SCORE RUM RATION IN THE ROYAL NAVY

Other Naval Criticisms Procedure at Wentworth W.C.T.U. Meeting.

Hamilton, June 25.—The annual convention of the Wentworth and Halton Counties W. C. T. U. came to a close this afternoon. A number of resolutions were passed. The action of the Ontario government in passing the venereal diseases act was warmly approved. A recommendation was passed advocating a government measure obliging couples to obtain medical certificates before marriage.

The rum ration in the royal navy came in for a scoring by Mrs. Cameron, who cited the fact that young men in the navy were obliged each day, as a part of their duties, to bring up the rum. Mrs. Cameron also criticized the rule that young men enlisting in the lower deck of the royal navy could rise no higher.

Carry a Resolution.

"It is undemocratic," she said. "We're just beginning with our navy and it is easier to prevent than to cure." A resolution, embodying Mrs. Cameron's criticism was carried unanimously, the government being asked to abolish rum as part of the rations of Canadian jack tars. This resolution will be passed on to the provincial W. C. T. U.

A strong resolution from the Milton delegates protested against divorce legislation. It was pointed out by Mrs. Walters that out of 118 applications for divorce in Canada, 114 were from Ontario. Endorsation was given by the temperance women to the cash-and-carry system as a means of keeping down the cost of living. Another resolution protested again the use of outside-season delicacies.

Gen. Ashton stated the militia authorities were considering whether steps should be taken to continue some form of assistance to the city units.

MURDOCK CHARGES UP IN COMMONS

Borden Says Commissioner Was Under a Misapprehension.

Ottawa, June 25.—Sir Robert Borden promised the house of commons this afternoon that the correspondence between the government and the board of commerce relating to the resignation of Judge H. A. Robson from the chairmanship of the board would be tabled in the house of commons. He promised the Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King that the house would have an opportunity of discussing the matter contained in the resignation of James Murdock from the board. In view of this, Mr. King postponed further discussion until after the Robson correspondence had been submitted to parliament.

Sir Robert said that he only recieved Mr. Murdock's letter today. He presumed it was the same as the version published in the press. Mr. Murdock was under a misapprehension, no doubt sincere, as to the government's intention. "I did not intend to suggest to him," said the prime minister, "that the government would wait for the decision of the privy council before filling in the board."

Premier's Statement.

On the contrary, I asked him to name a suitable person to appoint when Mr. O'Connor resigned. I did say to Mr. Murdock then that the question was of so serious a character that I was afraid the government would be unable to give it proper attention, until after prorogation. I went so far as to name to my colleagues the gentleman suggested by Mr. Murdock as a suitable chairman, but there is some doubt that this gentleman would accept the post. My reply to Mr. Murdock's letter of resignation will be given the same publicity that has been given his letter.

U. F. O. ENEMIES BUSY, DECLARES MORRISON

Woodstock, Ont., June 25.—(Special).—J. J. Morrison of the U.F.O., speaking at a large picnic at Maplewood today, spoke chiefly on the tariff. He declared the tariff stands as one of the chief barriers to greater production in Ontario at the present time. Speaking of system of recall as practiced by the U.F.O., Mr. Morrison said it is the only way to get satisfactory representation. Members are being lobbied continually, he declared. "Sinister things are being done by big interests to change the standing of your representatives," he said, adding that he knew whereof he spoke.

WEAR OLD CLOTHES IS LEAGUE SLOGAN

Latest Association Formed Abjures, Wears Patches and Increases Production.

The latest league to come into existence and to apply for a charter of incorporation is "The Old Clothes League"—a league of men and women who not only pledge themselves to wear old clothes but to speed up production in their daily work and to generally undertake to fight the high cost of living.

The new league, which has offices at 145 Shaw street, has not as yet got beyond the formation of a committee, and no members are yet enrolled; but it is proposed to start an active membership campaign at once. As there will be no paid officers or officers of the league, and as the annual subscription is only 25 cents, there ought to be little or no trouble in swelling the ranks of the league. In return for the subscription the member will receive a button and a membership certificate, which will be enclosed in a leatherette pocket case.

Only One Solution.

