British Win Again

Defeat Germans Attacking in Force—Enter Hun Trenches Near LaBasse—Last Despatches of Day Tell of Russian Victories

London, Aug. 24—On the Somme front in the neighborhood of Guillemont, the Germans last night launched a strong attack in an effort to regain lost ground. The official statement issued here today says the attack was repulsed after a severe struggle in which the Germans sustained heavy losses.

In a raid northwest of La Basse the British successfully entered the enemy's trenches.

Petrograd, Aug. 24—Teutonic forces have begun determined attacks against the Russians who recently forced their way across to the west bank of the Stokhod. According to today's official announcement the attacking columns were repulsed by the Russian fire.

Petrograd, Aug. 24—The capture of two Turkish regiments on the Caucasus front was announced today by the war office.

HONOR AND MONEY

"Are you happy?" asked the Sociologist.

"I am not," replied the Millionaire.

"That is strange."

"Not at all. The trouble is that there is no longer any honor in having money."

"There is something in that," agreed the Sociologist.

"And there is no longer any distinction in owning an automobile."

"No."

"And aeroplaning is not expensive."

"And somewhat risky."

"Divorces, with picturesque remarriages are exciting enough, but there never was much honor attached to them."

"Quite right."

"If I have a country house, nobody sees it except middle-class automobilists, to whom it is but one in a hundred or so passed in an afternoon's spin."

"That's an interesting thought."

"And yachts never did make much of a show to the general public. The Horse Show creates only a mild general interest and, since betting has been stopped, the splurge has fallen out of horse-racing."

"That's true."

"And if I purchase a foreign nobleman for my daughter they immediately go abroad to live and the public soon forgets them, unless they are divorced."

"The situation is essentially modern," suggested the Sociologist.

"Yes, and there is the muck-raker. No sooner do I get a dollar than he comes around and wants to know where, how and why I got it."

"What are you going to do about it?"

"Oh, I don't know," replied the Millionaire wearily. "Sometimes I think the honorable thing in the future will be some sort of poverty."—"Life."

GOOD THINGS COMING TO THEATRES OF ST. JOHN

THEATRICAL SEASON AT THE OPERA HOUSE

May Robson to Open it in Person in "The Making Over of Mrs. Matt"

So many laughs are compressed into the three acts of "The Making Over of Mrs. Matt" that it is almost one continuous gale that nightly greets May Robson and her cheery company of players. It is wholesome and the best sort of a tonic for that tired feeling. Built around the gusty and explosively comic personality of Miss Robson, the play has plenty of dash.

Poor Mrs. Matt is trying to live up to her husband's fortune and social ambitions, when at heart she is just a natural, big hearted woman from Omaha. But she has put herself unreservedly in the hands of a New York maid and is bravely suffering the consequences. Her tortures include a revision downward by the diet and exercise route, and a sand papering of the westerner. A son, who has left college and is taking his first look at life, will supply the heart interest for Mrs. Matt; and a sweet, young girl, of whom the father disapproves, will furnish the heart interest for the son. The story reaches home and will be told in the clever dialogue that James Forbes has provided.

Mrs. Matt is adjusting herself to her new grandeur and confides in her maid that it was difficult to pick out the furniture—the were so many Louis' to choose from. One of the Louis took to religion and the other to furniture. Her bedroom is furnished in one of these, and she says, "I often wonder what Louis would think of my Omaha underwear." She says she likes the library because the bindings are so cheerful. Miss Robson always radiates good cheer, good fun and her pathos will always be found very real. In the course of her transformation she promises to wear some handsome gowns to demonstrate the fine feathers theory.

May Robson herself in person in "The Making Over of Mrs. Matt" will be seen here at the Opera House next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights and Wednesday matinee. It is not a photo play, but a first class stage presentation of a genuine New York success, and will be the opening theatrical attraction of the present season. Seats are now on sale at the box office for all performances.

PEOPLE BACK TO TOWN; IMPERIAL THEATRE PACKED

Big Metro Play Pleases Everybody—Show Again Tonight—Rose Coghlan in "The Sporting Duchess" Tomorrow

With the gradual tapering off of summer out-door pleasures and the return of vacation folks, old and young, the Imperial again enjoyed capacity business yesterday when Hamilton Revelle and Marguerite Snow appeared in the superb society drama, "The Great Bribe," an adaptation of William Hamilton Osbourne's mystery story "The Red Mouse." This Metro feature contains all the elements of gripping fiction, an elaborate production for which their film plays are already noted. Miss Snow and Mr. Revelle were as usual all that could be desired in the leading roles. The 6th instalment of the Siberian travel pictures disclosed more interesting facts and some scientific water pictures and Animated Weekly complete the splendid bill.

