ROBBERY OF THE MAIL FOR ENGLAND!—A daring attempt was made on Saturday night last, to rob the Mail for England, which left this City that evening for Halifax. The Portmanteau containing the bags was fastened on behind the Coach, and in the dark, the fastenings were cut by the scoundrels, who thus had the whole Mail in their possession! The deed was committed about fifteen miles from this City, but the driver did not discover his loss until he had proceeded as far as Hampton Ferry, when he immediately returned, and found the Portmanteau lying open on the side of the road, and three of the bags cut and their contents lying beside them. Fortunately all the letters were recovered; the only package missing is that containing the post office accounts, which, it is thought, the robbers mistook for the letters containing money, as it was done up very carefully, with three large seals, and bound with tape. All the bags cut were from the Post Office in this City. It will be seen by advertisement, that a reward of £50 has been offered for the apprehension of the guilty parties, and we trust they will ere long be apprehended, as the most vigorous measures have been taken to ferrit them out.—New Brunswicker of this morning.

THE RAILWAY.—A Draft of the Bill of Incorporation of the New-Brunswick Railway has, we learn, been transmitted to England. It empowers the Company to extend their Line to any point on the Canada frontier which may be found advisable, in order to connect with a line from Quebec. We are also pleased to find that Charlotte County coincides most fully in the favourable opinion of the New-Brunswick Line, and will support it to the fullest extent, intending to make their own interest with the Company, when the Trunk Line is completed, for a Branch to St. Andrews, which we hope to see among the first taken in hand. Westmorland will support the Halifax & Quebec Railway, or any other Line which may be generally adopted. We think we shall claim their good offices in behalf of the New Brunswick Railway. Time will shew.—Courier.

THE SEASON.—The weather has been very variable during the week. We spoke last week of heavy rain having fallen—this was immediately succeeded by a cold snap, with wind from the N. and N. W. Considerable ice formed in the river. Thursday and Thursday night a strong breeze blew from the S. and S. W., and torrents of rain fell. Yesterday was fine with the wind from the N. W. Our river is now as clear of ice as at midsummer. All the vessels in port, we understand, are ready for sea.—Miramichi Gleaner, Nov. 29.

DIVINE PROVIDENCE OVER ENGLAND.—In the war of our time, the greatest since the fall of the Roman empire—the war of the French Revolution—I think that I can trace a divine protection, distinctly given to England as the champion of justice, honour, and religion. I offer but the outline of this view; but to me the proof is demonstrative.—In every instance in which France aimed an especial blow at England, that blow was retorted by an especial retribution; while her assaults on the continental kingdoms were made with triumphant impunity. I give the examples. The French expedition to Egypt was formed with the express object of breaking down the influence of England in the East, and ultimately subverting her Indian empire—that expedition was the first which tarnished the military renown of the Republic, cost her a fleet, and lost her an army. Of the army which Napoleon led to Egypt, not a battalion returned to Europe but as the prisoners of England! The French invasion of Spain was a blow aimed expressly at England. Its object was the invasion of England—the Spanish war broke down the military renown of the Empire, and was pronounced by Napoleon to be the origin of his ruin! The invasion of Russia was a blow aimed expressly at England. Its object was the extinction of English commerce in the whole sea-line of the north—that invasion was punished, by the ruin of the whole veteran army of France! Napoleon himself at length met the troops of England, He met them with an arrogant assumption of victory—"Ah! je les tiens, ces Anglais." Never was presumption more deeply punished. This single conflict destroyed him: his laurels, his diadem, and his dynasty, were blasted together!"—Blackwood.

PRESERVING POTATOES.—The three great points to be looked to in spring potatoes are these—1st, to keep them dry; 2nd, to keep them cool; and 3rd, to keep them well covered from the light and frost. All of these objects may be gained by the following method of storing them:—In the first place, the holes in which they are placed should be extremely shallow (if any holes are made at all), and the foundation of the bogs should not be more than 3 feet (3½ feet wide. On these potatoes should be placed in such quantities that there will not be more than from eight cwt. to half a ton in a running yard. To keep the potatoes dry, a small drain should be formed all round the pits or bogs, and the heaps should be well covered with sods and earth. To furnish them with a sufficient supply of fresh air, which is the only way to prevent their heating, a row of tiles should be placed under the potatoes, running from one end of the bog to the other; and, to render the ventilation still more complete, tiles should also be placed at right angles to this main ventilator, at the distance of from 1½ to 2 yards from each other; and chimneys of tiles rising from the bottom to the top of the bogs, should be formed at moderate distances, say every two yards. In frosty weather the openings may easily be closed with straw. Where tiles cannot be obtained, a very small drain in the, earth or a row of brushwood under the potatoes, or, in fact, any other contrivance by which such a supply of air as will prevent the heating of the mass, will
