NOTICES OF

'THE WISDOM OF THE KING'

BY

Rev. James Bennet,

ST. JOHN, N. B.

"EVIDENCES of deep and serious thought throughout the volume."—Belfast News Letter, Jan. 24, 1871.

"Succeeds well in seizing on the salient points of the words of the Royal Preacher, and in bringing them home to present duty."—Glasgow Daily Review, Feb 6, 1871.

"Characterized by directness of aim, sound sense, and right appreciation of the sacred writer's meaning."—The Preachers' Lantern, (London), Feb. 1871.

"It is a good book of sterling value."—The British and Foreign Ecclesiastical Review, April 1871.

"His Book may be recommended as worthy to take a place in the Homiletical Literature of Ecclesiastes."—British Quarterly Review, April 1871.

"The production of a highly cultivated mind. . . . We have read several works on Ecclesiastes, and well remember the pleasure with which years ago we perused the 'Royal Preacher,' but for fine criticism, comprehensiveness of thought, striking illustration and unostentatious yet eloquent and forcible style, THE WISDOM OF THE KING, we think, surpasses them all."—St. Croix Courier, March 6, 1871.

"The volume is not an unworthy companion of Dr. Buchanan on the same book."—The Homilist (London), April 1871.

"A series of charming Essays. . . . Each chapter branches out into innumerable topics of a secondary and collateral nature, giving to the work a boundless diversity, enriched with stores of ethical as well as of spiritual wisdom, evincing at once acute observation of social life and of human character, and containing the noblest lessons for practical guidance. Our author's style is remarkable for its free, unconstrained flow, almost colloquial at times, but invariably signalized by elegance, force, adaptation to the subject, and not seldom by originality of thought in combination with terseness and beauty of expression. . . . There is about it a freshness, as well as a fullness of practical teaching, rarely to be met with in ordinary Biblical commentaries."—Londonderry Standard, Feb. 15, 1871.

"This is a bright, breezy book, both interesting and instructive. We can most conscientiously commend this book generally, as one of the most sprightly, attractive and instructive works of its kind that has fallen under our observation."—Boston Evening Traveller, May 6th, 1871.

"Every portion of the work indicates extensive scholarship and mature thought."—Belfast Northern Whig, April 8th, 1871.

"The force, raciness and robust manliness of Mr. Bennett's style and mode of treatment will arrest attention and excite interest in quarters where preaching or writing of the average quality would fall flat and dead."—Home and Foreign Record, March, 1871.

"So plain yet so suggestive, so practical yet so profound are these Lectures that while you read them you feel their deep truth and reality; that you are in contact with realities both visible and invisible; that you are in close contact with the beating heart of nature and humanity, and that all their life and hope flow full and free from God alone."—Fredericton Head Quarters, March 1st, 1871.

"The writer is evidently well acquainted with the literature of his subject, and that acquaintance reveals itself almost unconsciously in every page. There is no ostentation of reading or learning, but there is everywhere the gleaming forth of light which cannot be hid. The style is simple, intelligible, graceful. It shows at once that Mr. Bennet is a man of literary culture, who can express his thoughts with scholarly chasteness and good taste. We could not open a page without meeting some thought vigorously expressed. The work is eminently fresh and readable."—Pres. Witness, Halifax.

"He reveals in the treatment of his themes strong common sense, a firm grasp of thought, a logical acumen and a clear insight into human character. Even when dealing with trite ideas he imparts to them a novelty and interest by which they are lifted into an importance they scarcely deserve. The style throughout is lucid, pure, compact, forcible,—and it is his own—the garb of his own thinking. We have met in our perusal of the book with numerous paragraphs of finished and brilliant rhetoric—fine specimens of pulpit oratory. He is never tame nor tiresome. We have not found one slip shod sentence in the volume."—Christian Visitor, (Baptist) March 6th, 1871.

"We were not prepared to find him writing in such a finished style and issuing such a volume as 'the result of certain preparations made for an evening lecture to his congregation.' If all his pulpit performances are equal to these, his people have reason to rejoice in the Providence which guided his steps to them."—Evangelical Witness, May 1st 1871.

"This is a remarkably thoughtful, solid book. Mr. Bennet is evidently at home in Metaphysics and Ethics, and he is a shrewd observer of human nature in its ordinary manifestations; consequently he ranges over the lessons of the Preacher with a power of illustration which shews his mastery of the subject. The style is close and direct, and yet so lucid, that any reader may understand every sentence in the volume. . . . It will, we doubt not, take its place, as it ought to do, among our household expositions of this treatise of observation and Jewish wisdom."—The Presbyterian (Philadelphia), May 20, 1871.

"The lessons to be learned are drawn with a master's hand, and are expressed with a combined force and beauty that we have rarely seen surpassed in the production of any author. The ordinary reader will find nothing that is above his comprehension, and yet it would be difficult to find a common place thought or form of expression. A combination of these requisites we deem the highest merit a writer can possess.

