Breaking Up of The Empire Is Not Feared

Sir Robert Borden in Inspiring Address in New York, Says Integrity of Empire Assured.

New York, Nov. 3—Refuting the contentions of those who maintain that the attainment by the dominions of the status and influence of self-governing nations tends towards the disintegration of the British Empire, Sir Robert Borden, Canadian delegate to the conference on the limitation of armament at Washington at a luncheon given in his honor by the Lawyers' Club here today, declared that on the contrary this development assured the integrity and security of the British commonwealth.

Voice of the Dominions

"The voice of that commonwealth in world affairs must not be the voice of the United Kingdom alone, but the voice of all the British self-governing nations," he said.

Dealing briefly with the approaching conference, Sir Robert said, it was "the same high ideal which had prompted the organization of the League of Nations, which had inspired the United States president to convene the meeting of nations in Washington.

"His action has been welcomed throughout the world," he said, "and the nations join their prayers for the fulfillment of his endeavor."

EXPLANATIONS GIVEN OF THE RYAN CHARGES

The inquiry under oath being held by the city council into charges preferred by John P. Ryan in regard to work being done by the Canada Lock-Joint Pipe Company, was continued last evening in the committee room at City Hall. Commissioner Jones presided, and other present included Mayor Schofield, Commissioners Bullock, Thornton and Frink, J. P. Ryan, D. Mullin, K.C., representing Mr. Ryan; E. C. Weyman, representing the company; W .H. Harrison, acting city solicitor; W. G. Chace, of Toronto, president of the company, and C. J. Bruce, local manager, and G. G. Hare, city engineer. F. P. Vaughan, C. C. Ashby, George Waring and James Gilchrist, of the local branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada, were present as spectators.

The question of the commission paid to E. J. Terry was first brought up and Mr. Mullin contended that as this matter was one of the charges it should be investigated. Mr. Jones said that what had passed between the company and some one outside the council had nothing to do with the matter. Mr. Mullin said that it had been charged that there was plain inference that Mr. Terry's influence with the mayor had influenced the award of the contract. Mr. Harrison read the previous testimony in which Mr. Ryan had said that he knew nothing of any graft and said that it was a matter between Mr. Terry and the company and was a private transaction. Mr. Bullock felt that the council was clear of any charge of graft, but the public did not know the situation, and it should be cleared up.

There was further discussion of the matter by several present, and Mr. Weyman said that there was no secret of money having been paid to Mr. Terry. He had been the company's representative for years in the maritime provinces and had kept it in touch with proposed works, gave it details of jobs, etc. The company had agents in all parts of the country and the money had been paid for services rendered. The company had tendered on the specifications and its tender had been the lowest. There had been absolutely no graft. It had been a straight business transaction.

Mr. Mullin argued the matter ought to be gone into. Mr. Jones said the council had nothing to conceal and he could go ahead. Mr. Mullin then asked Mr. Ryan if he knew anything further in regard to the Terry matter, and Mr. Ryan replied that he did not.

The Clay Used.

Charles Kingston, seventeen years old, was next sworn. He had been employed by the company from July, 1921, until about a month ago. His job had been mixing the mud and dumping it into the mixture. By mud he meant clay. He did not know the proportions of the mixture. He put a pail of mud in each batch. He took his orders from Mr. Allen. It was a kind of clay brought to the job in teams. The mud was put in a machine and ground down. It was like clay and in lumps when it arrived. The mud was a necessary part of the mixture for the pipe, so far as he knew. The amount of mud was gradually cut down to three-quarters and then half a pail.

Percy Warmington was the next witness. He went on the job in March, 1921, when pipe was first laid, and still was with the company. He was foreman of the pipe laying gang. He told of his duties. He had nothing to do with the making of the pipe. He said that there was a certain amount of clay supposed to go into the pipe to make the concrete more dense. It was a good class of brick clay. The gravel used was beach gravel, crushed, sometimes twice, and put through a revolving screen. All material went through the screen.

Only Twelve Leaks.

