BROKEN IN HEALTH.

THE INTERESTING STORY OF A LADY IN QU'APPELLE, N. W. T.

Suffered With Severe Headaches, Loss of Appetite and Fatigue on Slight Exertion—Insomnia Added Its Terrors to Her Trouble.

Mme. Vidette, Qu'Appelle, N. W. T.

Throughout this broad Dominion there are thousands of women, prematurely old and constant sufferers, either as a result of too constant application to household work, or from troubles incidental to the sex. To those suffering thus it is gratifying to know that there has at last been found a remedy that will restore them to health and strength, and bring health and happiness where before had been misery and suffering. Many of our readers who know Mrs. Cargo only as an energetic and capable boarding house keeper, may not know that about a year and a half ago she was a confirmed sufferer, feeling but little hope of her recovery to health. Although not confined to bed she dragged on a wretched existence from day to day. Added to her other sufferings was that terrible one, known to some in a mild form, but to few, as to Mrs. Cargo—insomnia. This with her other troubles, headache, and a feeling of fatigue on slight exertion was rapidly breaking her down. Many medicines were tried but none reached the seat of the trouble and Mrs. Cargo felt like giving up in despair. At last, however, she was induced to try a medicine that is exciting much favorable comment the world over—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Mrs. Cargo admits that after the numerous disappointments she had experienced she had but little faith left in any medicine, but before taking the Pink Pills long she found her appetite, which had long been very poor, returning, and this gave her the first ray of hope she had had. Her husband began to notice the improvement in her condition and another supply of Pink Pills was procured, which were carefully and faithfully taken according to directions. The improvement was so marked that she continued the treatment from January till March, at the end of which time she had gained thirty-seven pounds in weight, and was fully restored to health and has had no return of the trouble since.

Mrs. Cargo says she cannot speak in terms too strong in favor of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and would like us to make known to other poor sufferers the benefit she has derived from the use of this great restoring medicine.

An impoverished condition of the blood or a disordered state of the nerves is the fruitful source of most ills that affect mankind, and to any thus affected Dr. Williams' Pink Pills accomplish all that is claimed for them. They cure locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' Dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, palpitation of the heart, nervous prostration, diseases depending upon vitiated condition of the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, curing all forms of weakness. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork, or excesses of any nature.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold only in boxes bearing the firm's trade mark. They are never sold in bulk, and any dealer who offers substitutes in this form should be avoided. These pills are manufactured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., and Schenectady, N. Y., and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail at either address, at 50 cents or six boxes for $2.50.

TWO FARMERS' QUEER TRADE.

"You Gimme Yer Cow, and I'll Giv Yer My Wife."

Stroudsburg, Nov. 7.—Philip B. Miller, a mountain farmer a few miles from here, has for a neighbor a man named Harvey Surgen. A few months ago Surgen was the possessor of a wife, while Miller was a bachelor. Miller owned a cow noted for her gentleness and the abundance and quality of her milk. Farmer Surgen had no cow. To possess one was the ambition of his life. The two neighbors were friends and exchanged visits. During one of Farmer Miller's visits he caught a smile from Mrs. Surgen. Women are scarce in that section and Miller envied his neighbor the possession of such a wife, as much as the neighbor envied him for his cow. One evening Miller told Surgen that he loved Mrs. Surgen and asked the husband to name his price for her.

"Gimme yer cow and I'll give yer my wife," said Surgen, promptly.

The bargain was made then and there. Mrs. Surgen packed up her belongings while her husband went over for the cow. All went well for a few months, but now Farmer Miller is in a peck of trouble over his wife. In the past few weeks everal mysterious fires have occurred in the vicinity, and last Thursday the school house was fired. Investigation proved, it is said, that Mrs. Miller poured kerosene oil on the books and papers and applied a match to them. So a constable arrested her. She denied all knowledge of the fire, but her little son confirmed the public suspicion. It is said she was provoked by jealousy of the teacher in the school.

MARLBOROUGH MADE FUN OF.

By the English Papers, but He Has Captured a Prize.

London, Nov. 7.—The Standard says that the marriage of the Duke of Marlborough to Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt was celebrated on all the duke's estates and the bells were rung in all the churches where he had property and the employes were given a holiday and dinner.

The newspapers here eagerly printed the reports from New York of the preparations for the wedding, but the Sun, referring to the so-called rehearsal of the ceremony, says: "The rehearsal was essentially American and vulgar. No clergyman would permit it."

The Westminster Gazette this afternoon prints a cartoon headed: "The Duke's Return from the Land of Dollars." The cartoon represents the Duke of Marlborough reclining in the stern of a pleasure boat, with his bride seated on the top of a pile of dollars.

