way was all-powerful in the legislature and

ing interests. The prices of nearly everything raised by our farmers have thus far been good, and will doubtless continue so, while the yield in general is equal to or above the average. It has been several years since potatoes were in such demand at so satisfactory prices this early in the season. While this is partly owing to the short crop elsewhere, doubtless the improved trade relations we now enjoy with the Spanish West Indies have also had much to do in bringing it about, as our potatoes are now admitted into those islands on as favorable terms as those from the United States, which was not the case while the reciprocity treaties negotiated by Mr. Blaine were in operation. The same is true of our fish.

The paple crop has proved much better than was expected a few weeks ago, and buyers are already offering two dollars persons in the grown and they were are already offering two dollars persons in the grown and they were in the grown and they are already offering two dollars persons in the grown and they are strained to the grown and they return the grown and they return the grown and they return the grown and they are strained to the grown and they are the grown and the grown and the grown and the substitute of the grown and the emblem of the correct that the grown and the strained to the grown and the strained to the grown and the strained to the grown and the grown ever, point to even better prices than that for our best varieties.

The plum yield has simply astonished everybody this year, beating the record by long odds. This has had the effect of bringing prices down with a jump. A few years ago one dollar per peck, or even higher, was the ordinary price of plums. Last week they were selling at about one-fourth of that. This reduction is mainly owing to the increase in acreage of our plum orchards. Of late years our fruit growers have seemed to entertain the idea that there was "mill-linesie it" in raising plums, and a great to entertain the idea that there was "millions in it " in raising plums, and a great lions in it "in raising plums, and a great many of them went into plum culture quite extensively. As this is a fruit which will not admit of being shipped to the English market, with presentshipping facilities, there seems every probability that the thing has been over done. A factory or two, however, at different parts of the valley, where plums can be preserved or canned would readily solve this difficulty, and even though they brought no more than a dollar a bushel, it would still pay well to raise them at that. Perhaps some of our leading fruit growers

About 10.30 a. m., teams from all parts of the country began to arrive, and soon an immense crowd were testing the unlimited supply of viands and delicacies set before them on the tables spread beneath an awning of canvas and green birches. The rapidity with which the good things disappeared fully attested to their merits, and the renown of the good cooking of the Port George ladies was more than sustained. The tables were all arranged to a degree of nicety for the comfort and convenience of all, and their arrangement well merited the praise which they received. Perhaps the table most worthy of notice was the meat table set and furnished by Mrs. A. Elliott and superintended by her daughter, Bessie. The sum realized was $212.50.

The tables were bountifully laden with subcoming from a tong discussed laden with sub-stantial and dainty eatables and presented an attractive appearance. The well-filled table of useful and fancy articles and the fishpond attracted a large patronage, as did also the refreshment table, where ice-cream, cake and fruit were to be had in abundance. The very satisfactory som of $111.55 was realized by the proceeds from the tea and fancy sale, which was supplemented by a generous gift from T. D. Ruggles, Esq., making the hand-some sum total of $136.55.

A Valuable Gift. The members of the Baptist church and congregation, Granville Centre, were agreeably surprised, Sunday afternoon last, when their pastor, Rev. F. M. Young, announced that the pulpit furniture for the new church would be his gift. They desire thus publicly to express their appreciation of their pastor's kindness.

while the government of Sir William White-way was all-powerful in the legislature and country. To-day the opposition holds power and every prominent member of Sir William's party has been unseated and disqualified, being politically dead, till the end of the present term of the legislature. Where was ever such a game of politics seen played before in a country enjoying representative institutions and responsible government?

The cause of it all is of course well known—the lavishly extravagant and corupt expenditure of road soney just previous to the last general election, made for the sole purpose of influencing the elections. It is not very often that political dishonesty of that sort meets with such swift and effectual punishment. There are public men outside of Newfoundland, not all of them on one side of politics either, who might well take to heart the lesson which the experience of Sir William Whiteway and his associates teaches.

The Haward Services held in St. James market, with presentabipping facilities, there seems every probability that the thing has been over done. Cranherrics are reported largely a failure in the United States, with prices ruling up as high as eight dollars a barrel by the car load. We do not know to what extent the recent frosts have injured the crop in this province, but those who are fortunate enough to have any, are likely to realize good results from them.

Altogether, therefore, as we have already stated, the year gives every promise of being a good one for our farmers.