Tomorrow the eminent star, Rose Coghlan, assisted by Ethel Clayton, Cecil Spooner and other noted players will present the Augustus Harris production of Cecil Raleigh's famous race-track story "The Sporting Duchess." This is a play de luxe of the highest magnitude with settings both interior and out-of-doors that will astound everybody. The great English Derby, intimate views of aristocratic life in the old country and a wealth of detail almost unthinkable will be a series of surprises for those who see this picture. The "Mr. Jack" comedies will be resumed with the inimitable Frank Daniels in the name-role.

RETURNED HERO AT LYRIC TONIGHT

Corporal Jagger Tupper of the 60th Rifles, who lost a limb at Ypres, will tell of his wonderful experiences at the Lyric tonight. Corp. Tupper has the signal honor to represent the wounded on the vaudeville stage. He will also perform some wonderful dances as well as sing some original compositions.

Sue Willard, the musical girl, and excellent picture programme in addition.

THE GEM TONIGHT

The master picture, "A Woman's Power," gripped last night's Gem patrons and held them intensely interested throughout the five reels. It is a big, throbbing story. Mary Page, Chapter XII, created new interest in this remarkable serial. It's a great show. Come tonight.

PYTHIANS PAY HONOR TO DEAD

Today was observed as decoration day by the three lodges of the K. of P. in the city, New Brunswick No. 1, Union No. 2, and St. John No. 30. All morning the steady stream of bouquets that were sent to help decorate the graves of the deceased brothers, showed that the number this year would exceed that of last year. Upwards of 3,000 bunches were sent by generous donors.

This afternoon at 2 o'clock the parade started from Castle Hall in Germain street, going up King, along the south side of King Square, down Sydney, along Waterloo street out to Fernhill. Headed by the Temple of Honor band, came the Uniform Rank, barouches laden with flowers, then the chancellors of the three lodges, followed by the members in regalia. All went to make up an impressive spectacle. A noteworthy feature of the parade was the centre barouche, with flag half mast, patriotic in nature, standing out from the large array of flowers. It was in honor of Sergt.-Major Evans, a former member of the K. of P. who has fallen on the field of honor.

There were special carriages for the veteran members. John Beamish occupied a seat in the front carriage, he being the father of the organization here.

There were three barouches covered with flowers. The first represented the "gates ajar," the second was the patriotic carriage, and the third barouche was needed to convey the extra supply of flowers.

At Fernhill the graves of all the deceased members will be decorated and also those of soldiers who have been war. James Moulson will deliver the war. James K. Moulson will deliver the address, while Rev. R. J. Haughton will give the reading at the graves and Rev. Dr. Hutchinson will say the usual prayer.

The Waltz Coming Back

Chicago, Aug. 24—The old-fashioned waltz will supplant the acrobatic tango in the ball rooms of the nations if the National Association of Dancing Masters has any influence. In convention here the dancing professors decreed that the tango must go. The waltz, the one step and the fox trot will be the fashionable favorites this season.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Mrs. W. D. Sansom, of Nashwaaksis, announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Glennie W., to Herbert G. Bailey of the same place.

THE HON. B. FRANK SMITH.

Chatham World:—It is unfortunate for the minister of public works, Hon. B. Frank Smith, that he is reported to be a politician on the make, and is in the game chiefly for the spoils to be gathered up. He has earned this reputation by his connection with government contracts and his patriotic potato dealings. He does not increase the prestige of the government.

THE POTATO EXCHANGE

LeBaron Bull, of Fredericton, has been offered the position of sales agent and manager of the New Brunswick Potato Exchange, Limited, the company recently formed by the potato shippers along the St. John Valley. Mr. Bull was for fourteen years manager of the Anglo-Canadian Company, with headquarters at Hawkshaw, and has also had some experience in large companies in the United States.

CARVELL NOT AN ISSUE

Chatham World, Con.—The government campaign has been begun in Carleton by attacks on Mr. Carvell. It is Mr. Carvell's sins and not Mr. Smith's virtues that are held up before the eyes of the electors. This is not as it should be. The electors should be asked to consider only the claims of the new minister and the government on the confidence of the constituency.

PERMISSIONAIRES IN PARIS.

(Cartoons Magazine.)