The founders of the league declare, amongst other things, in a circular asking for membership:

It is the opinion of the founders and members of the Old Clothes League that there is but one solution and it is in our own hands. The law of supply and demand is still the great factor in price regulation. To increase supply and lessen demand is the principal remedy for the present economic ills. In other words, produce and save.

The wearing of the button and the co-operative spirit of the league will give the members that moral courage which will enable them to practice thrift in all ways without the fear of it being thought that thrift is being practiced for financial reasons or because of personal meanness.

To these charges Judge Robson makes an unqualified denial. In the telegram wired to Sir Robert Borden this morning, Judge Robson said: "I characterize Murdock's imputations against me personally as maliciously false in their entirety, and as far as known to me there is no basis of fact for the suggestion that ministers desired to destroy or hinder the board. I invite the fullest scrutiny from the inception of the board."

ly with the opposition. The objection of the opposition was to the franchising clause of the bill.

Correction by Fielding.

Hon. W. S. Fielding drew attention to a press report which incorrectly included his name with several opposition members as being favorable to an increased indemnity for members of parliament. He was absent from the house at the time. The official report of the house told that Mr. Burnham did not mention Mr. Fielding's name in this connection, and the latter asked that this impression be corrected with the same publicity as had been given the wrong statement, which did not correctly state his views on the matter. Mr. Fielding said that he was sure that the reporter who made the mistake had done so accidentally.

Third reading was given to the bill to assist shipbuilding, without discussion.

Debate Indian Act Bill.

The bill to amend the Indian act came up for third reading. Ernest Lapointe (Quebec East) opposed the enfranchising clause of the bill. He said, in the first place, that he thought such an important piece of legislation should have been given more consideration, and that the government might very well have waited until next session before putting it thru. The Indians should have been given every opportunity to express their views on it.

The bill, said Mr. Lapointe, provided for compulsory enfranchisement, and to this he was opposed.

King Forces a Division.

Mr. Mackenzie King said that the government chose to ignore the fact that there was a division of opinion in the Indian committee on some features of the bill. The principle of the franchise was too important to be treated lightly. Unless the government was willing to pass only such features of the bill as had been adopted unanimously in committee, he moved that the bill be given a six months' hoist. The house divided on the motion, which was defeated by a majority of 26 votes, and the motion for third reading thereupon carried, and the bill passed the house. It was a straight party vote of 77 to 51. The Farmers' party voted solidly with the opposition.

Sir Henry Drayton's resolution to validate excess borrowings under the demobilization appropriation act was adopted and the bill based upon it given first reading. Sir Henry explained that Victory Loans authorized by this measure had been oversubscribed. The borrowing of $1,750,000,000 was authorized and the total amount subscribed to the end of 1919 was $2,050,570,106.

Cahill Scores Railway Policy.

The house then went into supply on railways and canals estimate. On the item of $6,321,194 for construction and betterment, F. S. Cahill (Pontiac), said the minister had made a mistake in continuing the operation of the road "under the management of the Mackenzie and Mann crowd." He had placed in charge men who were not practical railroaders. The C.N.R. had not been kept out of politics; such a thing was impossible. Dr. D. B. Hanna, president of the Canadian National Railways, was also president of a company owning townsites in the west. They were really owned by Mackenzie and Mann.

Mr. Cahill stated that Col. Thomas Cantley had been made a director of the National Railways while he was also a director of the Nova Scotia Steel Company from whom the railway company purchased steel products. Mr. Cahill claimed that if the road had been maintained on the same basis as the Canadian Pacific the deficit would have been $10,000,000 higher.

There was something wrong with the management of the Canadian Northern, Mr. Cahill asserted.

Reid Defends C.N.R. Management.

Dr. Reid maintained that the management of the Canadian national Railways system was made up of experienced railway men. No drastic changes had been made when the C.N.R. was taken over.

Dealing with the contention that D. B. Hanna, while president of the Canadian National Railways board, was interested in the Eastern Car Company, which received orders from the railway system, Dr. Reid again referred to the C.P.R. He said that almost every director of the C.P.R., outside of the management, was interested in some company. A number of these companies were selling supplies to the railway. Possibly it was unwise for such a condition to prevail in a national-owned system, especially if the public was opposed to it.

