PRIVATE PERRY BEST SHOT

shot thru the D.R.A. matches in 1903 and was 45th man. The first twenty usually go to Bisley, but this year it came down to the 45th man and it was nip-and-tuck with him to catch the steamer, the waiting man, the 46th, being Staff-Sergt. J. H. Simpson of the Royal Grenadiers, and an old Bisley man.

Worked in Shoe Factory.

"Perry was a cutter by trade in the shoe factory of Hurlbutt & Co. on Sheridan-avenue.

"The Royal Grenadiers are naturally very highly elated and proud of the success of their comrade in arms. The Grenadiers was the regiment which he first joined and in which he served, and in which he obtained his entire military education up to his sailing for Africa. His win well sustains the reputation of the Grenadiers as a shooting regiment.

"Immediately on receipt of the news of his success a cablegram was sent him by Col. Stimson, conveying the heartiest congratulations of all ranks of the Royal Grenadiers.

"Everyone who has come in contact with Perry has a good word for him. Not only was he born and bred in Toronto, but his whole shooting and military education were obtained in the city. As a Toronto boy the city may well be proud of him.

Highly Pleased.

"Having had personally much to do with him during his shooting days in the Grenadiers I am highly pleased with his success. Perry has the keen blue grey eye, the shooting eye. He early gave promise of developing into a first-class shot, and his present win amply fulfils the expectations that were entertained of him. He is purely a local product and does the city credit and his old regiment honor.

"Perry will now have the right to use the letters G.M. after his name on the militia list, as a gold medalist."

As to a Reception.

Capt. Montgomery thinks it probable that while the matter of a reception depends entirely on Perry's own movements, it is probable he will be guided by the wishes of his friends. The Ottawa people may wish to have him for the D.R.A. matches, and of course his native city, Toronto, wants to see him. He may attend the O. R. A. matches, beginning on Aug. 24. The D. R. A. matches begin on the 29th.

Captain Barker remembered Perry very well, having had him in "C" company in South Africa.

"He was invalided home after the occupation of Bloemfontein," he said. "I remember the boy as being a good soldier and a plucky one. He must have been in about ten or twelve engagements with the company. He was with the Grenadier section, which was No. 2 in "C" company. Sergt. Harry Middleton, now Sergt.-Major of the local section of the A. S. C., would remember him best, as he was section commander."

Why He is Pleased.

Capt. Barker stated that he was more than pleased that one of the members of his old company was the first Canadian born to win the coveted King's prize.

"To win that prize is harder than almost any other prize of an athletic or aquatic nature, because in addition to the steadiness required one must have the best of eyesight and health, as well as the very greatest degree of patience. To be a good rifle shot a man should train just as faithfully as for athletics. If his stomach is not right his eye won't be right. A nervous man can't shoot. Perry must have taken every care of himself to last thru the long and trying meet at Bisley, and to wind up in front of the best marksmen who represented the empire. The fact of his last target recording such an excellent shoot alone indicates his fitness physically, and his patience."

Dundonald Delighted.

In reply to a telegram from The World informing him of the success of Pte. Perry, Lord Dundonald wired on Saturday:

Editor World: Delighted to hear of Pte. Perry's success in winning the King's prize. Pte. Perry's regiment, the 6th Duke of Connaught's Own Rifles of Vancouver, takes a keen interest in shooting, and is a very smart corps.

Dundonald.

Col. Otter remembered Perry in South Africa, where he was wounded in the ankle in the same engagement in which the colonel himself was shot. They returned in the same steamer.

Major Delighted.

Major Sankey was delighted with the news.

"I am very glad, very glad indeed," he said. "Perry was always a very steady shot. It is always the steady man that wins, not the man who occasionally makes a brilliant score."

Capt. Wallace of Woodbridge said: "I'm glad that he's brought Canada out on top in the King's Prize competition."

Major Mason, D.S.O., who was on the first contingent, speaks in the highest terms of Perry, and is particularly well pleased at his success.

Joined the Grenadiers.

Perry joined the Royal Grenadiers on Oct. 12, 1896, and was a member of F Co. He was exceedingly popular and very well liked by the boys. Of a somewhat retiring and very modest disposition, he was at the same time jolly and good-natured, and devoted to his work. He is a total abstainer and was most reliable and steady.