At the Gare de l'Est you can see the permissionaires come in by hundreds. They are of every age and grade. There are clean ones and very dirty ones. They slouch and they strut or they walk with that peculiar trench walk, with the feet close together. They hang about the station entrance to buy post cards and aluminum rings, which they give away to their friends as presents from the trenches. Little family groups are waiting there for some of them or it may be just one woman with a baby in her arms, or a woman in mourning for the son who will not come home any more. With a fine contempt for such things as dust and mud and the public eye, the permissionaire is embraced warmly by his relations and they carry him off in triumph on the tram or in a taxicab.

Protect Your Eyes

Those to whom nature has given extra good vision are apt to be rather proud of it and nearly always abuse it.

The commonest plaints we hear are regrets for impaired sight, which was once above the average.

Good vision is priceless. Health, happiness and prosperity depend upon it, yet our eyes are being persistently ill-treated and little attention is given to preserve their usefulness.

The symptoms of eye-strain should be heeded.

EMPRESS PRESENTS ONE OF VERY BEST OF THEM, "MY OLD DUTCH"

"My Old Dutch," with Albert Chevalier, is a feature about which Universal may shout themselves hoarse and still not do ustice to its merits. Chevalier's acting is its prime point. His Joe Spudd is a character that "stirs the sympathies," "pulls the heart strings," and affects one in sundry relative ways that are mindful of the press agent's customary chatter.

It is by no means an unusual thing to see husband and wife embrace. Such an event is continually happening in pictures, but do many such scenes make a man whisk out his handkerchief and quickly wipe his eyes or rub his nose, feigning a bothersome itch? It is the quaint, human likeness of the two characters that forces the tears, traits that Chevalier and Florence Turner have brought out with a quiet, dominating strength.

The appeal of the picture lies entirely in the character portrayals of the two leads. The story merely follows them through all their fortunes and misfortunes until at last it leaves them, made comfortable and happy by the son, who for a time disgraced himself. Chevalier and Arthur Shirley collaborated in the preparation of the scenario, which allows for extensive character work from Miss Turner and her most lovable opposite. Larry Trimble produced the picture in England, where correct types, actual atmosphere and an evident knowledge of his subect have aided him in making a delightful picture.

As an example of the fine performances given by the leads, we will cite the theatre scene. The costermonger and his wife are seated in the gallery watching a ripe old melodrama. Not once is the stage shown, but by means of the couple's expressions, aided by a few subtitles, the spectator knows exactly what is transpiring on the boards. This series of scenes and many others in the first part of the picture take the shape of delightful comedy, but with further developments, pathos is introduced, and then the tears begin.

"My Old Dutch" is one of the best features of the season. That statement no one will deny after witnessing it.

This charming production will be screened twice tonight, starting at seven o'clock, and eight thirty. The programme is concluded with an extremely funny L-Ko comedy "Gamboling On The Ocean."

The management of the Empress last night made the remarkable offer of returning the price of admission to any person without question who did not consider that "My Old Dutch" was one of the best productions they had ever witnessed at any price ranging from five cents to two dollars.

It hardly seems necessary to state that there was no money returned, on the contrary there were many heard to remark that they would return and see it again.

BANGOR MAN'S WIFE MAY BE FIRST WOMAN ARMY FLYER

Mrs. Waldo Peirce of New York city, wife of Waldo Peirce of Bangor, has passed all the flying tests set by her instructors at the Wright Aviation school and is now preparing to qualify for a military license so that she may become the first woman aviator in the United States service.

Mrs. Peirce has ordered a 120-horse-power biplane of the latest Wright model. When she receives it she expects to make a long distance flight as an exemplification of her theory of the practicability of the aeroplane as a means of popular excursion.

"I'll fly up Broadway one of these days," she promised. "I want to be the first girl to do it."

TROUBLE AT RECRUITING MEETINGS IS REPORTED

Montreal, Aug. 24.—Recruiting officers today reported to Ottawa details of disturbances which have taken place at twenty enrollment meetings in this district. The interrupters have for the most part been French.

Three meetings yesterday ended in fights in which the disturbers were roughly handled by the soldiers. At Mansonville, Que., one soldier was placed under arrest for assault. In the city recruiting rallies were interrupted by men who spoke French.

BIRDS AND SHELLS.

(Capt. Louis Keene in Cartoons Magazine.)

During the bombardment yesterday I noticed the swallows flying about quite unconcerned. The birds build in the lines close to the guns, and don't seem to worry a bit. They often warn us of the approach of gas by their fluttering and twittering. Butterflies play in the dust. Cornfields extend to the edge of the trenches. Flowers grow in profusion in No Man's Land between the trenches.