"We will be much disappointed if the book do not command a wide circulation. Wherever a sound literature is felt to be a deside atum, THE WISDOM OF THE KING has but to be known to be prized as a work that the world will not willingly let die."—Saint John Telegraph and Journal.

"THE WISDOM OF THE KING is well worth careful reading. Indeed you cannot read much of it at once. There is a constant play of fancy about the thoughts, and often the very words, that is admirably suited to the Scripture book, of which this is an exposition, but which demands such constant attention on the reader's part that he gets tired, for he does not know where it is to end. The style is compact, lucid, often sparkling and epigrammatic, the sentences cut sharply, but with a poetic fullness of original illustration that redeems them from all hardness."—Halifax Monthly Record, (Church of Scotland).

"Each chapter is so well done, so lucid, yet concise in its exposition, that it is a matter of difficult to determine which is the best and most interesting."—Stewart's Quarterly, St. John.

The Rink Carnival.

The Skating Rink has been long generally acknowledged to be one of the few joint stock ventures in this city which has fulfilled the expectations of its promoters, both in a pecuniary and pleasure point of view. Though, strictly speaking, the tendency of the thermometer to range frequently below zero during the winter season precludes the idea of Carnivals like that of Rome or Venice, or the queer assemblage that annually celebrates the Mardi Gras by parading through the streets of the Crescent City New Orleans, over becoming successful here, yet that the more sober tastes and ideas of the people of this northern clime can induce them to indulge in fantastic garb for a harmless and pleasing night's entertainment was fully evidenced, when the energetic zeal, hard work and emulative ambition to excel all previous "carnivals" were shown in the success which the efforts of the young men composing the "carnival" committee met with in the grand turn out last night.

The air last evening was clear, sharp and crisp, and the many masqueraders who had spent a great deal of time and money in making preparations for the "Carnival" were assured that the ice would be in good condition for their pastime.

The doors were opened at seven o'clock, and at eight, the hour fixed for the Band to play, there were about in the building. The Ladies' Committee—Mrs. B. C. B. Boyd, Mrs. James Robertson and Mrs. H. D. Troop—supervised the lady masqueraders in entrance to the circle of skaters. Mr. W. F. Bunting, President of the Rink, assisted by quite a number of the Committee of gentlemen, managed the details for the male portion of the masqueraders. The number of skaters,—none being allowed to skate except those in costume,—was small at first, but increased to large proportions by half-past nine o'clock.

THE CHARACTERS.

The costumes of the gentlemen were characterized by a great deal of richnes in material, but not anything particularly striking, with the exception of an individual who represented the fast trotting horse, "Crown Prince." His upper works, head, shoulders and ears were modelled as closely after the famous trotter as anything of the two legged genius could be; and, as if carrying out the Darwin theory, he sported a silvery flowing tail, which he wisked around and imitated the playful steed, causing a good deal of amusement. The comical appearance of the representative of "bruin," as he slowly moved around, carrying to the right and left his great shaggy black head as if he wanted to devour some victim, showed a great deal of care in the get up, and was one of the most successfully assumed characters of the evening.

A representative from the Market Square with his saw mill on his back; a bootblack and a Vermont peddlar created a good deal of amusement. The members of the Legal Fraternity, though believing that the pen is mightier than the sword, donned military attire, three of them sporting the "warrior's garb." Another shone conspicuously as the "Jack of Diamonds." The sons of Africa were largely represented, from the end man of a minstrel troupe to the mellifluous standard bearer of a recalawag district in the Southern States. The clowns and harlequins were well got up but were rather weak in the vocal and tumbling parts of their impersonations. They rarely made the welkin ring with tricks or jokes A Chinese Mandarin exhibited a very good costume of the Celestial Empire, not omitting the essential umbrella. The disciples of Esculapius betrayed the same fondness for warlike garb as the legal men, and here one had on a sailor's dress, another a Volunteer Captain's, while the Ku Klux insignia was adopted by another. Mr Charles F. Perry, of Bangor, in the dress of Prince Charles of Chaleur, displayed some beautiful feats of skating. "Omar Pacha," a Turk, wore his splendid costume gracefully. The minstrel, the jolly Irishman and the sailor moved around hob nobbing with each other. Lord Dundreary was hardly as neat and artistic looking a personage as Sothren makes him. The Captain of the Guard in Don Cæsar made a dashing appearance.

Of the ladies' suits and characters, more of a disposition for richness of dress was observable than originality of appearance. There were three "Dolly Vardens," showing that Dickens' writings are admired by the ladies. "Mary Queen of Scots' was also prettily represented, and the make-up of the "Puritan Maiden," accompanied by "Miles Standish," displayed a correct idea of the quaint old Puritan garb. A young lady in the Highland costume, without a mask, from her vivacious and lively style, looked quite attractive. "Kitty Pop Corn" was a more attractive looking representative of that line of business than one generally meets in railway cars, selling that harmless article of diet. A lady in the tasteful costume of an "Archeress," attracted a good deal of attention by the beauty of the character. A "Bengalese Lady" wore a rich attire, and the costumes of "Marguerite de Valais" and "La Marchaned de Valais" were very tastefully got up. The gypsy and peasant girl costumes were largely in the ascendant. Altogether the costumes were very successfull and truthful representations of the characters assumed.

