CURLING MATCH POSTPONED.

Four rinks of Carleton curlers were scheduled to play at Fredericton yesterday, but owing to the mild weather the match was postponed until a later date.

THE 1913 BASEBALL RECORD OUT

Spalding's Official Baseball Record for 1913, edited by John B. Foster, is published today. This is the sixth year of the Spalding Record, and the publishers have presented to their readers more accurate and interesting statistics of the national pastime than in any previous number of the series.

The records of the season 1912 are very attractive as compared with those of preceding years, owing to the disposition on the part of some of the players to crowd more closely some of the records of old than has always been the case in the history of the annual campaigns for the major league pennants.

Part I. comprises the records of 1912, and in this section will be found the Major League Statistics for 1912; Miscellaneous Bassball Records; Official Averages for 1912 of the American Association, American League, and about forty other leagues throughout the United States.

There will also be found a chapter on the Philadelphia City series; another one on How Pitchers Shatter Records; the Spalding Baseball of Fame the World's Series; and the Year in Baseball.

The great mass of general statistic in the second part of the volume will be found to contain slight changes in some instances. For example, there came a necessity the past year to attempt to verify the record of Luby, the Chicago National League pitcher. Since 1890 it had been quite generally understood that he had won twenty games in succession and was the best of the major league pitchers of all times in this respect.

The editor of the Record, when the question arose as to Luby's record, began an investigation of the files of several newspapers, and became convinced that the record was not accurate. There was a game lost, which had not been charged to him, that broke up his successful string of twenty victories. So it becomes necessary to start out this year with other men holding the place of honor which was presumed to have been held by Luby.

In Part II, among the many other interesting chapters, will be found under the head of the National League, All America Teams records from 1871 to 1912; Club Presidents from 1876 to 1912; Fielding Records 1871 to 1912; National All America team; Holders of the three highest percentages in fielding from 1871 to 1912; Holders of the three highest percentages in batting in respective fielding positions from 1871 to 1912; honorary members; officers; pitchers' percentage; leading batmen, etc., for the same period; the Roll of Honor; World's Series Players from 1884 to 1912.

Part II also contains information on American League statistics, similar to that of the National. As a standard publication, essential to Baseball history, the Record today is the most valuable work of its kind which is given to those who are directly or indirectly interested in the past achievements of baseball players. Attention is called to the fact that copies of the Record are becoming more valuable as the publication continues from season to season. There are frequent demands for back numbers, and these demands will increase and multiply as the Record becomes older.

Spalding's Official Base Ball Record will be sent to any address in the United States or Canada, postpaid, by the publishers, the American Sports Publishing Co., 21 Warren Street, New York City, upon receipt of price, ten cents per copy.

CLOSING STOCK LETTER.

By Direct Private Wires to J. C Mackintosh and Co., St. John, N. B.

New York, Jan. 21.—With no fresh developments of an unfavorable character to inspire further operations on the short side, today's market showed a measurable improved undertone, even if this were due wholly to professional short covering. The feeling prevailed on the floor that the market had discounted the more unfavorable aspects of the situation for the time being and the knowledge that a large short interest was outstanding tended to make some of the professional bears nervous. The market's technical position is a strong one but there is nothing in the immediate prospect to suggest that there are any developments impending such as would stimulate any substantial demand for stocks from any quarter save the short interest.

BILLY QUEAL CHALLENGES WILLIE KOLEHMAINEN.

New Haven, Jan. 21.—Billy Queal the American long distance champion has challenged Willie Kolehmainen the world's champion, for a return match over the 15-mile distance. Queal, who has just signed a contract to coach the Yale long distance runners for the coming athletic season, wants one more crack at the Finnish marvel before he settles down to his duties as coach of the Blue runners.

"I want one more chance against Kolehmainen at 15 miles," said Queal while passing through New Haven for New York yesterday. "I know I am the Finn's master. Any one who saw the last contest at Mechanic's building admit that I was the better man all through the race. Had it not been for a fall on the final sprint I would have won easily. So confident am I of my ability to beat him in a return match that I will wager any amount up to $50 that I will beat him."

RACES POSTPONED.