New York, Nov. 7.—All the parties directly interested in the marriage settlement of Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt met at the residence of Mrs. Vanderbilt today. Blenheim deeds, which date from the reign of Queen Anne, were handed to Mr. Vanderbilt's lawyer to be copied, and a memorandum of the bride's settlement was read and commented upon. All information on the subject of the settlement was refused, and it is said around the hotel corridors that the yearly income Vanderbilt has settled upon his daughter exceeds $250,000.

A CLERGYMAN SENTENCED.

For the Murder of His Wife—He Protests His Innocence.

Danville, Ind., Nov. 7.—Rev. William E. Hinshaw, convicted of wife murder, was brought into court to-day to be sentenced. Judge Hadley asked whether he had anything to say before sentence was pronounced, and the convicted preacher replied in a long speech, in which he declared himself innocent. Although the jury had found him guilty, he said, he cherished no resentment against them or any man. In conclusion he said:

"I desire it to go upon the records of this court, with my hands upon its sacred shrine, my face uplifted to heaven, that the verdict is false; I am not guilty. Before I go to my living burial I wish to thank the court for his kindness at all times. I commend you to God, and will meet you at the judgment bar where I will have another trial, and pass to happiness. I go to my living burial, and as I go I salute you. I am now ready for what may come."

Judge Hadley then pronounced sentence, and Hinshaw was taken back to jail. Hinshaw's voice trembled as he spoke, and it seemed at times as if he would break down. The women in the audience cried, their sobs being the only sounds that broke the silence when he spoke.

EUGENE FIELD IS DEAD.

America Has Lost a Wholesouled Citizen and a Promising Man of Letters.

Cut Off When the World Had Begun to Appreciate His Abilities.

Chicago, Nov. 6.—Eugene Field, poet, died of heart failure about five o'clock this morning. He retired last night in his usual health, and apparently slept soundly until daybreak, when his son, who occupied the room with him, heard him groan. It was his expiring gasp. Field leaves a widow and five children. He had been indisposed for several days, but no serious results were thought of by his family and immediate friends. George B. Yenowyne, of this city, was at Field's bedside when he died. Field and Yenowyne intended to start together for Kansas City, where Field was to read to-night.

Eugene Field was born in St. Louis September 21, 1850. He was the son of Roswell Martin and Frances (Reed) Field. His parents were both natives of Windham county, Vermont. His father was Dred Scott's first attorney in the case which resulted in the famous Dred Scot decision by the United States supreme court. Eugene Field's mother died in 1857. He was then put under the care of his cousin, Miss Mary Field French, at Amherst. He attended Williams college, Knox college and the state university of Missouri. He adopted the profession of a newspaper writer, beginning with the St. Louis Journal in 1872. He was later connected with the St. Joseph, Mo., Gazette, the St. Louis Times-Journal, the Kansas City Times and the Denver Tribune. He came to Chicago on August 18, 1883, to accept a position on the editorial staff of the Chicago Morning News, now the Record, and his connection with this paper continued without interruption until his death. Field's last contribution to his department in this paper, "Sharps and Flats," was published on Saturday morning, and in it was a characteristic defence of Bill Nye, and a refusal to accept the imputations as to the causes of the recent assault on the humorist in Paterson, New Jersey. In addition to his newspaper work Field established a reputation as a powerful and clever writer of stories and verses. His latest poem of any pretensions was "Dream Ships," printed in the October Ladies Home Journal. He was especially adept in poems and stories of child life. His printed books now number half a dozen volumes. He was also famous as a reader of his own stories and verses. In June, 1893, Knox college conferred upon Feld the honorary degree of A. M.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 6.—At a meeting in memory of Eugene Field, held at the Press club this morning, the folowing resolution was adopted:

"The Press club of Chicago desires to express its sorrow over the death of Eugene Field. His was a hautre rich in all those attributes which make a man of mark, compelling universal love, respect and admiration. In the death of Eugene Field the literary world has lost a man who in national and international appreciation has attained the widest distinction."

New York, Nov. 6.—News has reached this city that Mr. M. Elliott, who for many years has served the New York Times in positions of great responsibility, died last Sunday on the steamer on which he was returning from Jamaica, and which arrived at Boston this morning. The city council will be approached on the subject. The Ministerial Association will further discuss these matters at its next meeting, which will be held in two weeks.

—Recent arrivals from Cook Inlet report that two miners, Frank Lemar, and a man named Dyer, are missing from Cook Inlet and it is thought that they have either been drowned or killed by Indians. The two men left Cook Inlet last April in a skin canoe with three months' provisions, going up Kneek river. They intended to cross the mountains and prospect down the Copper river. But after they are finished a lot of work will have to be done, the biggest job being the removal of some 40,000 yards of black mud from the basin. As the city does not, according to the contract, take over the contractors' work until it has been given a three months' trial, they are not likely to commence the other work until that time has elapsed.

With this object in view they are endeavoring to come into more direct contact with the consumer. Mr. Thomas E. Kitchen, M. P. The farmers on the Fraser are contemplating forming an association for the purpose of opening out these markets in the different cities of the province.
