings produce but 5 per cent of the divorces. Twenty women, or but 50 per cent, were church members. But 8 men out of the 40 principals in the divorce court, or but 20 per cent were church attendants. Conclusion: Eighty per cent of the men church members keep out of divorce courts. The majority of principals were in the neighborhood of 20 or 40 years of age.

"There should be a law enacted to prevent the marriage of a woman twice divorced or a man twice divorced. Persons twice divorced have manifested their unfitness for matrimonial experience. Two failures should count them out. There should be most stringent laws to prevent the remarriage of persons afflicted with certain ailments.

"Lack of companionship is by far the greatest cause of divorce. Alimony should be granted the wife, whether guilty or guiltless, in practically every case. A woman who has lived with a man a number of years is entitled to a pension. In all cases the man should be made to support his children."

DEATH OF MARGARET KILROY.

Windsor, July 17.—Miss Margaret Claire Kilroy is dead at her home here. She was a sister of Joseph Kilroy, of Windsor, Her other brother, Rev. Dr. Kilroy, died at Stratford about two years ago. Miss Kilroy was prominently identified with work in connection with St. Alphonsus Church, was known far and wide for her benevolence, and was one of the organizers of the Essex County Historical Society.

GIRLS SEEK JOB TRAINING LIONESS

Advertisement Results in 108 Applicants for Position at Dreamland.

New York, July 17.—Wanted—A brave young woman of attractive personality and physique, to present a trained lion; salary to begin $100 per week; former experience unnecessary. Inquire Bostock's Arena, Dreamland, Coney Island, Saturday, 11 o'clock a.m.

"Oh, my! Is it a real lion?" asked one pale-faced young woman out of several hundred who applied in answer to the above advertisement, which appeared in Friday's World. Yesterday there was a crowd of lovely femininity at Coney Island, each young woman determined to get the position, if possible. The lioness was the famous beast Sultana, who has killed one or two keepers in her early years. The Countess "X," who used to train her, has gone to Europe.

Out of the crowd of applicants as trainers 108 had never before worked at any paid salary, 38 were actresses, 10 were female detectives, 8 were stenographers and 3 were newspaper women. One young woman said that she had hunted lions in the Transvaal with her father and brother, and that she was not afraid of anything in the world.

Many of the girls thought the advertisement was some sort of a joke and backed out entirely when they found that they were wanted to tame a real, live lion, with teeth.

"Have you permission of your nearest relative or legal guardian to undertake the work? Are you afraid of animals? Are you willing to go into the lion cage alone?" were some of the questions.

Miss Elizabeth Wheeler, of No. 100 East Fifty-fourth street, said that she thought the lion was toothless and that it was kept under the influence of drugs, but when she found the contrary was the fact she did not flinch. Miss Lillie Olson, of No. 39 West Twenty-fifth street, said she had hunted lions in Africa. Miss Fannie Douglass, of No. 1931 Madison avenue, thought that if she was doomed to die by a lion's teeth she would die that way, and if not she would not. So she did not fear to try it.

Mrs. Annie Belasco, of No. 2 West Ninety-eighth street, said she wanted the place in order to keep her two children in school. She was a trained nurse and thought that a lion could not be worse than some patients. When Miss Minnie Churchill, of No. 129 West Ninetieth street, was questioned as to her experience with animals she said she had some white mice and rabbits.

Mr. Bostock set next Thursday morning at 10 o'clock as the date of the courage test, when each woman will have to go into the lion cage alone, and the one exhibiting the least fear will get the position as trainer.

THE RESOURCES OF B. C.

The Provincial Assayer to Make a Careful Investigation.

Victoria, July 16.—Provincial Assayer Carmichael has been instructed to devote a large portion of the present season to the examination of our building material resources. It is the first time that fire clay deposits have been the subject of an extended official report, and his conclusions will be awaited with great interest. He will examine all known deposits in the Province, take samples from each, and give, when the report is published, a complete chemical analysis of contents.

This city is also deeply interested in the news that an extended examination will be made of the west coast of Vancouver Island. A complete report will be made on mineral prospects and the progress of mining. This will supplement the report of the various mining recorders and give expert opinion on the occurrence of different minerals, and the chances for the continuity of the deposits.

Mr. Carmichael will also take a trip to Kamloops and investigate the deposits of gypsum reported to be in existence in Highland River Valley.

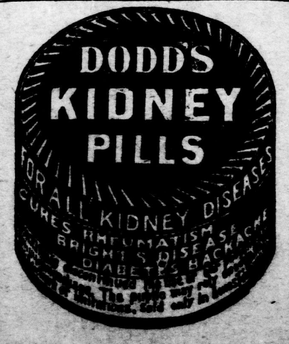
POET BUILDING HIS OWN TOMB.

Nearing his 80th year, Frederic Mistral, the Provencal poet, is still young in mind, happily far removed yet from the sixth age of Shakespeare. Nevertheless he is preparing his tomb.

It will be put up in the cemetery at Maillane near his house. It is to be a copy of the well known "Pavillon de la Reine Jeanne" at Baux. The care taken by the Provencal poet to make it beautiful will be remembered for generations among the neighboring peasantry.

"It is, after all, the tomb that is the house we live longest in; we must have it beautiful," Mistral said the other day when somebody twitted him about his hobby. And he does the work himself with no mean skill, refusing all aid.—London Evening Standard.

"Those who have had time to read the evidence will be struck with the almost complete unanimity of the medical witnesses on the harmful effects produced by boric acid and its compounds," says Nature. "To the unprejudiced observer Dr. Wiley's report settled the matter once and for all."



A TRULY IDEAL WIFE

HER HUSBAND'S BEST HELPER

Vigorous Health is the Great Source of Power to Inspire and Encourage—All Women Should Seek It.

One of the most noted, successful and richest men of this century, in a recent article, has said, "Whatever I am and whatever success I have attained in this world I owe all to my wife. From the day I first knew her she has been an inspiration, and the greatest helpmate of my life."

Mrs. Bessie Ainsley

To be such a successful wife, to retain the love and admiration of her husband, to inspire him to make the most of himself, should be a woman's constant study.

If a woman finds that her energies are flagging, that she gets easily tired, dark shadows appear under her eyes, she has backache, headaches, bearing-down pains, nervousness, irregularities or the blues, she should start at once to build up her system by a tonic with specific powers, such as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Following we publish by request a letter from a young wife:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:

"Ever since my child was born I have suffered, as I hope few women ever have, with inflammation, female weakness, bearing-down pains, backache and wretched headaches. It affected my stomach so I could not enjoy my meals, and half my time was spent in bed.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me a well woman, and I feel so grateful that I am glad to write and tell you of my marvelous recovery. It brought me health, new life and vitality."—Mrs. Bessie Ainsley, 611 South 10th Street, Tacoma, Wash.

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Ainsley it will do for every sick and ailing woman.

If you have symptoms you don't understand write to Mrs. Pinkham, daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free and always helpful.