"I never saw him rattled," said one of the company.

First Exploit at Shooting.

His first exploit at shooting was seven or eight years ago when he won a prize of $5 in the section shield prize given by Major Gooderham. The match was at 200, 500 and 600 yards, and he was so elated with his success that he determined to devote himself to rifle shooting. Therein lies the secret of his success, for since then he has consistently done everything in his power to make himself a good shot.

"What I honor him for," said an old comrade, "was the way he pushed himself along. He had to do everything for himself, and he had no advantages like some. He had to do with all kinds of makeshifts for his rifle; and you should see how he made a rifle-sling, orthoptics, sight-protectors, wind gaugers and other things he could not afford to buy. He has done everything for himself.

That $5000 Prize.

"They say the Canadian government once offered $5000 to the first Canadian-born who won the prize, and I'd like to see him get it. All the talk at the ranges was about the reception he ought to have. He's a Toronto boy, and should get the equal of any."

Perry volunteered for South Africa in the first contingent. He was then a little over 20. The regulations required him to be 22. An obliging non-com. reported when asked his age by an officer: "Twenty-three next birthday."

"I wasn't going to stop the boy," he added. "He stands 5 feet 8 or 8 1-2, and is plump and fair in appearance. Dr. Nattress, when he examined him for service, said he never saw a man in better physical condition or who had taken better care of himself."

Nothing Uppy-Uppy.

Perry got his uniform off the night he came home, and only put it on at the banquet and the presentation of the medals afterwards.

"That's the style of him. Nothing uppy-uppy about him. He was just the same after he got into the Bisley team at Ottawa as he was before. This is the second time he has been at Bisley, you know. Whether official or non-official, he will get a great reception. Everybody knows him. They call him Sam around the Armories. S. J. Perry he is, tho they have it J. Perry in the papers."

Grenadiers Well Represented.

Sergt.-Inst. Noble and Color-Sergt. A. J. Smith were seen and confirmed thea bove details. They stated that three members and two ex-members of the Royal Grenadiers are in the Bisley team this year—Mortimer, Bayles and Tyers of the regiment, and Fowler and Ferry ex-members. Perry was promoted sergeant on his return from the Cape and held the position until he joined the 6th Regiment at Vancouver.

"He followed the girl," was the explanation given by one of his friends for Perry's departure from Toronto. The family of the girl he admired went to British Columbia in the spring of 1902. He left Toronto in the latter part of March of that year, and his marriage in the western province followed immediately.

Perry was born in Toronto twenty-six years ago, and his family are well-known on Lippincott-street.

Discussed at Ranges.

Tho the weather was wretched, a large number of enthusiasts repaired to the ranges Saturday afternoon, and every phase of the King's prize win and the merits of the winner were discussed.

The stimulus to rifle shooting in the Dominion can scarcely be estimated, but the enthusiasm evoked by the success of Private Hayhurst a few years ago was of great value in this respect, and as a factor in developing efficiency such contests are looked upon as of the highest benefit.

Time to Be Proud.

A "foreigner" said to The World on Saturday: "Such a success as this, coming so quickly on the splendid triumph of Scholes as a sculler, may well make Toronto people a little bumptious. We will all honor them for their modesty, and the demeanor of your heroes sets the very best example for your citizens. From what I have seen of Canada it makes me think of the coming day—we know not how far off or how near—when the centre of the empire will move westward to your glorious territory and your sons will snatch the laureis of government as they now wear the chaplets of sport."

The King's prize was won twice by Private, afterward Corporal, A. Cameron of the 6th Inverness, in 1886 and 1889.

FAIR FOLKS

Don't Blame Nature, But Investigate

Many claim they are nervous "by nature" when it is really only because they are slaves to the coffee or tea habit, and this is easily proved by cutting out the coffee or tea for ten days and using well-boiled Postum Food Coffee instead—then comes the change.

"I seemed endowed by nature with a nervous constitution," says a lady of Knoxville, Tenn., "and although I felt tea and coffee were bad for me the force of habit was so strong I just couldn't give them up.

