CITY CORNET BAND GIVES OUT FINANCIAL STATEMENT OF THE BAND STAND ON KING SQUARE

President James Connelly, of the City Cornet Band, has issued a statement concerning the finances of the band stand erected last year over the fountain in King Square. It is shown that there are pupaid subscriptions amounting to over $200 which will be called for. There are also a large number of persons who promised to subscribe.

An effort will be made to collect all the money required to pay the balance of the bills, so that the stand may be presented to the city not later than the first of July. The reason the collecting of subscriptions was held over was due to the delay of commencing and finishing the stand. Owing to the relay, the first concert did not take place until August 8th, 1908. During the year there were 18 concerts given—the last concert was held on King Edward's birthday, November 9th.

Concerts Enjoyed.

Last year the concerts proved a great success, and the thousands who attended them were apparently well pleased. It was very gratifying to the members of the band that no damage was done to the flower beds on the Square, and that the large audiences conducted themselves so orderly. It is hoped the same good order will prevail during 1909.

The band wishes to publicly thank the members of the Artillery and Carleton bands for their kindness on several occasions in assisting them with the concerts last summer.

First Concert May 18.

The first concert this year will be given on Tuesday evening, May 18th, Loyalist Day, and the band will arrange for concerts weekly thereafter.

Mr. Winchester, inspector of streets, and the band, will arrange for a number of temporary settees to be placed about the Square on concert nights for the particular use of ladies and children. These seats will be removed the following morning, and will be in addition to those already in the Square.

The band wish to thank the different parties to whom they have been unable to pay the bills as promptly as we would have desired, for the patience shown and mention particularly Mr. Charles McDonald, manager of the St. John Iron Works.

ST. ANDREW'S PRESBYTERIAN CELEBRATES 125th ANNIVERSARY; ELOQUENT SERMON YESTERDAY

The 125th anniversary of St. Andrew's church was celebrated yesterday. Rev. Dr. Johnston, of the American Presbyterian church, Montreal, preached at the morning and evening services and at a mass meeting for men at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Rev. J. W. Stackhouse and Mr. R. W. Allin also addressed the afternoon meeting. Special music was effectively rendered yesterday, among the soloists being Mrs. W. J. Henning and Mrs. W. A. Harrison. The Pythian male quartette composed of Messrs. C. Young, George Brown, Ken. Bonnell and Edwin Bonnell, sang splendidly at the afternoon meeting. Prof. D. Arnold Fox was the organist during the service.

Rev. Dr. Johnston's church is said to be the strongest church of any Protestant denomination in Canada. In its work for home missions it provides partial support for twenty missionaries in the northwest and has a staff of nine missionaries in foreign fields. Rev. Dr. Johnston is a Canadian well known throughout the Presbyterian Church of Canada and farfamed for his eloquence. Formerly his ministry was in London, Ont. About fourteen years ago he attended a General Assembly, which met in St. John, and was Assembly preacher on that occasion.

History of the Church.

The history of St. Andrew's church is an interesting one. Much difficulty had to be confronted with in erection. The following is a brief account of its history:

Among the Loyalists who arrived in St. John in the spring of 1783 was Rev. D. E. Burns, the first pastor of St. Andrew's church. Many other Scottish and American Presbyterians also came in that year. Zealous in their religious duties they longed to build a church and enjoy unmolested the solemnities of a Scottish Sabbath. In the fall of the year of their landing, they made a noble start. A large number of them assembled in open air and held their first service here. At this meeting they resolved to petition the Governor-in-Council for a grant of land. Their appeal was successful and in June of the year 1784, they were granted ten lots of land on the north side of Queen street, which lots are still owned by St. Andrew's church. The erection of a church was the next thing to be considered. Their appeal for aid from the Government and the mother church in Scotland was unfortunately fruitless. During the early part of 1790, the Rev. James Fraser, of Scotland, for some time administered to the Presbyterians in a small building erected on the lot on which the McMillan homestead now stands, and he was succeeded by the Rev. Charles Milton. He was prohibited from marrying, even refused the right to visit prisoners in the cell. After several years of faithful services he removed to Newburyport, in the United States.

In 1815 a church on the site of the present structure was completed, and the opening services were conducted by Rev. James Waddell, then of Truro, N. S. In 1817 Rev. George Burns arrived here from Scotland to be the pastor. Dr. Burns resigned his position as pastor in 1831 and returned to Scotland, where he died at the ripe old age of 87.

In the same year Rev. Robert Wilson, from the mother church in Scotland, came out, and faithfully discharged his duties as pastor of St. Andrew's church until 1842, when he returned to Scotland. Rev. Andrew Halket succeeded Rev. Dr. Wilson as pastor and he resigned in 1846, and also returned to Scotland.