Mr. Harrison said that it had been charged that there had been twenty-one leaks up to Oct. 15 and it had taken fifty bags of cement to repair each leak. The witness said that there were twelve leaks and it was not correct that there were twenty-one leaks. The leaks were not at all serious. He knew the specifications allowed a certain amount of leakage. The leaks were not so serious that the pipe should not have been passed. The leaks would not hurt the pipe but make it better, as collars of cement to fix the leaks would make the pipe thicker. He explained how the repairs were made, which made the pipe from six to fifteen inches thicker. All twelve leaks had been repaired. The final test was yet to be made but tests made so far showed the pipe to be up to specifications. He would say the concrete in the pipe was good. Leaks might be caused by handling the pipe and causing invisible cracks. There had been only one leak at a joint, caused by a cracked ring. The repairs had meant no extra cost to the city.

In reply to the mayor, Mr. Warmington said that he knew of clay being used in making cisterns and other jobs to make them watertight. By using the clay the company would not save on the cement.

To Mr. Frink, he said that various sections of pipe were tested by water pressure before being laid.

At this stage Mr. Bullock read a section of the specifications showing that the engineer might vary the lines, grades, materials and modes on the job. The question was, did the engineer know that clay was being used.

To Mr. Harrison, he said that he saw Mr. Hare on the job quite frequently. At least once a week or more often. Mr. Hare had seen the tests made.

Mr. Jones said that two witnesses had been summoned but had not appeared. If Mr. Ryan wished them present he would adjourn until they could be produced. Mr. Mullin replied that Mr. Ryan would like to have Harry Smith and Thomas Sharkey present. Mr. Ryan said that Sharkey had told him he had seen broken pipe being laid.

GRAPE SEED OIL NEW FOOD

U. S. Government Chemist Reports That By-Product Can Be Utilized.

New uses for the seeds of the grapes used in the manufacture of grape juice have been found. They may be employed profitably as a source of an oil which can be utilized as a food and as a dressing for salads. This announcement is made by Frank Rabak of the Bureau of Plant Industry of the Department of Agriculture, in a bulletin of the American Chemical Society.

"In the grape juice industry of the United States," says Mr. Rabak, "there result annually as a by-product approximately 1,100 tons of grape seeds. These seeds are at the present time wasted, probably because of lack of knowledge of the proper methods of converting them into products of value.

"The utilization of these seeds largely for the oil they contain has long been under consideration in foreign countries where the seeds result as by-products of the wine industry. The principal variety of grapes grown for manufactures in the United States is the commonly known Concord. The seeds from these grapes have been found to contain varying quantities of oil, the variation being probably related to conidtions of ripeness. The average yield of oil from the clean, dry seeds is about 13 per cent."

Domestic grape seed oil as obtained from the Concord grape possesses some properties comparable with oils of foreign origin. The differences noted may be ascribed to conditions of growth, climate, soil, variety and methods of extraction. It is highly probable that oils from domestic grapes of a single variety would exhibit slight differences in their properties due to seasonal variations, says the bulletin.

The expert says that the oil obtained from the seeds by pressure, after being bleached and refined, is of a pale straw color and a bland, sweetish, nut-like taste and practically odorless. On account of the ease of refining grape seed oil, the chemist thinks that it should find its most important commercial use at the table just as the oil of the olive is employed.

CATARRH Of the Stomach For Eight Years

The cause of this trouble is the fermentation of food in the stomach which generates a gas that is very frequently belched up. There is also a rumbling of the bowels and a discharge of gas therefrom, there is constant retching, and the meals are frequently vomited. There is a burning pain in the stomach, the appetite is fickle, the tongue coated, the breath bad, constipation is generally present and the sufferer becomes weak, nervous depressed and exceedingly miserable.

The blame lies with a sluggish liver, as it holds back the bile which is so necessary to promote the movement of the bowels, and when the bile gets into the blood a badly disordered condition of the stomach, liver and bowels will surely follow.

Keep your liver active and you will always enjoy good health.

Mrs. Agnes Gallant, Reserve Mines, N. S., writes: "I had been a great sufferer for eight years from catarrh of the stomach. I tried several, so-called, catarrh remedies without relief until a friend advised me to try Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, which I did, and four vials completely relieved me. That was six years ago, and I have had no return of my old trouble."

CLINGS TWO DAYS TO CLIFF; ATTACKING BIRDS SAVE LIFE

Nice, Nov. 4. — Swept by a heavy wave against a cliff while bathing, Lowell Marston, a Canadian tourist, clung two days to the rocks. He was badly hurt about the head by the birds, but will recover.

DON'T NEGLECT BRONCHITIS

The principal symptom of bronchitis is a cough which is dry, harsh and hacking, accompanied with rapid wheezing, and a feeling of tightness through the chest.

