There is an inconvenience we long suffered under, and which after exertions to counteract it, we confess we cannot remedy without the assistance of our subscribers themselves who are interested. Parcels directed to out-stations are broken open and individuals who never paid one farthing towards the Standard, meanly purloin the paper. If ever we adopt a "Black List," we will give the names of certain persons who have been reported to us as guilty of this low species of theft. They ought to be ashamed of robbing their neighbours and throwing the blame on us. The law punishes this transgression with the same severity that it does breaking open a letter, and some people had better take care how they subject themselves to its operation.

In addition to the measures which will be taken to collect the sums due to the Standard, it has been resolved not to give credit for Blank Forms of any kind, as "time is money" and we cannot spare it to dun.

To those whose kindness has enabled us to carry on the Standard thus far, we beg to offer our sincere thanks; and to all we tender the congratulations of the season and wishes for a happy new year.

We copy the following particulars of the loss of the Schr Emily, Carrick, of this port from the Boston Atlas. Capt. Carrick has done himself a great deal of credit by his humane attention to the females and children, having sent them on shore at first and by his manly conduct in remaining by the wreck until the last moment.

The Brig Emily, Carrick, laden with coal, lumber, potatoes, and 17 passengers on her passage from St. Andrews to this port, when about 3 leagues W. of Seguin, on Monday noon, the 17th, sprung a leak, pumps choked and spoil, the vessel a solid body of ice, bore up for Kennebec, and in running in with the wind from SW. got on Wood Island Bar, and tilted (the tide then ebbing) A boat came off from the shore, and took 3 women and 3 children off the bowsprit, but the sea running so heavily, could not get back for the night. The mate and 2 passengers then left the schr's boat and in going near the shore she swamped, and they were driven on the beach in a very weak state. At 6½, M. the sea running very heavy, and making a fair breach over her, the captain, crew, and residue of passengers, (7 in number) took to the rigging and lashed themselves, as the last resource. At midnight the decks blew up, taking with it part of the starboard side, stern and stern frame: the whole of the cargo then washed out. They remained in this hopeless state until 6 o'clock Tuesday morning, when they were taken off in a very weak and exhausted state and carried to the house of Messrs Chapin & Cook, at Pingree's, who did every thing in their power for the relief of the sufferers. The wants of the passengers and crew are more or less frostbitten. Subscription purses have been made in Boston to forward the passengers to Boston — The sufferers have been sent home by the British Consul at Portland, and the captain has arrived in Boston. The captain, crew, and passengers, lost every thing but what they stood in.