Below we give a full list of the principal actors in the carnival and their characters; also the programme of the music offered by the Band. The music was varied and brilliant, enlivening the antics of the masqueraders and keeping the large body of spectators cheerful in spite of the coldness of the atmosphere.

Government Notices and Appointments.

The Royal Gazette contains the following:—

"The Lieutenant Governor has been pleased to accept the resignation of the Honorable Levite Theriault as a Member of the Executive Council of this province.

"James M. Brown, John B. Grant, James Yerxa, Norman Hallett, A. S. Hartt, James W. Ebbett, William M'Kay, Robert Sloot, James K. Pinder, and Thomas M'Vay, Esquires, to be Justices of the Peace for the County of York.

"William M'Keen, Esquire, to be a Coroner for the County of York."

A Perversion.

The Boston Post twists the TRIBUNE's matter of fact paragraph of a few days ago, relative to a disturbance in St. David's Church, into the following shape:—

A drunkist entered a St. John, N. B., church, clambered over a pew door, subsided into a slumber, and finally woke up and distracted the attention of the congregation by abruptly warbling Old Hundred in the middle of the pastor's fifteenthly.

Purchased.

Hunter's Car Shed on Meadow Street near the Railway track, Portland, has been purchased by Pugsley, Christie & Co., and will be converted into a Glass Factory.

Mrs. Laura Fair's Suit against her Mother.

[From the San Francisco Post, Jan. 13.]

A few months ago Dr. Trask, one o Laura D. Fair's physicians, brought suit against her to recover the amount of his fees. It was then discovered that she had assigned her money in trust to others, out of the reach of her creditors Among these assignees her mother appeared as trustee for $16,000, and her daughter appeared for $8,000. Everything has gone on smoothly since then, until within a few days since, when Mrs. Fair discovered that her mother had drawn the interest on the $8,000 which had been transferred to the child, and had deposited it in the Odd Fellows' Savings Bank. She also found that her mother intended to convert all to her own use. Last Thursday, Mrs. Fair, by the permission of Sheriff Adams, was granted an interview with her mother, and made a demand on her that she should return the $16,000. Her request was refused point blank, and the more she pleaded the more decided was the refusal. On being threatened with a lawsuit the mother flew into a passion which resulted in one of her hysterical fits. Mrs. Fair left her presence without accomplishing anything excepting the securing of the money in her little daughter's name from any interference by her mother. We understand that Mrs. Fair will immediately commence a suit for the recovery of the $16,000.

An Indian Parallel to the Tichborne Case.

The Tichborne baronetcy case, now the subject of such interest at home, recalls to our mind a somewhat similar case which happened in this part of the world some 30 years ago. We allude to the case of the pretended claimant to the Burdwan Gaddi, which at the time created the utmost excitement all over Bengal. The stake then played for was greater by far, for if the Tichborne estates are worth £40,000 per annum, the Burdwan Raj had an annual income of £130,000, besides a vast sum accumulated by the old rajah and his ancestors. The Burdwan chief, like the patriarch of old, had "a son, an only son," who, as the story goes, when a youth, while bathing one day in the river, suddenly disappeared. Nobody could tell what became of him. As may well be supposed, every possible and impossible search was made; as the body was not found the general belief was that the heir apparent to the Burdwan Raj was not drowned. The old Rajah, after years of geief, and when every quest for his lost heir had proved fruitless, adopted a son, who is at this day the Rajah of Burdwan. Fourteen years after the mysterious disappearance of the youthful heir-apparent, and not long after the death of the old rajah, a claimant turned up, insisting upon his right to the Burdwan Gaddi as the legal heir. He proceeded, with a strong following, in which he was substantially assisted by native zemindars, to take possession of his own, but he received an effectual check in his career by the interposition of the local magistrate, Mr. Ogilvie. The pretended rajah was publicly denounced as an impostor, and it was proved that his real name was Aluk Shah and not Partabchandar Singh, the missing heir. Subsequently the pretended rajah found an adherent and zealous supporter in the person of a Calcutta bapu of wealth, through whom he was enabled to secure the professional services of one of the acutest and most energetic attorneys, whose technical skill and persistent zeal on behalf of his client enabled him in a comparatively short time, to make a tolerably good fortune. A long course of litigation, first in the Burdwan courts, and then in the Supreme Court, followed. The legal proceedings were sometimes criminal and sometimes civil, but extending over a duration of two or three years, Altogether they were ruinously costly, and the claimant rajah and his friends were soon made to feel that they were by no means an equal match, in a pecuniary point of view, with those opposed to them, possessed as they were of untold wealth. The upshot was that the pretender went to the wall, and died in abject poverty, and the possessor of Gaddi remained, as he is to this day, the Rajah of Burdwan.—Indian Paper.