There is a raising of phlegm, especially in the morning after rising from bed. This Phlegm is at first of a light color, but as the trouble progresses it becomes of a yellowish or greenish color and is sometimes streaked with blood.

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP

you will find a remedy that will stimulate the weakened bronchial organs, subdue the inflammation, soothe the irritated parts, loosen the phlegm and mucous, and help nature to easily dislodge the morbid accumulation.

Mr. John H. Root, 40 Maple Ave., Hamilton, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with bronchitis and had a very bad cough. I had it so long I was beginning to get afraid of other developments. I tried all kinds of cough remedies without relief. I was advised by a friend to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, so I got a bottle, and it convinced me to believe that I had at last gotten the right medicine. I used several bottles and am practically well. I have recommended it to others since, and good results followed."

FUR FARMING IS DEVELOPING

Growth of Industry Makes Good Losses Due to Civilization— Spreading Westward.

Ottawa, Nov. 4. — No matter what happens to the incalculable resources of Canada in wild fur-bearing animals, late statistics of the Dominion Bureau indicate that the losses in this resource caused by the spread of modern civilization over the wilds will be more than made up by farms on which the fur-farming industry will be diligently developed. In 1920 there were 587 fur farms in Canada, including 578 fox farms, six mink, two raccoon farms and one karakule sheep farm. The animals on these farms were valued at $4,722,905, the greater part of this value being made up of 13,694 silver foxes, valued at $4,536,417. The value of animals sold from these farms in 1920 totaled $763,321, and the pelts sold brought an additional $388,335.

The selling value of live silver foxes ranged from $100 to $1,100, and of the pelts from $75 to $750.

The industry is creeping westward. Prince Edward Island, where the industry began, is still in the lead with 809 farms, on which the animals are valued at more than three million dollars. But the industry is now all over Canada, the number of fur farms by provinces being: Nova Scotia, fifty-five; New Brunswick, fifty-seven; Quebec, eighty; Ontario, forty-two; Manitoba and Saskatchewan, four; Alberta, fifteen; British Columbia, eleven; Yukon territory, fourteen.

Most of these farms are fox fur farms, but 218 mink were born in Nova Scotia, Ontario and Quebec farms, thirteen raccoons on Ontario and Quebec farms, thirty-one skunks on Ontario farms, and 400 karakule lambs in Alberta.

BRITISH COMPLAIN TO UNITED STATES

(Canadian Press Despatch).

London, Nov. 3—Alleged hardships suffered by British subjects at Ellis Island, New York, came up for brief consideration in the house of commons today, Cecil Harmsworth, under-secretary of foreign affairs, was asked whether representations had been made to Washington on this score. He replied that, judging by the distressing accounts received of the treatment of British subjects at Ellis Island and the conditions under which they were compelled to live, the strongest complaints would be justified.

"Repeated representations made to the United States government," declared the under-secretary, "have, I regret to say, had no tangible result, but further negotiations are proceeding at the present moment, which I hope may lead to some permanent improvement."

But you can soon enrich thin blood, overcome the anaemic condition and build up the whole system by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Mrs. F. G. Simmons, 42 Curtis St., Brantford, Ont., writes:

"For about eight years I suffered from anaemia. My circulation was poor, my gums and lips were pale, and my hands and feet were always cold. I was nervous and unable to sleep well. I had frequent headaches, seemed restless and easily worried or irritated. There was a buzzing sound in my ears. Indigestion was also one of my complaints, and I often was attacked by weak spells. I went to a doctor, who told me I was anaemic, but as I did not get any better I decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and after the first box I felt brighter and my headaches completely disappeared. I continued using the Nerve Food for quite a while. I am quite well now, and cheerfully and gratefully recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to people suffering as I did before I used this splendid medicine."

Budapest, Nov. 3—When Count Stafan Bethlen, the premier, introduced the bill in the National Assembly today calling for the dethroning of former King Charles and the ousting of the Hapsburg dynasty from Hungary, there were cheers for Charles by the legitimists. The bill protests against the interference of foreign powers in Hungary, provides for the removal of the Hapsburgs from power and calls for the postponement for an indefinite period of selecting a new king of Hungary.

Eight days of mourning for Hungary because of the country's humiliation through the recent escapade of Charles have been ordered by the minister of the interior. All theatres and other places of amusement are closed.
