ONTARIO'S BAD BOYS

Juvenile Criminals in This Province Head the List.

Ottawa, Nov. 15. — Ontario has one-third of the boys of the Dominion, but supplies over half the boy criminals.

This was one of the points in an address delivered yesterday by George Johnston, statistician, before the Ministerial Association.

He said larceny was the chief crime committed by juveniles, forming 78 per cent of the convictions in 1903 of boys under sixteen. The Province of Ontario occupied an unenviable position in regard to juvenile crime, for while every million of the other provinces showed 130 boy criminals, Ontario showed 267 in every million. In other words, while Ontario has about one-third of the boys, it has over one-half of the boy criminals of the Dominion. There was a striking disproportion of boy criminals to girl criminals. Out of 908,119 girls under fifteen years of age in Canada in 1901, only 25 were convicted for indictable offenses. Of these Ontario contributed 18 out of 237,443 girls under fifteen, and all other provinces contributed seven out of a total of 570,714 girls under that age. Larceny was also the chief crime with the girls.

AMERICAN FLEET TO COW CHINESE

Collecting Strong Force Off Canton to Prevent Further Massacres.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 15. — More concern is felt by the administration regarding the general situation of affairs in China than is understood by the American people. In spite of the assurances which Sir Chentung Liang-Cheng, the Chinese minister, gave in his speech at Chicago last night, that his Government and its subjects were "naturally most friendly inclined" towards Americans and their interests, Secretary Root has deemed it advisable to warn the authorities at Pekin against further propaganda, such as that which was observed during the boycott agitation.

To impress the natives of the southern provinces, in one of which, Kwantung, five American missionaries were murdered some days ago, Rear Admiral Train, commander-in-chief of the Asiatic fleet, is collecting a strong force in the vicinity of Canton. He cabled the state department yesterday that he had left Shanghai with the battleship Ohio and the transport Gen. Alava, which has marines aboard.

The firm attitude of the administration has been something of a shock to Pekin, where the authorities seem to think they are doing all that reasonably can be expected. They have issued edicts for an investigation and the punishment of the persons guilty of the massacre of Americans at Lienchow and for the protection of foreigners generally throughout the empire, and they have given assurances that an indemnity will be paid for the lives lost and for the mission houses destroyed.

Minister Rockhill appears to believe this in as far as the Imperial Government can go. But the President and Secretary Root, while satisfied with what has been done, find in the situation throughout the empire cause for anxiety, which is leading them to seek the adoption by the Chinese Government of effective measures for the protection of Americans and their interests.

A general uprising against foreigners, such as occurred during the Boxer outbreak, is not apprehended. But the boycott movement, initiated last summer, has gained such headway that it has been found almost impossible to check it.

The native press, which enjoys a large influence in China, has been especially active in the campaign against the United States.

Information which has reached here shows that other nations are apprehensive that the boycott begun against American goods will injure rather than assist the trade of their respective merchants. This is especially true of Great Britain. There has been some talk of representations by a number of trading nations at Pekin in order to make the Chinese Government appreciate that by developing a boycott in the same underhand manner that it encouraged the Boxer outbreak, it is creating a sentiment which may injure not only American, but all foreign interests.

In the Boxer uprisings formal edicts were published for the suppression of the movement, and for the punishment of the participants, and secret orders were circulated urging united action against the foreign devils. The lesson inflicted by the powers at Pekin is fresh in the minds of the natives of Chili, through whose territory the allied troops marched, but it is forgotten in other parts of the empire. Moreover, there is a feeling that what Japan succeeded in doing with Russia, China could accomplish in a war with a white nation.

Secretary Root is studying the situation in China with the utmost care, and has come to the conclusion that the causes which have produced it must be eliminated before there can be that complete friendliness between the two peoples so necessary to satisfactory political and commercial intercourse.

In the meantime it should be understood that China's gratitude for American support of her integrity and administrative entity is a minor quality, and can have no effect in the treatment of questions between the two countries. The mass of Chinese believe that this policy was adopted because it was best calculated to promote American interests.

army and navy officers. The other half of the room was kept clear for dancing.

The dancing began promptly at 10 and was opened by Miss Durand, the daughter of the British ambassador, with one of the officers of the Drake.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Robinson were among the early arrivals. Miss Alice Roosevelt was not able to attend. Lady Townley and Miss Durand were both honored by the prince with a dance, but most of his evening was devoted to receiving the long lines of guests that poured over the side of the Drake.

President Roosevelt's military aid, Col. Bromwell, and Mrs. Bromwell, arrived early and were cordially greeted by Prince Louis.

The dance programme consisted of nineteen dances, every third one being a two-step, in compliment to the American guests. Between the dances the guests promenaded on the quarter deck. About the ship were comfortable chairs, where many sat out their dances.

Two suppers were served, one after the tenth dance shortly after midnight, and the second later on in the early morning. Both were elaborately served at 100 round tables along the lower half of the Cunard pier.

The portable ball room proved an unqualified success. Built up above the boat deck, it had a spring which made dancing irresistible even to the older guests. After midnight, when some of the guests had gone, the entire ball room was given over to dancing.