The next pastor of St. Andrew's church was Rev. William Donald, D. D.. Failing health forced him to resign in 1871.

On the 23rd of May, 1867 an organ was placed in St. Andrew's church.

Dr. Donald was succeeded by the Rev. Robert J. Cameron. He resigned in 1876 and returned to Scotland.

In 1875 the happy union of all the Presbyterian congregations in Canada was consumated, and St. Andrew's Church entered loyally and enthusiastically into the union.

Rev. William Mitchell, then of Montreal was the next pastor. In 1882, he resigned and removed to the United States.

The disastrous fire of 1877 destroyed the old Kirk, but it was rebuilt in 1878, services in the meantime being held in what is now known as "Keith's Theatre."

Rev. Thos. G. Smith, D. D. became pastor in 1883 and resigned in 1866. Rev. L. G. Macneill, M. A., was called to the pastorate in 1886, and continued his duties as pastor, until 1904, when failing health forced him to resign.

On the 31st of May, 1904, the Rev. David Lang, M. A., B. D., was called to the pastorate charge of St. Andrew's church, and still continues in discharge his duties as pastor.

The Sermons Yesterday

Yesterday morning Dr. Johnston spoke in part as follows, on the subject "The Far Look," his text being, "As seeing Him, who is invisible:" Thirty years ago statesmen of these provinces, and of other provinces of Canada saw the vision of a transcontinental road, binding the provinces together, from ocean to ocean. Men, then, called them dreamers; history has proved them prophets. Faith is vision. It is that quality of soul that enables one to behold things that are far off, to see the unseen. Physical short-sightedness subjects men not only to privation but to peril. The same is true in the spiritual world. The peril that particularly threatens the church today is materialism.

This is the absorbent of the soul in the things of this present life. The cure for it is in the cultivation for the far look.

Such condition of mind is due to the loss of the vision of God.

"Lift up your eyes" cries God to the church, "whatever the condition, I live the same forever."

Courage is found in serving God and being conscious of the fact that He is with us. The best of all is this says the dying man, "that God is with us," and this is the heart of the world.

Afternoon Meeting

There was a very large attendance at the afternoon meeting. Rev. Mr. Lang conducted devotional serivces and the meeting was presided over by Judge Forbes. R. W. Allin, representing the Episcopal Church, and Rev. W. T. Stackhouse made brief addresses. The last speaker was Rev. Dr. Johnston. His subject was: "The appeal of Christ to Manhood." Christ's appeal he said is an appeal for help and most efficient help. Today, as truly as in the days of His flesh He treads the way of the cross, and He calls for men to help Him win the kingdoms of the world.

Only as life is touched by Christ, can it become its best. No man can live his fullest life, and reach his highest attainment and live apart from Him. The work to which He summons us is to a work for sacrifice, for statesmanship, hor heroism. Every life however weak permeated with the divine touch of Jesus Christ, can become effective for splendid service.

Evening Service

Rev. Mr. Lang opened worship and Rev. Dr. Johnston preached a sermon which was listened to with great attention.

He spoke on Pilate's question, the question which, he said, was not only Pilate's but that every one present when he said, "What shall I do with Jesus, which is called Christ."

"The Vision of Canada," is the subject of an address to be given by Rev. Dr. Johnston, at 10.30 this morning. This meeting which is especially for the ministers is open to the public.

C. A. EVERETT PASSED AWAY YESTERDAY

2—Everett. etezsi larg shrd usdrhl a time when the British commercial laws forbade the export of machinery, Mr. Everett packed an outfit for shipment in hogsheads. He lost his plant by seizure, but ultimately succeeded in fitting up a factory with the most approved contrivances.

Throughout his long business career the late Mr. C. A. Everett also was distinguished for his commercial activity.

His Public Career.

As a public man the career of the deceased was long, varied and distinguished. In early life he represented Kings ward in the Common Council. He first sat as an alderman at the Council which assumed charge of the affairs of the city when it came out of the hands of a receiver and at this critical time was able to a great deal to restore the city's credit. He was at one time chief assessor of the city. At the time of the Union of Portland and St. John in 1889 Mr. Everett was appointed by St. John as one of the commissioners who arranged the terms of union. The other commissioners were Judge Wilson, of Fredericton appointed by the local Government and John Chesley appointed by the Town of Portland. He was a candidate for the mayoralty after the union but was defeated by the late George Barker, who died in office.

In 1876 the deceased was a candidate for the Provincial House of Assembly. He was defeated by Robert Marshall. In 1882, together with former Chief Justice Tuck he ran in the Conservative interest in St. John county for the House of Commons. The opposing ticket, Messrs. Weldon and Burpee, was victorious.

Elected in 1885.