"Someone suggested that I try cereal coffee, but I remembered what insipid drinks we used under that name during the Civil War, and so without ever looking into the subject or realizing what progress science has made in this direction, I just wouldn't give Postum a trial until finally the W.C.T.U. in our city started an exchange where there were so many calls for Postum it was served regularly, and many were thus induced to try it, myself among the number. How delighted I was to find it so agreeable, delicious and satisfying. As I had suffered from nervous prostration, a change from tea and coffee was imperative, but all these troubles disappeared after I had used the Postum faithfully for a few weeks.

"A sister and a son-in-law were converted to Postum at the same time, and now we all enjoy it as well as we ever did coffee, but instead of making us nervous like coffee, we enjoy steady nerves, sleep sound and are in every way better for the change." Name given by Postum Company, Battle Creek, Mich.

This lady found what she thought was natural nervousness was only due to an acquired taste for coffee that is to some people a sure destroyer of nerves and health. Like her, anyone who cuts off coffee altogether and uses well-boiled Postum in its place will be greatly benefited after a few days, and the return to health is a joyful journey.

There's a reason.

HOW SCHOLES WON.

spurts and hard plugging after we had passed Fawley. He was then three and a half lengths ahead.

How He Beat Kelly.

"I started in to sprint, and at the first I increased my stroke by ten, then I'd rest off two or three and then I'd go back to the extra ten, take another rest and then repeat. In that way I got on even terms at the mile. There was 550 yards yet to go then, and I tell you it was nothing but a ding-dong race until about 50 yards from the finish, when Kelly simply collapsed. After he was lifted from his boat he was unconscious for over two hours. How did I feel? Well, altho I guess I was excited, I was able to get to sleep in the boat house; then I went back to the hotel, was given an ice-water bath, slept three or four hours and was rubbed down. I didn't sleep quite so well during the night, tho. No, the noise didn't bother me during the race.

"I tell you you don't hear anything of the cheering until the race is over. Your mind is simply on the other fellow and what he is doing. And now about the last race. They had been counting on me being played out by the semi-final, and that gave Cloutte some real encouragement. I knew he would finish all right, and I had him sized up right from the go in to the end. He rowed a great race right thru. During the night I had lost two pounds in weight. I was right on edge all right. Cloutte is a fine oarsman and a fine sport, and before the race began we shook hands and talked with each other, and we seemed to satisfy each other that the better man would win. Cloutte calculated that I wouldn't be in good trim, for Kelly was certainly in no state to have raced again.

Playing With Cloutte.

It was a beautiful day, and there was not a ripple on the water. There were 7000 people at Henley that day. I got the inside position. I got to the front from the crack of the gun and took a lead of a length, and I held it. I settled down to a good, long stroke. I knew I had the race all right, tho I wasn't altogether sure just how my strength would last out. At the island I was a length ahead, and at the quarter I was twice that. Several times, length. I wanted to make sure that tho, during the race, I took him in a I wasn't relying too much on an imaginary strength, caused by excitement, that might fail me at a pinch.

Past the top of the island I added ten strokes, and soon got another length, and this I held until the three-quarters, when I let myself back to a half. At Fawley, Cloutte tried to spurt, but I wasn't in any difficulty. Beginning about 300 yards from the finish, there are holes in the wall at 50 yard intervals, and I calculated to make my finish in the last fifty. I was tired now. I let him come up pretty nearly even. Then he broke his stroke, and I did, too, and I really won as I pleased. Then came the cheering. Cloutte and I got together and shook hands, and he said to me, "Well, we're still the best of friends, just the same," and I said we were. He had to be carried ashore, tho.

Was Splendidly Treated.

"When I went to land the crowd was so great that I was afraid that the boat would get smashed if I landed, so I paddled out a bit, and then plunged into the river and swam around a bend and dived under the canvas bath which goes down into the water, leaving a plunge bath inside in connection with the boathouse. Mulqueen knew what I was up to and he locked the doors and kept the crowds away. Mr. Mulqueen hugged me and kissed me and carried me around in his arms, and did all sorts of things, he was so glad, and I just want to say that he had about as much to do with my winning as I had myself. I tell you, he was like a mother to me. He watched me sleeping and waking, and I believe the last two nights he did not take his clothes off. If he saw I was restless he was there to tend to me to keep me from any sort of worrying. Eddie Durman, oo, deserves a lot of credit for his careful training and handling of me.

