MRS. T. G. BARNES DEAD.

Well Known Resident of Hampton Passed Peacefully Away on Sunday.

HAMPTON, N. B., March 31.—Mrs. T. G. Barnes passed away at 6 p. m., aged 76 years, after one week's illness from pneumonia. Her end was most peaceful, gently breathing her life away without a struggle or the drawing of a muscle of the face. Her daughter, Mrs. R. LeB. Tweedie, and her son, T. William, with his wife and family, were at her bedside at the last. Mrs. Barnes, who was most intimately associated with the growth of the Station, was a daughter (Mary) of the late Monmouth Fowler of Lake Side, and came here with her husband and young family in 1860, when the place was a mere swamp through which the new railway ran. Mr. Barnes bought land, planted trees, built a house and store, and carried on a general business until his sudden death in 1885. From that time Mrs. Barnes, with her son, T. William, carried on the business under the old firm name of T. G. Barnes & Son, and was favorably known by all the wholesale merchants of the city as well as by people in all parts of Kings county. She was an active member of the Methodist church here from the time of its organization, and was seldom absent from her place at the public worship. Her bright face, cheerful smile and ministering hand will be sadly missed in business, social and church circles. Her long cherished wish to be freed from a lingering illness was granted to her, and her peaceful end is a solace to her sorrowing children, relatives and friends who are left to mourn. Her eldest brother, William Fowler, senior, of Lakeside, survives her at the age of 87. The circle of relatives is very wide, not only in Kings and St. John counties, but throughout the United States.

BRITISH COMMONS.

LONDON, April 1.—In the house of commons today the colonial secretary, Mr. Chamberlain, confirming the despatch from Acora, Gold Coast Colony, announcing that a number of men belonging to the British West African regiment, who deserted at Kumassi, had marched, armed, to Cape Coast castle, where it was feared they would loot the town, said that between 400 and 500 men of the West African regiment had mutinied because they had not been returned to Sierra Leone at the time they understood they would be sent home.

The measure known as the retrospective bill, rendering re-appointment to office unnecessary in consequence of the demise of sovereign, passed its second reading in the house of commons today by a vote of 180 to 82.

In the course of debate on this bill it was pointed out by Wm. O'Doherty, Irish nationalist, that a penalty was incurred of a £500 fine for each time an unauthorized person took a seat or took part in a division. Cabinet ministers who are members of the present house of commons have made themselves liable to fines amounting in the aggregate to £1,000,000 for not having stood for re-election to parliament upon being officially notified of the death of Queen Victoria and the accession to the throne of King Edward VII.

Mr. Labouchere raised the question against Mr. Balfour as a matter of privilege and the deputy speaker ruled that he ought to have raised it the first time Mr. Balfour re-appeared in the house after resigning, if he raised it at all. It was now a question for the courts.

Riches are Won at the Cost of Health.

In the struggle for wealth and position, amid nerve-straining competition, business and professional men forget to care for their health until, weary and worn with over-exertion, the brain lags, the mind wanders, headaches and body pains tell of exhaustion and approaching collapse of the system.

But what is to be done? Stimulants have been used to whip on the tired, weak heart and to enliven the brain. Narcotics have been tried to soothe the nerves. Strong drugs have been freely taken to produce sleep. In spite of these temporary aids the system has grown weaker and ever weaker. Locomotor ataxia, paralysis, prostration, or it may be insanity, are threatening.

By forming new, red corpuscles in the blood, creating new nerve force and strengthening the action of the heart, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food carries new vigor and vitality to every part of the body. It reconstructs the broken