In 1885 the death of Hon. Isaac Burpee made a vacancy in St. John County. Mr. Everett was again a candidate, Mr. Tuck having been appointed to the bench in the meantime. This time Mr. Everett was successful, defeating his opponent the late George McLeod.

In the general election of 1877 the late Mr. Everett and the present Judge McLeod were the Conservative ticket for St. John County. They were opposed by Messrs. Weldon and Skinner who were elected.

The deceased during his life held many important positions in public life besides those mentioned. For many years he was connected with the Relief and Aid Society formed for the purpose of relieving those whose property had been destroyed by the great fire of 1877, and on the death of Mr. James Reynolds, succeeded him as president of the organization.

He had charge of the New Brunswick census of 1861 and was one of the commissioners for the first Dominion census taken in 1871.

His Temperance Career.

Throughout his life the late Mr. Everett was prominent as a temperance worker. He was a charter member and must have been fully 60 years a member of Gurney Division, No. 5, Sons of Temperance. He was in the first Grand Division and held the highest offices in the National Division up to and including that of Most Worthy Patriarch of the Order in North America. He was probably the oldest Son of Temperance in America at the time of his death.

He was also connected with the Temple of Honor and Temperance and has been Most Worthy Vice Templar of the Order.

Mr. Everett served also as a member of the School Board being one of the first trustees appointed under the Free Schools Act. He was also a prominent member of the St. John Board of Trade and at different times was president and manager of the St. John Exhibition. In religion he was a Baptist and a member of the Leinster street church.

Brooklyn, May 15.—With a score of 5 to 1 against them, the Brooklyns succeeded today in tieing the score in the 8th only to lose to Pittsburg when Miller scored his third run with two out, on a pass and two hits by Wilson and Gibson. President Ebbetts of the Brooklyn club, protested the game on the ground that Umpire Klem violated rule 64 in allowing Miller to score from first on McIntyre's wild throw into the crowd. President Ebbetts claimed that the runner was entitled to only two bases under the ground rules, whereas Umpire Klem allowed him to take three. The score by innings:

WHAT OUTSIDE PRESS HAS SAID ABOUT SPEECH THAT SILENCED THE DEFENDERS OF MR. PUGSLEY

It Was Thorough.

(Halifax Herald.)

Mr. Crocket's speech cannot be satisfactorily reported in a telegraphic despatch. It was a thorough, complete and crushing reply to the audacious speech of the Minister. Supported by overwhelming proof, the member for York accused Mr. Pugsley of a deliberate falsehood. When he completed his indictment no Liberal rose to reply. Even Mr. Carvell, Mr. Pugsley's attorney, had got cold feet. It is true Mr. Turgeon (Lib.) made a brief speech, but he spoke as an Acadian who resented the Minister's unmerited abuse of Mr. Justice Landry.

A Masterly Argument.

(Toronto Mail and Empire.)

It was a masterly argument made by Mr. Crocket. It bristled with facts and figures and he read at length from official records and the sworn testimony of witnesses before the Commission. Mr. Pugsley's own testimony and his official statements at various times in the Legislature of New Brunswick were marshalled against him, and the charge was boldly made and apparently proved to the hilt that the Minister of Public Works had deliberately made statements which he knew to be untrue. It would have required a strong man to answer Mr. Crocket's speech. Indeed, it seemed unanswerable

Smashed It.

(Toronto News Ed., May 8.)

The Central Railway Commission had the facts, justified by sworn testimony, and it was perfectly useless for the Minister to attempt to controvert them by random statements reflecting on the character of the Commissioners. His speech was a lame and puerile attempt at wholesale denial and Mr. Crocket, who followed him, smashed it to pieces.

Knew the Facts.

(Montreal Star, Ed., May 7.)

Mr. Pugsley's strident demand to "quote the evidence" in the Central Railway affair was complied with by Mr. Crocket, of York, who seems to have made a comprehensive study of the case. By his speech he to a large extent remedied the weakness of the case of the Opposition, which hitherto had depended for ammunition upon the findings of the Commission. With characteristic cleverness Mr. Pugsley appears to have made his demand for "the evidence" with the idea in his mind that it was not easily come at by Parliament or the public. He unwittingly, therefore, heightened the effect of its quotation by Mr. Crocket.

Case Complete.

(Montreal Gazette, May 10, in its The Week at Ottawa review.)