"The night before I rowed Cloutte I was down to 158 pounds, from 174, and I didn't get to sleep until 2 or 3 o'clock. I perspired terribly; it just rolled from me. In the four days' rowing, I wasn't allowed to eat anything but some steak and dry toast, and nothing to drink, at 10.30, and then a light supper in the evening. Both Kelly and Cloutte treated me splendidly after the races. After I won the championship, the Leander, Thames and London Clubs all gave banquets in the evening, and I had to say a few words at each. There were pleasant words from all sides. They made me an honorary member of the Sports Club in London, and of the Leanders, the Thames and the Vesta Rowing Clubs. At 2 in the morning a crowd of 10,000 people made me address them from the city hall, after carrying me all over town. After I left Henley, Commissioner Jones, Thomas Brice and Ald. Dunn dined me at the Hotel Cecil."

Will Row at Canadian Henley.

The champion has with him the famous Diamond Sculls trophy, which he retains until next year, and a handsome gold cup, which is his own property. Both trophies, along with the championship medals won in other regattas by himself, and the prize medals of his father and of his brother Jack will be exhibited at Toronto Exhibition. Lou says he will be rowing at the Canadian Henley regatta in August, and will begin active training as soon as he returns home. He will not, however, row in any single scull events this year, at least. For a young fellow of 24 his record is remarkable.

He explains his Henley success by the fact that ever since he began rowing he has had to row against men, and has had to work hard in every event. He has in four years, since he won his first novice race in the Don regatta in 1900, lost only three races—to Titus, to Len Marsh, whom he afterwards beat, and his first junior race against Ward, a Toronto boy, when he lost thru accident. Regarding the Winnipegs, Lou says they had hard luck in many ways. At London, Lou saw bioscope pictures of his two big races at the Alhambra and he admits having been greatly excited as he watched the way in which he won his victories. In Buffalo to-morrow, Sheriff Kaiser, Duncan McLeod, John Karnon and the Beck Bros. will entertain him to an automobile drive. Lou Bermager, a St. Louis traveler, who was a passenger on the Arabic, will accompany the home-comers to see Toronto celebrate.

what he has done for the Italian laborers who came here ready to fight against adversity, and who find in Antonio Cordasco a father, a friend who not only helps and protects them, but also puts them in positions to provide for their families, and for their old parents. We trust that the good actions of A. Cordasco will last for years and years for the welfare of our laborers, and we cannot help to let his name be known to everybody, so that our countrymen may know upon landing here that they will find a friend who is awaiting them."

And Another One.

The judge then produced a letter from Cordasco to Scarroni, gently disclaiming so much praise, but advising Scarroni that he must not praise him (Cordasco) so much as a capitalist, etc., but must write more about the C.P.R. works, of which he (Cordasco) was the sole labor agent. To work up the popularity of this wonderful agent, it appears that Cordasco was crowned "King of the Italian Workingmen," the following article being produced in print, translated from Cordasco's paper:

"To the pick and shovel army: Italian laborers, bosses and under bosses, do not be double-faced, but true, and have the courage of soldiers. Apply to the elegant and solid Italian Bank of Antonio Cordasco if you do not want to weep your fortune, or rather your misfortune, in the spring-time, when the shipment of men will begin. Do not think for one moment that with your dollar, or dollars, you will be able to get work like your comrades who have been faithful. No never, we shall inspect our money order books, and as well as the passage ticket list, and those whose names are not inscribed will pull their hair in despair and call upon Mr. Cordasco, saying, Lordship, Lordship Don Antonio, allow me the privilege to work. And I will say unto them, go to those who have received your money."

Then Mr. Cordasco was recalled and admitted have received a further sum of $1200 between the 8th and the 12th of July, but he told the judge he was ready to pay it back.

TO WHOM SHALL WE GO?

Rev. Dr. Campbell, Boston, Preaches in Jarvis-St. Baptist Church.

In Jarvis-street Baptist Church last night, Rev. John L. Campbell, D.D., of the First Baptist Church, Boston, preached an eloquent sermon. Dr. Campbell was born in Glengarry, and is well known in Toronto, having graduated at the university here, and having on former occasions occupied the same pulpit.

