NOTES AND NEWS.

UNITED STATES.

An action at law of novel and thrilling interest is about to be tried at Albion, N. Y. It is all about an old coffee-pot which was left with a pewterer for repairs. This coffee-pot was delivered to an untrustworthy person, who failed to carry it to its owner. It may have been an heir-loom; it may have been valuable on account of dear and touching memories; it may have been for some good reason the most lovely coffee-pot in the world; at any rate its bereaved owner refused to be comforted, and has brought strover for the tinware. The difficulty in such a case is to get damages high enough to carry costs.

The course of true love never did run smooth is a maxim universal in its application. There was a young man in Frieco who pined for a partner in life, and he advertised in the papers to that effect. One of the responses touched his manly bosom, and he spent his time writing letters when he might have been better employed. Photos were exchanged, as were vows of affection, and the young lady hinted that her supply of pocket money was limited, and the enamored swain sent her prospective pin-money to the amount of $200. Alas for the guile of human nature, that young woman turned out to be a lot of boys, and the generous young man has sent the police on their track to try and get his money back.

Three-card monte is an amusement which seldom brings happiness and contentment to those who indulge in its delights. As a rule, those who put their money on the cagle return to the domestic fireside, poorer and sadder men than when they departed, but Rev. A. D. Williams, of Brainard, Minn., has triumphed. He went for the flats and lo. t his watch and chain. Therefore his congregation—moved possibly by that fellow feeling which makes us wondrous kind—subscribed and got a new one. The worthy parson rested happy, but when the moate men felt qualms of conscience and returned him his property, his bliss was unutterable, and now he is looking round for more monte men who carry consciences under their diamond brooches.

The Detroit Free Press has come upon a colored man, living in that city, who having long admired a colored widow living in the next block above, but being afraid to reveal his passion, went to a white man and asked him to write the lady a letter asking her hand in marriage. The friend wrote, telling the woman in a few brief lines that the size of her feet was the talk of the neighborhood, and asking her if she couldn't pare them down a little. The name of the colored man was signed, and he was to call on her for an answer. Subsequently the writer of the letter met the negro limping along the street, and asked him what the widow said. The man showed him a bloodshot eye, a scratched nose, a lame leg, and a spot on the scalp where a handful of wool had been violently jerked out, and he answered in solemn tones: "She didn't say nuffin, and I didn't stay dar mor'n a minute!"

Thomas Maguire, a remarkably precocious Boston boy, was last week sent to the Tewksbury Reform School, there to stay during his minority. He is only eight years old, and attained his majority in sin and iniquity long ago. When only five years old he broke into a shop and rifled the till. After this he achieved a brilliant reputation as a pickpocket. He speedily rose, however, to the dignity of highway robbery; for, meeting a smaller boy on the street who had a little money in his pocket, he with force and arms appropriated the same. For thirteen years his career will now be suspended, and his extraordinary abilities lost to the world. Master Maguire is described by the reporters as "very small of his age, dirty, ragged, and strongly resembling Whittier's 'little Barefoot Boy.'" His father is dead, his mother is in prison as a common drunkard, and his elder brother under indictment for burglary, so that it is a question how far he may be considered responsible for his melancholy moral eccentricities.

A man was leading a big dog, when some one called him into a saloon to take a drink. He looked for a place to tie his dog, and being a little excited over the prospect of a treat, the animal was made fast to the hind wheel of a farmer's wagon which was backed up to the curbstone. The dog sat down, and was looking up at the sun with half-closed eyes, and dreaming of city clerks, and dog licenses, and brass collars and beef bones, when the farmer jumped into his wagon and said "g'lang there." The dog didn't suspect anything until he found himself jerked "sky high" and then slapped on the ground. He gave a howl and made a jump, thinking that another dog had sneaked in on him, and then the spoke went up and he was lifted with it and flopped down again. This fun continued for about five minutes, when the dog came down under the wheel and was killed just as the wagon stopped. The owner came out, saw how 'twas done, and he folded his arms and said, "Well, wasn't that thunder."

The New Facts about Shakspeare.

Allusion was recently made to the discovery of documents which controvert recent theories respecting Shakspeare's business connection with theatres. The discoverer of these papers was Mr. J. O. Halliwell, and an account of them is given by the London Athenæum. They include even lists of the original proprietors and sharers. Shakspeare's name does not occur in those lists. Those passages in which the great dramatist is expressly mentioned are as follows:

"The sons of James Burbage are speaking in an affidavit. They tell us that, after relinquishing their theatrical speculations in Shoreditch, they 'built the Globe with summes of money taken up at interest which lay heavy on us many yeeres, and to ourselves wee joyned those deserveing men, Shakspere, Hemings, Condall, Phillips and others, profittes of that they call the House.' As to the Blackfriars they say, 'our father purchased it at extreame rates, and made it into a playhouse with great charge and trouble, which after was leased out to one Evans that first sett up the boyes commonly called the Quenes Majesties Children of the Chappell;—In processe of time, the boyes growing up to bee men, it was considered that house would be as fitt for ourselves, and see purchased the lease remaining from Evans with our money, and placed men players, which were Hemings, Condall, Shakspeare, and Richard Burbage.'"

DR. FLINT'S QUAKER BITTERS A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY AND REMEDY.

Extracts of Roots and herbs which almost invariably cure the following complaints:—

Dyspepsia, Heart Burn, Liver Complaint, and Loss of Appetite cured by taking a few bottles.

Lassitude, Low Spirits and sinking Sensation cured at once.

Eruptions, Pimples, Blotches, and all impurities of the blood, bursting through the skin or otherwise, cured readily by following the directions on the bottle.

Kidney, Bladder and Urinary Derangement invariably cured. One bottle will convince the most skeptical.

Worms expelled from the system without the least difficulty. Patients suffering from this prevalent disease will see a marked change for the better in their condition after taking one bottle. Worm difficulties are more prevalent than is generally supposed in the young, and they will find the Quaker Bitters a sure remedy.

Nervous Difficulties, Neuralgia, &c., speedily relieved.

Rheumatism, Swelled Joints and all Scrofular Afflictions removed or greatly relieved by this invaluable medicine.

Bronchitis, Catarrh, Convulsions, and Hysterics cured or much relieved.

Difficult Breathing, Pain in the Lungs, Side and Chest almost invariably cured by taking a few bottles of the Quaker Bitters.

All Difficult Female Derangements, (almost invariably caused by a violation of the organic laws,) so prevalent to the American ladies yield readily to this invaluable medicine—the Quaker Bitters.

All Impurities of the Blood and diseases incident to the same always cured by the Quaker Bitters, if taken according to the directions.

The Aged find in the Quaker Bitters just the article they stand in need of in their declining years. It quickens the blood and cheers the mind, and paves the passage down the plane inclined.

Sold by all Druggists and Dealers in Medicine.