Mr. O. S. Crocket, of York, N. B., one of the ablest young lawyers in the House, followed Mr. Pugsley, and taking up the findings, proved each one from the evidence. This completely upset Mr. Pugsley's argument that the report was not based on facts given by witnesses at the inquiry. By reading the evidence, Mr. Crocket sought to show and did show that the commissioners, so roundly berated by the Minister, would have been justified in a still stronger report. The opposition case was then complete. The report had been analyzed by Mr. Crothers; Mr. Pugsley's defence was on record, and the evidence on which the report was based put before the House by Mr. Crocket. It was declared all along by Government supporters that Mr. F. B. Carvell, who acted as counsel for Mr. Pugsley before the Commission, would follow Mr. Crocket, and this was plainly intimated by the Minister of Public Works during his speech when the latter finished. Mr. Turgeon, of Gloucester, who is not regarded as one of the prominent debaters of the Commons, was put up on the Government side. The only thing Mr. Turgeon did was to give a clean bill of health to Judge Landry, a fellow Acadian, who had been accused of possessing all the qualities of an assassin the previous day by Mr. Pugsley. When Mr. Turgeon sat down no one rose from the opposition side. No answer had been given to Mr. Crocket and as Mr. Carvell made no move the Speaker put the question, and the House divided.

Naturally Elated

(Ottawa Free Press, Lib., report)

The Conservatives were naturally hihgly elated at the result, and cheered vociferously, being especially demonstrative over Mr. Crocket * * * The vote of Mr. Crocket was the signal for prolonged opposition cheers.

A Terrible Battering

(Toronto Telegram, Ind.)

Crocket, of Fredericton, with the afternoon half over, finished a five-hour speech in which he administered to the Pugsley defence a terrible battering. His weapons were extracts from the books of evidence taken by the Landry Commission, evidence given by Pugsley and Pugsley's associates. * * * * The case which Crocket presented required an answer. No answer was forthcoming. Carvell had announced to the House his intention to speak, but when O. S. Crocket sat down Carvell didn't get up * * * Oswald S. Crocket, who sprang the trap, records his vote and the opposition applause threatens the stability of the marble columns. T. W. Crothers, who set the trap, records his vote, and again there is a joyful tumult from the Conservative side.

A Stirring Scene

(Montreal Gazette report)

Mr. Crocket, the member for York, who made the sole reply to Mr. Pugsley's four hour defence of yesterday, was surrounded and his hand nearly wrung off by the enthusiastic Conservatives, while Mr. Borden came in for an ovation. It is many a long day since such a stirring scene has been witnessed on the floors of Parliament. * * * There was a great surprise after Mr. Crocket's five hour speech, in which he drilled holes in the defence of Mr. Pugsley by merely using the ammunition provided by the evidence, the government, instead of putting up Mr. F. B. Carvell, who was one of the counsel in the work of the commissioners, and who had his brief all ready to hand, permitted Mr. Turgeon to take the floor. * * * Then came the vote. Messrs. Crothers and Crocket were greeted by a burst of cheers from the opposition, who also cheered F. B. Carvell, of Carleton, who since Mr. Pugsley so dramatically left the chamber at the close of his speech on Wednesday, has been acting the part of watchdog for the Minister of Public Works. * * *The opposition, almost delirious with joy, carried Mr. Crocket out of the chamber, and the corridors and Conservative headquarters were rapidly filled with groups of excited and cheering members.

Cheered Him Lustily

(Ottawa Journal, Ind.)

While the House was waiting for the division, the opposition gave Mr. Crocket several rounds of the loudest applause, and another round for Mr. Crothers.

Notice of Meetings

Don't forget the Young People's Society's closing meeting this evening at 8 o'clock in Centenary Church. A special programme has been prepared. All are invited.

IMPORTANT RESOLUTION IS PASSED

On the proposal of Mr. Borden the resolution was passed on the understanding that the corresponding clause in the act should stand till Monday to allow discussion by some members who were absent. The bill was then taken up in committee, and was put through with great speed.

Discussing clause 68, Mr. Perley thought that the power given the superintendent of revaluing assets or of ordering an audit of a company's affairs might be better left with the Minister, it being too large a power to rest in the superintendent.

Mr. Fielding said that the Minister would still remain responsible. The effect of the Insurance Commission was to show that the superintendent needed more power. The clause carried.

The Fifty Million Loan.

The bill was finished at about half past three and the House went into committee on the resolution authorizing a loan of fifty millions. Mr. Fielding stated that obligations were maturing for which funds are needed at this minute. The needs are: To meet the 1885 loan of £6,500,000, $30,874,000 plus sinking funds.

To meet the 4 per cent. loan of 1885 there may be needed $17,750,000.

Temporary loans are falling due which will need $11,277,330.

Total—$49,901,333.

Sinking funds will be provided.

Separate Dept. of Labor.

The Premier moved a second reading of the bill to establish a separate Department of Labor. He traced the history of the Department and stated that the only extra cost would be $7,300—$7,000 for the Minister and $300 part payment of his secretary's salary.

Mr. Borden agreed as to the importance of the labor problems but