His text was the query of Peter: "To whom shall we go?" and the speaker applied the words to modern conditions of spiritual unrest.

Three Jewish Sects.

Among the Jews at that time there were three great sects, and those who rejected Christ might attach themselves to any of these. Firstly, there were the Sadducees, the materialists. Many people were rejecting Christ now. What would infidelism do for them? It violated every principle of human nature. The tourist proceeding down the Niagara River might disbelieve the guide book, which told him of the great cataract. The result would be his own destruction. The guide book did not make Niagara; the Bible did not make sin or suffering or heaven or hell. It only revealed them.

Pharisees Were Ritualists.

Should we join the Pharisees? They were the ritualists of their time. The evil of ritualism was its tendency to rest on the form rather than on what was represented. It worked from without inward. Christianity worked from within outward. It was unphilosophical and indicated the lack of spiritual life and power.

The third sect, the Essenes, were ascetics. In the early history of the church multitudes withdrew from the world, living in caves and mountains, and tried to get rid of sin. We had the same thing nowadays in our convents and monasteries, but where a man went he must take himself with him, and that meant imagination and memory and a fallen human nature.

We were not intended to retire, but to enter the thick of the fight, conquer our cities, build them up, and make them the cities of our God.

WILL PRESS FOR LOCAL OPTION.

Ald. Graham Speaks to Temperance Workers in Occident Hall.

The West End Gospel Temperance meeting in Occident Hall was well-attended yesterday. W. J. Armstrong, chairman of the platform committee of the Canadian Temperance League, occupied the chair. President William Munns introduced the speaker of the day, Ald. Graham, who declared that his experience in relief work among the citizens of Toronto proved to him that 35 per cent. of the cases he had to deal with were traceable to liquor. He called the traffic a burden on the taxpayers. The city spends yearly on its police force $350,000, much of which expenditure was due to the need of looking after the product of the saloons. He declared that when the temperance people of Toronto were prepared to advise him he would introduce a local option resolution into council and press for its adoption. Next Sunday Ald. Jones and Controller Hubbard will be asked to speak.

HOT WEATHER COMING.

Sunday was the sort of a day that tempted Sally out of her alley, and induced everybody else who could do so to follow her example. It registered 72 degrees at the highest, and was moderately warm everywhere in the province, as well as Toronto. Parry Sound and Halifax both had 80. There were showers in Manitoba, and scattered showers in Quebec and Cape Breton. Dawson City had a range from 48 to 62 degrees.

To-day will be a good day, and moderately warm.

Friday was a downright scorcher in the Northwest. Medicine Hat led with a temperature of 102 degrees. Qu'Appelle seems to have been the eastern boundary of the hot zone, the temperature there being 84 degrees. We may expect the hot wave to reach here about the middle of the week.

TEST COMES TO-DAY.

Capital of $25,000,000 to Clash With 25,000 Workers.

Fall River, Mass., July 24.—With hope of peaceful settlement abandoned, both sides in the pending industrial trouble here await with dogged determination the coming of to-morrow, and the first test of strength between manufacturers representing a combined capital of $25,000,000 and more than 25,000 cotton mill operatives.

The mill gates will be opened at the usual time to-morrow morning, when the operatives will be given an opportunity to go to work under a wage reduction of 12 1-2 per cent. If an insufficient number responds, the mills will be closed for an indefinite period. The strike leaders are of the opinion to-night that there would not be enough applicants applying for work thruout the city to run even one mill, to say nothing of the 8000 more that are affected by the order to strike. The manufacturers, on the other hand, claim that the 2000 union men who voted to strike do not represent the sentiment of the great body of cotton mill employes. They give the total number of operatives on their pay roll at 25,630. This, of course, does not include the employes at the independent mills of M. C. D. Borden, which are not involved.

The talk on the streets, however, indicates that the feeling against the manufacturers is quite as bitter among the non-union operatives as it is among union men.

John Golden, president of the United Textile Workers of America, the leader of the strike, has cautioned the operatives not to go near the mills to-morrow morning.

The police have made but little preparation for handling the crowds of strikers, but officers will be stationed at the mill gates.

Several small stores patronized chiefly by the operatives have been obliged to close owing to the abrupt falling off of trade, and on all sides an alarming decrease in business has followed the issuance of the strike order.