Town sites were retained by Mackenzie and Mann, and this was taken into consideration when valuation was made. Mackenzie and Mann still held their equity in the town sites. The town sites were put up as collateral security for the loan, and the government must return to Mackenzie and Mann any money obtained by sale of the town sites.

Tries to Get Coal to Ontario.

Dr. Reid said that there was a very great need for more equipment for the Canadian National Railways. The present expenditures, however, were so heavy that he had not brought estimates to provide for rolling stock, which was really necessary to handle the traffic. If he followed his own judgment, he would have ordered five thousand coal cars, to be delivered at the earliest possible moment, and these he would have employed in carrying coal from Nova Scotia to central Canada to avert any shortage. Every dollar invested in railway equipment would mean a saving to the country. It would help the producers and at the same time overcome evils which were almost certain to arise. Dr. Reid said he was seeing what could be done towards getting coal from the west to Ontario and Quebec. The shortage of cars was a handicap in this regard. If there were no strikes, it should not be a difficult matter to secure coal from the United States.

He emphasized the fact that there had been no attempt by members on either side of the house to inject politics into the management of the Canadian National. He believed that Canada would eventually find one of her greatest assets in this railway system.

W. F. Maclean Praises C.N.R.

W. F. Maclean (South York) said the National Railways were making the pace in this country. There had been healthy criticism which was a good thing. The service was being improved by the amalgamation of the Canadian National and Grand Trunk roads and unnecessary duplication of offices and officials was being reduced. This would be a saving to the country. He was glad to notice that the amalgamation was being extended to telegraph offices.

The consolidations now going on would be a benefit, not only to the government lines, but also to the C.P.R.

R. L. Richardson (Springfield) said that private ownership came to a disastrous end in Canada. Four or five hundred million dollars had been spent on unnecessary railways, and there was the question to be considered whether the government should not decide to let the national transcontinental fall into disuse. It must be remembered in this regard, however, that great vested interests had been created all along the lines. Villages were being built. To permit the line to fall into disuse would be a great hardship for settlers.

There had been reference to deficits under public ownership. But, in years gone by, the public had contributed in bonuses and subsidies to private companies until the time came when the people would not stand for it any longer.

SALARY INCREASES GO THRU COMMONS

puisne judges, from $7000 to $9000.

County courts—Judges of county courts in counties in which there is a city with a population of 40,000 or over, an increase of $1000; that is, from $4000 to $5000 per annum.

At the present time, judges of the supreme and superior courts undertaking other duties, such as acting as commissioners, etc., at the request of either the federal or provincial governments, are paid fees for such services. The proposed regulation will require that the judges of the supreme and superior courts undertaking special duties at the request of either the federal or the provincial government, shall not be paid any additional compensation for such services, but that the salaries voted shall cover all services rendered.

Advance Salaries in House.

While the salaries of cabinet ministers in the provinces have been raised from time to time in recent years, the salaries of the members of the federal government have remained for 53 years at the sum fixed at Confederation, namely, $7,000. The government has decided to recommend to parliament the following increases:

Prime minister, from $12,000 to $15,000.

Members of the cabinet, from $7,000 to $10,000.

Solicitor-general, from $5,000 to $7,000.

Leader of the opposition, from $7,000 to $10,000.

Speakers of the senate and house of commons, from $4,000 to $6,000.

Deputy speaker of the house of commons, from $2,000 to $4,000.

The government has given careful consideration to the representations which have been made as to the inadequacy of the present sessional indemnity, having regard to the great increase in the cost of living since the indemnity was fixed in the year 1905 at $2500.

It appears that the average length of the sessions of the provincial legislatures is less than one-half that of the federal parliament, and that in addition, the majority of the members of the provincial legislatures reside within such distances from their respective provincial capitals that they can return to their homes and look after their business over the week-end; whereas, in the federal parliament, the members from both the east and the west are compelled to be absent from their homes and business for several months in the year.

Vote $1500 Increase.

In view of the foregoing the government has decided to recommend to parliament that the sessional indemnity of the members be increased from $3000 to $4000 per annum. The government, however, considers that this increased indemnity should not be paid unless the session is of substantial length and the members are regular in their attendance at the session; and the government proposes to amend the existing legislation to this effect.
